GRAND JURORS HEAR BRUNDIDGE CHARGES TODAY

Will Give Names in Racket Stories.

$55,825 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,825 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune, $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Harry T. Brundidge, reporter on the St. Louis Star, will appear before the Cook county grand jury today to support his charges that certain Chicago newspaper men are engaged in various forms of racketeering.

The St. Louis newspaper man, who came here on an assignment to write the story of the murder of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, reporter for THE TRIBUNE, later wrote several articles in which, without mentioning names, he declared that other reporters beside Lingle were on intimate terms with gangsters, participated in graft, and maintained side "rackets." Brundidge offered in his articles to give the names of the reporters to the grand jury.

Hearings Supposedly Secret.

The hearings of a grand jury are supposed to be secret, and it is not known how much of Brundidge's testimony will eventually become public.

Brundidge himself will not make his own testimony public, it was indicated in the following announcement, printed yesterday in the St. Louis Star.

"The Star takes this opportunity to point out that grand jury testimony is secret and to reveal it is unlawful. It is not uncommon in Chicago for secret testimony before grand juries to 'leak' as soon as given and find its way into the newspapers.

"Brundidge will observe the law and have nothing to give out. The grand jury in its report may, if it sees fit, embody any part or all of his testimony and it thereby would become public property. Divulging of what goes on in a grand jury room, by an official of the grand jury or an officer of the state likewise is unlawful."

One Charge Still Secret.

However, it is generally believed that most of the testimony to be given by Brundidge has already become public. Of the more serious charges made by Brundidge, one, in which he declared that a Chicago newspaper man received 5 cents a bag on every bag of cement sold to the municipal governments, has not been explained.

One of the main points stressed by Brundidge in his articles concerned the murder of Julius Rosenheim. The St. Louis reporter revealed that Rosenheim was a paid informant for the Chicago Daily News, and charged that he had been collecting bribes from gangsters, gamblers, bootleggers, and others under threat of exposing their activities in the Daily News. Brundidge's article stated that Rosenheim had worked with a reporter on the Daily News, and that this reporter had been threatened with death also.

After the printing of this article the Daily News published a signed article by Leland H. Reese in which it was stated that Reese was the reporter who had retained Rosenheim as an informant.

Tells of Escape.

Reese admitted in his story that he had been threatened with death and he declared that he had narrowly escaped death at the hands of gangsters who, after pursuing Reese's car for ten miles, finally forced it into a ditch. Reese also stated that he believed Rosenheim had been murdered by members of the Capone gang, who sought to intimidate the Daily News and to restrain the News from a campaign against the Capone gang selling beer in the loop.

Another of Brundidge's published charges was that an editor of one newspaper visited Scarface Al Capone at the latter's estate near Miami, and after flying with Capone to Havana, was arrested by the Cuban police. Brundidge also declared this editor maintained a private office in the loop, in addition to his regular newspaper office.

Name Is Made Public.

This editor subsequently was revealed to be Harry Read, city editor of the Chicago Evening American. The American has published an ex-

Captains Four Sit and Sit in Orphan Home

North Halsted street, in the 2100 block, a somber thoroughfare of weatherbeaten frame and brick structures, was the scene of a mystery which for some hours yesterday stirred an apathetic neighborhood to a certain degree of excitement.

Fifteen and twenty years ago, the district had life and sparkle. Activity centered in the red brick police station, the old 40th precinct, at No. 2124. But the station was abandoned 10 years ago. It was used for some time as an orphanage and then condemned. Then the building fell into disuse, except as a storeroom for lumber and plumbing supplies.

Thus, residents who remembered the good old days gathered in buzzing groups early yesterday morning when five uniformed policemen were seen to enter the building. They had not reappeared at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. There were no signs of activity within and it was impossible to see through the cobwebbed windows.

Reporter Investigates Mystery.

A reporter, informed of this unusual incident, ascended some creaking steps and pushed open the door while interested spectators looked on.

Inside he found dust and darkness, heaps of plumbing supplies lay around. At the rear was a stairway. Walking up through the gloom, he pushed open another door. Piles of lumber barred his way. Cautiously he moved forward and found another door. He opened this and peered into a small room.

The five police officers therein were seated on rude wooden chairs. They were gazing at each other in silence. A small table upon which stood a telephone was the only article of furniture in addition to the chairs.

"What is this?" inquired the reporter, bravely.

Capt. Stege Explains.

"This," said Capt. John Stege, until recently deputy commissioner in charge of detectives, "is the miscellaneous division of the police department. You see here Capt. Charles L. Larkin, former chief of detectives; Capt. William P. Kennedy and Capt. Richard P. Gill. This fifth gentleman is a sergeant to whom we report."

The miscellaneous division was created by order of Acting Police Commissioner Alcock on Saturday. He ordered the four captains to report in uniform at the North Halsted street building each morning at 8:30 a. m. and to remain until 5 p. m. with thirty minutes off for lunch. The order stated that the men would be subject to call "for any emergency."

First Deputy Commissioner James Scanlan, who was put in charge of the new division, said that he had not yet conferred with his superior concerning the uses to which the miscellaneous department will be put.

"No emergency has arisen as yet," said Capt. Stege, gazing sadly at an industrious spider in a corner. "In the meanwhile we have our little inconveniences. There are no toilet facilities here. There is no water to drink. We couldn't even take our thirty minutes for lunch because there's no restaurant within a mile and we couldn't get back in time."

The other three captains looked at each other and said nothing.

The reporter referred to the fact that the building had once been used as an orphanage.

"Don't you sense all the ghosts of the little orphans who once played in this old structure?" he asked, being something of a romantic young fellow.

HOUSE PROBERS VISIT 2 COMMUNIST CAMPS; RECEIVED WITH JEERS

Newburgh, N. Y., July 21.—[Special.]—The congressional committee investigating communists today visited two communist camps situated in this vicinity and for the first time since the beginning of the inquiry came in contact with the people they are investigating.

At both Camp Nitgetdaiget, which means "don't worry," three and a half miles south of here, and at Camp Unity, forty miles north, members of the committee, of which Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. is chairman, were met with boos, jeers, catcalls and floods of denunciation as communists staged what they termed "protest demonstrations" against the "Fascist fishing expedition."

40 Barrels of Mince Meat Rum Stolen

Seven robbers clad in overalls last evening invaded the Libby, McNeill & Libby warehouse in the Union stockyards, herded 14 employés into a small office, loaded 40 barrels of rum on a truck, and made their escape after two of them fought a running gun battle with a special policeman. Based on current retail bootleg prices, the liquor is valued at $80,000.

It was the boldest hijacking raid, the police say, ever conducted against legitimate industry. The rum, used in the manufacture of mince meat and puddings, was stored in a unit of the plant at Packers and Exchange avenues.

The robbers are believed to have slipped quietly into the plant about 3:30 in the afternoon. They mingled with the other employés until the day force left at 6 o'clock.

Then, by signal, all drew automatics. The 14 warehouse employés were guarded by two of the band, while a third made the rounds with James Ritchie, night watchman, to see that he pulled his boxes regularly. The remaining four rolled the barrels on the truck. They worked for more than an hour.

The two robbers guarding the employés left in a small sedan a few minutes after the truck departed. They were sighted by John Duffy, head of the Union stockyards police department. Near Racine avenue and 47th street Duffy opened fire and the fugitives returned it. A bullet punctured a tire of their car and they escaped on foot.

GIRL LEAPS INTO ATLANTIC; SHIP CREW SAVES HER

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—The story of how a 24 year old American girl was rescued at sea in 15 minutes after she had jumped overboard was related tonight when the Atlantic Transport liner Minnekahda arrived from Boulogne by Capt. Johan Jennsen. The passenger, Miss Marion Herbert of Detroit, jumped overboard Saturday when the liner was 950 miles east of Ambrose lightship.

She had been placed in the care of a stewardess in the belief that she was suffering from neurasthenia.

The stewardess sent a sailor up to the bridge to give the alarm as Miss Herbert leaped overboard. Lifeboats were lowered and she climbed the rope ladder up the side of the Minnekahda unaided and was in a berth in the ship's hospital within a quarter of an hour after her attempt to end her life. She apologized to Capt. Jennsen for the trouble she had given him and his crew and said: "I don't know what made me jump into the water. I often do silly things like that."

BABY SHUFFLE STILL PUCKERS SAGES' BROWS

But Science Hopes to Solve Problem.

An ophthalmologist, a dermatologist, a pathologist, an anthropologist, two crime detectors, and an obstetrician yesterday met in conference to determine whether there was any scientific means of establishing the identities of the infants Bamberger and Watkins.

Mr. and Mrs. William Watkins of 1619 West 53d street found a few days after Mrs. Watkins returned from Englewood hospital with her son that on his back was a square of adhesive tape which read "Bamberger." Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bamberger of 5523 South Paulina street were questioned, and they found a similar piece of adhesive from their baby's back reposing in a waste basket. It was marked "Watkins."

Still Puzzle to Science.

The city's sages called in to give their opinion on whose baby was whose announced separately and with some embarrassment after the conference that there was no one way of knowing. Science, it seems, had never been confronted with just that problem.

The specialists were called by Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, city health commissioner, and met in his office behind closed doors. They were Dr. Emil Deutsch, ophthalmologist; Dr. Cleveland White, associate in dermatology, Northwestern university school of medicine; Dr. Hamilton R. Fishback, associate professor of pathology, Northwestern university school of medicine; Dr. Gerhardt von Bonin, associate professor, department of anatomy, University of Illinois; Ferdinand Watzek, formerly of Vienna, director of the scientific crime detection laboratory of Northwestern university; A. J. Mulvaney, investigator for that laboratory, and Dr. Davis S. Hillis, obstetrician, associated with Passavant hospital and Northwestern university.

Kegel Is Optimistic.

After the conference, the scientists and doctors and investigators posed for photographs, and Dr. Kegel explained the situation.

"It is true that no one thing is infallible, but," he said smilingly, "all of us working together will determine the paternity of the babies and put the mothers and fathers at ease.

"Dr. White will study the pigment of the skins and hereditary transmissions of skin likenesses. Dr. Fishback will report on the blood. He will use a new thing—the photometric system of photographing blood cells and so forth. And he will study the refractibility of the blood plasma under a filter."

Dr. White and Dr. Fishback were pursued and questioned as they hurriedly left the conference room. "Probably" was all they had to say when asked if it was scientifically possible to determine the problem definitely.

"And Dr. Hillis will make a study of the nutrition of the mother during pregnancy and the shape of the babies' heads," Dr. Kegel continued.

Too Late for This Test.

"That won't show anything, it's too late," Dr. Hillis interrupted. "If the heads had been measured after birth, now—but I'll study the bones, and any diseases the mothers may have had at any time. It's possible I may learn something, but doubtful."

Dr. Von Bonin, Dr. Kegel said, would report on the correlative diameters of the heads of the infants, the racial characteristics of the noses and jaws, and the skeletons of the babies.

However, Dr. Von Bonin said that the babies were too young to show pronounced racial characteristics. Moreover, just what races were involved seemed to be doubtful, despite laboratory reports that one parent had Semitic blood. However, according to the statements of the parents involved, Mr. Watkins' ancestry is Welsh and Mrs. Watkins' is German. Mr. Bamberger's is Irish and English and Mrs. Bamberger is Austrian.

Judge Questions Nurse.

Miss Alida Schultetus, supervisor of the obstetrical ward in the Englewood hospital, was questioned at the conference by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court, who will help to decide the babies' destinies. The nurse said she wrote and applied both adhesive tags, and within 4 minutes of the babies' birth. Pursued down the corridor after she left the conference chambers, Miss Schultetus said: "I know we're right. That is, that they have the right babies."

"Then they must have been marked wrong?" it was suggested.

"No, they were not marked wrong.

Breeze Shifts and City Cools; East Suffers

Chicago enjoyed its accustomed temperate weather yesterday while the eastern and southern states simmered in torrid temperatures which had visited the central states over the weekend.

While the cloudy skies failed to produce the showers predicted for the city, a shift of the wind from southwest to northeast forced down the temperature nearly 30 degrees. Fair and continued cool weather was predicted for today and tomorrow.

From a maximum of 99 degrees Sunday evening the mercury shrank point by point through the night until at 9 a. m. it reposed at a comfortable mark of 72. The temperature rose three points in the early afternoon, but declined again last evening to 72.

42 Die on East Coast.

Meanwhile eastern dispatches said the sidewalks of New York were like griddles and that 42 were dead and scores prostrated from Boston to Atlantic City.

With a reading of 99 degrees at 5 p. m., New York City endured its hottest day of the year. Philadelphia's maximum was 103 and Atlantic City reported 102.

New England's death toll was nine, with the temperature at 96 in Boston, the Associated Press reported. In Baltimore the thermometer flirted with the 100 degree mark and nine were reported dead from heat throughout Maryland.

Dismiss Washington Workers.

Virtually all federal employés in Washington, D. C., were excused from work for the afternoon; policemen were permitted to work in shirt sleeves, and the continued heat was reported to have induced President Hoover to expedite his plans for a vacation in the northwest.

A cooling system in the White House held the temperature in the executive offices at a maximum of 80, but elsewhere in the capital the oppressive heat was almost insufferable. The 3 p. m. reading was 103, three points lower than Sunday's maximum of 106.

Rains Aid Farmers.

In Iowa and in sections of South Dakota and Nebraska a plenteous rain early yesterday soaked the parched soil and revived grain crops which the drought had threatened with total destruction.

Later in the day the showers visited the whole eastern half of Iowa and towards evening central and southern Indiana. Dairymen who saw their burned pasture lands turning green hailed it as a million dollar rain. Precipitation averaged a half inch.

What the correspondent at Quincy, Ill., described as "a wonderful shower," drenched Pike and Adams counties shortly after noon. Reports from St. Joseph, Mo., said three inches had fallen in western Missouri yesterday morning.

HUNT SLUGGER FOR ATTACK IN LABOR DISPUTE

Police last night were seeking a slugger, who it is charged went to a Kresge store at 4657 Broadway, accompanied by the business agent of the metal workers' union and attacked the watchman and a clerk.

Charles West, 1531 North Austin boulevard, business agent for the union, was held without charge at the Town Hall station following the attack. The attack followed a dispute over the employment of non-union men on sheet metal work at the store 3 weeks ago.

The slugger, whose identity was not learned by the police, drew a revolver during the dispute and struck Jacob Dantins, 65 years old, 4915 Congress street, the watchman. When Donald Davis, 914 Eastwood avenue, a clerk, intervened on Dantins' behalf, he was struck over the head with the revolver. The slugger fled but West remained until the police arrived.

Peter Inserio, 40 years old, who bore the soubriquet of "Ash Can Pete," was shot to death last night in his saloon at 445 North Elizabeth street, a resort formerly known as the "Ash Can club" and more recently named the Idle Hour club.

"Who did it, Pete?" a policeman asked.

"I don't know," he answered, trying to grin. "But they did a good job. Hit me six times. Get me to a hospital."

While Pete was being lifted into an ambulance and was riding to the county hospital where he died within half an hour, Lieuts. James Devereaux and Jules Bernacchi began an investigation which, at an early hour this morning, had produced nothing likely to determine who killed "Ash Can Pete" and why.

SENATORS, 58-9, VOTE APPROVAL AND GO HOME

President Calls for List of Foes.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—By a vote of 58 to 9 the senate late today ratified the navy limitation treaty.

By this action, the United States becomes the first of the five signatory nations to ratify the treaty reducing battleship fleets and limiting cruisers, destroyers and submarines, negotiated at London and signed on April 22 last. Great Britain and Japan, which were withholding approval pending action by the United States senate, are expected to ratify without delay.

The consent voted by the senate brought to success the first major project undertaken by President Hoover. He had been in office less than a month when he deputed Ambassador Hugh Gibson to inform the powers that the United States would join them in mutual concessions to break the deadlock on arms limitation and reduction that caused the failure of the Geneva conference of 1927. The MacDonald government accepted the overture and the negotiations began more than a year ago which culminated in the London treaty.

President Greatly Pleased.

At the White House it was stated that the President was greatly pleased by the senate action. The White House telephone operator gave the news to Mr. Hoover within one minute after Vice President Curtis announced the vote in the senate. The President asked at once for the names of the senators voting against the treaty and the list was rushed to his desk.

The nine senators who cast their votes against the pact are Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.], Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], Tasker L. Oddie [Rep., Nev.], W. B. Pine [Rep., Okla.], Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.], Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], and David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.].

In all there were fourteen senators against the treaty. In addition to the nine who voted nay, there were the following named five who were paired in opposition: Edwin S. Broussard [Dem., La.], Charles W. Waterman [Rep., Col.], Henrik Shipstead Farm-Labor, Minn.], Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], and Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.].

Senate Galleries Are Crowded.

When the final vote was taken the galleries were crowded with visitors enjoying a respite from the excessive heat in the artificially cooled senate chamber. Incidentally to the senate cooling system was attributed the ease with which a quorum was maintained during the consideration of the treaty. The only occupants of the diplomatic gallery were two or three South American ministers and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, wife of the secretary of state who negotiated the London treaty.

With the treaty ratified several presidential appointments were confirmed and others postponed and a political speech was made by Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], and the special session of the senate adjourned sine die. The senators headed for departing trains.

What Treaty Provides.

The London naval treaty contains two agreements, one providing for a 5 power pact, and the other for a three power accord. All five powers, Great Britain, the United States, Japan, Italy, and France, signed the five power agreement calling for a battleship building holiday until Dec. 31, 1936, and setting the maximum tonnage levels for aircraft carrier tonnage as the same levels permitted by the Washington agreement of 1922.

The aircraft provisions provide that all aircraft carriers, even if under 10,000 tons in weight, should be counted in making up the aircraft tonnage of a power.

Great Britain, the United States, and Japan were the signatories of the three power agreement. This provided for limitation of cruisers, submarines, and destroyers, types of vessels not limited at the Washington conference.

3 Power Agreement.

The three power agreement divided cruisers into two subcategories and limited American 8 inch gun cruiser tonnage to eighteen ships, only sixteen to be completed during the life of the pact. Great Britain was allowed fifteen 8 inch gun cruisers and Japan, twelve. In most categories the 5-5-3 ratio adopted for capital ships at the Washington conference with Japan was departed from. Japan was permitted parity with Great Britain and the United States in submarines and a 10-7 ratio in small cruisers and destroyers.

Under the agreement the United States was permitted a navy of 1,139,100 tons of ships, Great Britain was permitted 1,151,460, while Japan was allowed 714,120. The ratio of fighting ships allowed, according to the state department, is 10 for the United States, 10.1 for Great Britain, and 6.3 for Japan.

The London agreement contains a section known as the escape clause permitting any signatory to build above the treaty limits if menaced by naval building by an outside power. It also has a section designed to humanize submarine warfare.

Accept Only One Reservation.

Fifteen reservations were offered to the resolution of ratification but only one was adopted. This was the reservation offered by Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], the text of which follows:

"Resolved further, that in ratifying said treaty the senate does so with the distinct understanding that there are no secret files, documents, letters, understandings, or agreements which in any way, directly or indirectly, modify, change, add to, or take from any of the stipulations, agreements or statements in said treaty; and that the senate ratifies said treaty with the distinct and explicit understanding that, excepting the agreement brought about through exchange of notes between the governments of the United States, Great Britain and Japan having reference to article 19, there is no agreement, secret or otherwise, expressed or implied, between any of the parties to said treaty as to any construction that shall hereafter be given to any statement or provision contained therein."

Senator Norris offered this resolution when the President refused to furnish the senate with the secret documents bearing on the treaty negotiations. The administration accepted it when it became known that its rejection might result in postponement of action, if not defeat of the treaty.

Senator Norris consented to eliminate the preamble which recited that the senate was unable to act on the treaty with full knowledge because of the refusal of the executive to furnish the information. This the administration leaders pronounced a reflection upon the honor of Mr. Hoover, who officially had informed the senate that there is no secret understanding pertaining to the treaty.

Defeat 12 Reservations.

The administration defeated the other reservations in short order. Twelve were defeated either by viva voce votes or by recalls, showing about the same lineup of senators as on the ratification vote. Senator Hale withdrew two reservations upon explanation by Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.], one of the treaty negotiators, that the acceptance of two categories of cruisers and the increase of the Japanese ratio will not bind the United States in the next conference.

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts made a determined fight for his reservation, declaring for the building of our navy up to the limits fixed by the treaty, and when it was defeated, 11 to 54, he said he would vote against the pact and attributed its rejection to fear of offending the pacifist group which wants "no navy at all."

The reservation was opposed by Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], who said he would not want to bind himself in advance of a navy construction program, and by Senator Reed, who, while favoring a treaty navy, argued that the provision of the reservation for the building of eight inch gun but not six inch gun cruisers would nullify the treaty option to construct six inch gun tonnage in place of the last three eight inch gun ships.

Senator McKellar's reservation conditioning ratification on acceptance of the powers of freedom of the seas was bowled over 9 to 58. Then by viva voce votes the senate rejected his reservations limiting the number of merchantmen to be converted to war use, requiring Great Britain to dismantle bases off our shores, declaring the treaty null if any signatory should violate the Kellogg pact and assessing punitive damages on such offender.

Ejaculating "For the love of God, aren't we to give our country one single construction of this treaty in our favor?" Senator Johnson offered a reservation providing that we may complete the last three big cruisers during the life of the pact, but he was rebuffed, 9 to 57. Senator Bingham's reservation that would allow us to build any kind of cruisers under the escalator clause went down, 10 to 54. Senator Moses' reservation to restore our right to fortify our bases in the far east was howled down without a record vote.

Kill Johnson Reservation.

The Johnson reservation, declaring against entangling alliances, was swept aside, and another, voiding the treaty if we join the league of nations or world court, received 8 votes to 58 against it. The last Johnson reservation, that we could build cruisers without regard to the age restrictions, suffered a like fate.

The fight was over and Senator Johnson rose to deliver his valedictory. The pro-treaty side was not heard from.

"Mr. President, the last chapter has been written," Mr. Johnson began. "We are now about to vote the ratification of the treaty. It has been by no means a useless contest. Out of it only good can come. From it a very small minority of the American people have been taught what this instrument is and what it means in the future of the American republic. If only that has been accomplished, the contest has not been in vain.

Outwitted by Balfour?

"We have accomplished something more. We have prepared perhaps for another conference in 1935 and perhaps we have been able in the preparation to prevent some of the mistakes which have been made in the present one. It is not uncomplimentary to any of the individuals who were a part of the London conference to say that they erred or to disagree with them. That sort of thing we saw in 1922. Four of the greatest men, as we assumed, that lived in this nation, Elihu Root, Charles Evans Hughes, Henry Cabot Lodge, and Oscar Underwood, four men in whom we had at least in their ability and in their vision and in their statesmanship the highest confidence, sat for us in 1922 and wrote the treaty of disarmament.

"I have said before upon this floor, and I say again, there are none so poor today to do reverence to that document of 1922. It is conceded now practically that Messrs. Hughes and Root were outwitted by Mr. Balfour, and that being a conceded fact practically in relation to the 1922 conference, why should we accept without question or demur everything that might have been done at the London conference in 1930?"

Senator Johnson praised his comrades in opposition, "who, fearing no obstacles, heeding no contingency or consequence, constituted a little band of men who were willing to take their political lives in their hands, if it had to be done, and stand here presenting their case as best they could."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Preparation of a new warship building program providing for the authorization of at least 200,000 tons of new cruisers, aircraft carriers, submarines and destroyers at a total cost of around half a billion dollars will be undertaken by the navy department within the next few days.

Information reaching naval officials is that the White House will direct Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams to make a thorough survey of the needs of the American fleet in the light of the limitations of the three and five power naval pacts and then revise the navy's building plans.

No announcement has been made as to how far President Hoover will go in building up the fleet to the maximum tonnage levels allowed by the treaty for the various categories of ships. Naval officers believe the administration will take steps to authorize most of the needed ships regardless of whether funds for their actual completion are provided.

Total About 600 Millions.

When completed, the revised building program will include vessels remaining to be authorized as well as all vessels now building or authorized. Indications are that the entire program if compiled on a five year basis to take the fleet up to the expiration date of the treaty would contemplate an expenditure of more than 600 million dollars. Of this tonnage, ships costing about 200 millions are building or authorized; the balance remains to be provided for by legislation.

Should the President direct construction of all ships permitted by the treaty the total cost would amount to close to a billion dollars. It is probable any program to bring the navy up to treaty tonnage would be spread over eight years. It is believed President Hoover will direct Secretary Adams to examine naval expenditures to see if a way can be found to cut down naval costs during the building period. It is possible a move to cut down the number of navy yards will develop.

Treaty Allowances.

Under the treaty the United States is permitted, exclusive of battleships, 323,500 tons of cruisers, 150,000 tons of destroyers, 135,000 tons of aircraft carriers, and 52,700 tons of submarines. By Dec. 31, 1936, if all ships are replaced as they reach the age limit, the United States would have to complete the following ships to have a navy up to the maximum tonnage limits in modern ships: 140,000 tons of 8 inch gun cruisers in addition to 40,000 tons just completed; 73,500 tons of 6 inch gun cruisers in addition to 70,500 now commissioned; 150,000 tons of destroyers, 69,000 tons of aircraft carriers, and 25,000 tons of submarines in addition to five underseas vessels now building or appropriated for. Of these ships all the 8 inch gun cruisers are authorized and one aircraft carrier of 13,800 tons is appropriated for.

To bring the fleet up to the totals of the treaty tonnage limits would require the passage of a bill authorizing 73,500 tons of 6 inch gun cruisers, 150,000 tons of destroyers, 25,000 tons of submarines, and 55,200 tons of aircraft carriers. Naval officers do not expect it will be possible to secure replacement of all of this country's obsolete destroyer tonnage by 1936, and indications are that Secretary Adams will recommend laying down only 50,000 tons of destroyers during the next five years. An authorization bill modeled along these lines would call for 203,000 tons of ships and cost in the neighborhood of $425,000,000. In case all obsolete destroyers were replaced in five years the new authorization bill would amount to 280 million dollars more, or approximately 900 millions in all.

Must Amend U. S. Plans.

Ratification of the treaty by Great Britain and Japan will mean that American naval policy will have to be revamped in accord with the pact. At present naval policy calls for construction of only 8 inch gun cruisers. Under the treaty it will be necessary for the United States to build 6 inch gun cruisers or forego the privilege of building up to the total cruiser totals for this country.

In working out a program the navy will have to decide the various types of ships it is to build under the limitations of the treaty. The question of whether 6 inch gun cruisers are to be of 10,000 tons in displacement or some lesser tonnage must be decided. The naval experts must also answer the question of how much speed and armor is to be built into the small cruisers. The treaty permits 25 per cent of the 6 inch gun cruiser tonnage to be built with flying decks. Whether such hybrid ships are to be built is still to be determined.

Chairman Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] of the house naval affairs committee announced a few weeks ago that he would oppose authorization of any more 6 inch gun cruisers. It is assumed that inasmuch as the President included such vessels in the treaty the navy will include in its program authorizations for the 73,500 additional 6 inch gun ships permitted by the treaty. The navy general board is not expected to recommend building more than five of the 6 inch gun vessels prior to the 1935 conference.

BRITISH PREMIER PLEASED BY U. S. NAVAL PACT O. K.

LONDON, July 21.—(AP)—The Labor government's naval program, and incidentally the London naval treaty, met and survived attacks from a Laborite and from the Conservatives in the house of commons during debate today on the naval estimates. In both votes, Prime Minister MacDonald had heavy majorities.

As the debate was drawing to a close, the news was flashed to the house that the United States senate had ratified the naval treaty.

Mr. MacDonald exclaimed, "Splendid! I am tremendously pleased. This puts America in the place she ought to occupy in these matters. The decision is most timely."

Lightning Kills Bather; Wind Unroofs Buildings

Springfield, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—Irvin Kremcoskey, 15, was killed and a companion of his own age, Andy Martin, was severely burned by a bolt of lightning which struck the water of the C., B. & Q. reservoir near Auburn, where a party of boys were swimming late today. The storm struck heavily at Auburn, Rochester, and Chatham, in Sangamon county. Heavy wind unroofed a few buildings, blew shade trees down, and flattened corn over a restricted area. Some hail was reported.

HINES RECEIVES SENATE'S O.K., BUT OTHERS DELAYED

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Merger of agencies handling war veterans' affairs became effective today when President Hoover issued an executive order grouping the veterans' bureau, the bureau of pensions and the national home for disabled volunteer soldiers in a new veterans' administration. The senate during the day confirmed the President's appointment of Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, for several years past director of the veterans' bureau, as administrator of veterans' affairs.

The senate failed to approve President Hoover's nominations of three members of the reorganized federal power commission. This means that the present commission, which is composed of the secretaries of the interior, war, and aagriculture, will continue to function until next December.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.] objected to immediate consideration of the power commission nominations, although they were reported unanimously by the committee on interstate commerce. The three nominations were those of Claude L. Draper of Wyoming, Ralph B. Williamson of Washington, and Marcel Garsaud of Louisiana.

The senate also failed to act on the appointment of Nicholas Roosevelt of New York as vice governor of the Philippines.

The senate confirmed the appointment of William M. Jardine of Kansas, former secretary of agriculture, as minister to Egypt.

KILLED BY LIVE WIRE.

PLANE BLOWS UP; 4 LONDON SOCIAL LEADERS KILLED

Noted Beauty, Friend of Prince, Is Victim.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 21.—Six persons, four of whom were prominent in London society, were killed at Meopham Green, near Gravesend, Kent, this afternoon when a Junkers air liner operated by the Walcott Air lines, en route from Le Touquet, France, to Croydon, blew up and crashed. The dead are:

The marquis of Dufferin and Ava, son of the first marquis, who succeeded his brother to the title in 1918. He was the father of the earl of Ava whose marriage a fortnight ago to Maureen Guinness was the outstanding event of London's social season.

Viscountess Ednam, daughter-in-law of the earl of Dudley. She was one of England's most noted beauties and was a close friend of the prince of Wales.

Sir Edward Ward, son of the late Col. Edward W. D. Ward, who in the South African war was described as the greatest commissariat official since Moses, and was for some years permanent undersecretary of war.

Mrs. Henrik Loeffler, a well known society woman, wife of Capt. Loeffler, the famous big game hunter and yachtsman.

Lieut. Col. George L. P. Henderson, the pilot, who served in the Royal Air force during the great war and gained the military cross and clasp. He was rated as one of England's most noted flyers.

Charles Shearing, second pilot, who was said to have done much flying in America.

Eye Witnesses Tell of Crash.

According to eye witnesses, the plane was seen making for Croydon when suddenly a terrific explosion occurred. The machine seemed to fall to pieces in the air. The force of the explosion was so great that one wing came to earth nearly two miles away. The engine dropped out and buried itself in a yard near a bungalow.

The passengers were flung into a cherry orchard. The pilot, Col. Henderson came down with the main portion of the machine, strapped to his seat. He lived only ten minutes after being picked up.

Smashes Roof of Cottage.

Pieces of the machine fell in all directions, a chunk of metal from the engine going through the roof of a nearby cottage and through the floor of a room below. The shock of the falling plane shook a block of cottages like a small earthquake.

The inhabitants rushed to the wreck and found only two bodies nearby. The others were discovered in the cherry orchard some distance away, all terribly mutilated.

PILOT AND PASSENGER KILLED.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 21.—(AP)—T. J. May Jr. and William Morris, both of this city, were killed and their bodies burned here late today when their airplane fell from a height of about 300 feet. Morris was at the controls and May was a passenger.

REPORT 30 CASES OF MALARIA IN LAKE COUNTY, IND.

An outbreak of malaria in Lake county, Indiana, was revealed yesterday. The presence of about 30 cases was described as "unusual" by one health authority.

"The extreme heat of the last three weeks, together with the presence of malaria mosquitoes in swamps," explained Dr. Frank H. Mervis, health commissioner of East Chicago, "is responsible for the epidemic in the Calumet district. Some of the cases are very severe and all are accompanied by chills and high fever. The situation, however, is not alarming, and is under control."

Dr. Mervis said that any cases prior to this year were considered as having been imported, while the present ones are due entirely to local conditions. Although only five cases were reported in East Chicago, he said he understood there were at least ten others there. Cases also have been reported in Gary and Hammond, according to health authorities. No deaths have been reported, physicians said.

MEYERS SLATED FOR PRESIDENCY OF SCHOOL BOARD

3 Months' Deadlock Reported Broken.

The deadlock in the board of education over the election of a president has been broken and the election, postponed since May 28, will be held tomorrow. This was indicated yesterday by reports at the board of education.

Trustee Lewis E. Meyers, chairman of the health and sanitation committee, according to the information, is to be the new president. H. Wallace Caldwell, president during the past year and youngest member of the board, will be made chairman of the building and grounds committee. This is considered to be the most important office next to the presidency.

Sponsored by Ettelson.

It is understood that the candidacy of Mr. Meyers has been sponsored by Corporation Counsel Ettelson. Meyers is a friend of Ettelson as well as of Mayor Thompson, has been a member of the board for 18 months and came into prominence during the financial crisis of last winter and this summer when no money was available for the paying of teachers. It was under the leadership of Meyers that sale of tax anticipation warrants was made to provide funds.

There are ten members of the board and one vacancy, created by the resignation of Dr. Otto Schmidt a year ago. The deadlock over the presidency has existed for nearly three months because four trustees have stood firmly for the reelection of Caldwell and four have favored the candidacy of James Hemingway, chairman of the finance committee. Meyers was a leader of the Hemingway group.

New Trustee to be Named.

With two holdover trustees on the board and one vacancy, the mayor has been in a position to break the deadlock by exercising the appointing power, but it is said he has refused to do so because of resultant political complications, due to city hall friendships of both Caldwell and Meyers. James Mullenbach, one of the trustees whose terms has expired, has been supporting the candidacy of Hemingway, while Theophilus Schmid, the other holdover, is in the Caldwell camp.

With the school election deadlock broken without interference by him, the mayor, it is said, is now ready to appoint a new trustee to fill the Dr. Schmidt vacancy at the July 29 council meeting. At the same time, according to political associates of the mayor, he will reappoint Mullenbach and Hemingway.

No information could be obtained as to the possible identity of the new appointee, although city hall reports for the last month have indicated that a woman is being considered.

Negroes Charge Death Tip Racket at County Hospital

Investigation of an alleged racket at the county hospital was asked of Coroner Bundesen yesterday by the Chicago Colored Undertakers' association. The association charges a few colored undertakers pay from $15 to $30 for tips on the deaths of Negroes in the hospital, in order that they may solicit funerals. Michael Zimmer, warden of the hospital, said he had heard rumors of the alleged racket and had asked for facts from the association.

Get $3,000 in Loot

Chiseling a hole in a wall, burglars climbed into the Smith Juvenile shop at 3913 West North avenue and took $1,000 worth of lingerie and $2,000 worth of stockings. The burglary was committed Sunday night, but was not discovered until yesterday morning by the owner of the building, William Adams, 3911 West North avenue.

FRENCH COURT GRANTS DIVORCE TO MRS. BOYDEN

A cablegram to THE TRIBUNE yesterday from Concarneau, France, announced that a divorce had been granted recently to Mrs. Preston Boyden of Chicago. Before her marriage Mrs. Boyden was Polly Chase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase of Lake Forest. Mr. Boyden is an attorney with offices at 231 South La Salle street. Incompatibility of temperament was alleged. Mr. Boyden is a son of the late William C. Boyden.

The wedding of the two representatives of old and prominent Chicago families took place at St. Chrysostom's church on June 22, 1918. The bride had just completed her second year at Bryn Mawr, and the bridegroom was a lieutenant at Camp Grant.

Mrs. Boyden, whose two small daughters are in France with her, is expected to return to Chicago next month to visit her parents and her sisters, Miss Libby and Miss Janet Chase. Later she will go to New York. Mrs. Boyden is a niece of Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and of Mrs. Cecil Barnes. She is a poet, and has published a considerable number of her verses.

Head of Piano Company Found Guilty of Arson

Thomas Farrell of Berwyn, president of Thomas Farrell Piano company of Elgin, and Harry Samsky, Chicago trucking contractor of 1332 South Kedzie avenue, were found guilty of arson in the Kane county court of Circuit Judge John K. Newhall at Geneva late yesterday and will be sentenced today. The Farrell Piano company plant was destroyed by a gasoline explosion last May. The state charged that there was a plot to collect $80,000 in fire insurance on a policy which had been obtained a short time before.

PAY TEACHERS TODAY; $3,000,000 TAX PAPER SOLD

Sending of Checks Waits on Mayor.

Today will be pay day for 13,000 Chicago school teachers and 4,000 civil service employés of the board of education. Salary checks, now four weeks overdue, will be mailed in the afternoon, President H. Wallace Caldwell of the board said last night.

At a special meeting of the board of education yesterday afternoon trustees approved the sale of $3,000,000 in 1930 tax anticipation warrants. The sale was completed on Friday by Lewis E. Meyers, chairman of a special subcommittee of the finance committee, after three weeks of negotiations with a syndicate of Chicago bankers.

Before the warrants are negotiable they must be signed by President Caldwell, Mayor Thompson, and City Comptroller Schmidt. Both Mr. Caldwell and Mr. Schmidt signed the warrants yesterday afternoon, but the mayor is out of the city. He was expected to return either late last night or early this morning for the council meeting and will sign the warrants as soon as he arrives.

Checks totaling $4,606,000 are signed and ready for mailing. As soon as the mayor has signed the warrants checks will be mailed. School authorities assert that within two hours all checks will be delivered or in the mails. The $3,000,000 from the warrants aded to $3,369,820 obtained from the state education fund and summer school tuition will, Mr. Meyers said, provide for all salaries to Sept. 1.

MOB OF WOMEN IN BOMBAY HALTS RUM LICENSING

Silent Pickets Bar Doors of City Hall.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, India, July 21.—Bombay took a long step today towards absolute prohibition of the native drink called "toddy" when, after many postponements, an attempt to auction off liquor shop licenses failed utterly owing to picketing at the town hall by women. Supporting the picketers was such a huge crowd of followers of Mahatma Gandhi that the police, armed with lathis, were unable to provide an entrance for prospective bidders.

High caste women, beautifully dressed, stood in line across the steps of the city hall holding banners on which were inscribed: "Alcoholism turns men into beasts." Behind them on the steps, which are longer than those leading to the White House, stood solid phalanxes of police, while other armed forces kept male supporters of the passive resistance campaign from entering the building. Traffic was held up for blocks.

Stand in Silence.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent has never witnessed a more impressive demonstration. It was marked with silence and perfect order.

At noon prospective bidders, in counsel in an office across the street, decided not to enter the town hall. At this the police arrested 46 of the women picketers and drove off thousands of the white capped campaigners. The board then called off the auction owing to the lack of a single bidder. This is the second time such an auction has been prevented.

Meanwhile, numerous toddy shops closed up today, due to the expiration of their licenses. American news reel photographers filmed the entire scene in talkies today. The demonstration lasted two hours.

Gandhi Interviewers on Way.

Emissaries from Simla arrived in Bombay today on their way to interview Mahatma Gandhi in prison tomorrow. They will proceed on their quest although V. J. Patel, president of the India national council, has informed them that Gandhi is still adamant and will refuse to call off the civil disobedience campaign. Hence, it is apparent that the nationalists will continue their boycott of the Indian round table conference in October and in the meantime the disobedience campaign is seemingly becoming more intense.

COURT HAS POWER TO CURB TREE-SITTERS, OFFICIAL ASSERTS

Tree sitting may not hold its glamor for Chicago's youthful enthusiasts when they learn that officials of the Juvenile court have found what may prove to be a cure for the local epidemic.

Upon specific complaint against a specific sitter in a specific tree, the endurance tree sitter may be brought to ground, according to Harry F. Hill, chief probation officer of the Juvenile court, who attended a conference held yesterday to deal with the problem of tree sitting. Others present were Judge George W. Bristow of the Juvenile court; Ralph J. Riley, assistant state's attorney, and Sergt. Joseph F. Healy, in charge of the city's juvenile officers.

"A tree sitter may be brought from his perch on complaint of a reputable citizen," Mr. Hill said. "He will then be taken into court and Judge Bristow will decide if his welfare is being neglected. If necessary, the sitter will be taken into custody."

A dispatch from Toronto, Ont., last night said an order of the Children's Aid society had forbidden tree sitting on the ground that it was injurious to health.

Tree sitters in Chicago, however, were continuing to sit, many of them advertising the wares of neighborhood stores, or sticking it out to please publicity seeking parents. Many letters came to THE TRIBUNE yesterday from commercial concerns and from parents, giving the names and addresses of tree sitters.

MORAN THREAT IS QUOTED IN FOLEY LOTTERY

Gangster's Name Brought Into Inquiry.

Judge John Sbarbaro in the felony court will be asked on Friday to determine whether George [Bugs] Moran, notorious gangster and hoodlum, was an associate of Matt Foley, assistant circulation manager for the Chicago Herald and Examiner and other employés of that paper in the recent Kentucky Derby lottery racket.

Clyde M. Hoffman, 14906 Marshfield avenue, Harvey, chairman of the grievance committee of hundreds of Illinois Central railroad employés, who were fleeced by Foley's racketeering, yesterday brought the name of Al Capone's arch enemy—Moran—into the case in telling of a conversation he had with Roscoe Conkling [Duffy] Cornell, former city editor of the Herald and Examiner and now its circulation manager.

Quoted on Moran.

"I think Bugs Moran is behind this thing," Cornell told us when we went to the Herald and Examiner offices to see why Foley and the others were refusing to pay up on winning tickets," said Hoffman yesterday.

"I told Cornell that I did not think Moran had anything to do with the racket because if he had he would be honorable enough to pay up. However, we will ask the judge to bring Cornell into court to find out what basis he had for making the statement that Moran was behind the lottery."

Hoffman and Michael C. Walsh, Democratic candidate for congress from the second district, also said yesterday that Cornell had advised the men to accept a compromise offer of $5 instead of the $50 that they were supposed to get if they held a winning ticket. The $5 offer was made not only in the presence of Cornell, but also in front of Homer Guck, publisher of the Herald and Examiner, according to the men.

Says Goodman Made Offer.

"The offer of $5 was made by H. Goodman, a Herald and Examiner circulation employé, who devotes most of his time, I am told, in making a handbook on the races," said Hoffman. "The offer of compromise was made on both our visits to the Herald and Examiner executive offices, one in Mr. Guck's office and the other time in Mr. Cornell's office. Cornell told us we ought to accept the $5 offer, but we refused."

"The tickets were distributed through Leo Schoemer, one of the railroad employes," continued Hoffman. "I remember asking Schoemer if the tickets were good or if it was some kind of a racket. He said he got them from Goodman, the Examiner employé and that they were good.

"Cornell was very much interested in the thing when we went to the Examiner offices to complain. Goodman, when called in, would not say anything unless he looked at Cornell first."

Tells of Race Bets.

Hoffman and Walsh said they could not locate Goodman at first, but that Rudolph Trietz, city circulator, brought him in within 10 minutes after the complaint was made by them to Mr. Guck. They said prior to that time they were informed that Goodman met Schoemer every day so that he could take horse race bets placed by the railroad employes.

"We are going to ask our lawyer to subpoena not only Cornell at the next hearing, but also Mr. Guck," said Hoffman.

Foley was still a fugitive from justice yesterday. Sergt. Roy Van Herik, who holds the conspiracy warrant for him, said that he had made repeated trips to Foley's home at 5041 Wilson avenue, without finding the fugitive. He reported that Foley's wife said she has not seen him since last May and that she is now nearly destitute. Foley, however, has been reported in various parts of the city by Walsh and Hoffman.

Two Under $5,000 Bonds.

Schoemer and Goodman are under $5,000 bonds to appear to answer the charge that they conspired with Foley to sell 50,000 or more lottery tickets at 50 cents each. The original scheme was a regulation lottery, but later, it is charged, Foley and his associates decided to racketeer by issuing 50,000 tickets on Dick O'Hara, a horse which it was considered a certainty would not be run in the Derby.

The idea, as outlined in posters calling the racket the "Mid West $25,000 Kentucky Derby Sweepstakes," was that $10,000 would be paid to the holder of the ticket with the winning horse and there would be 11 other prizes from $5,000 down to $100. Holders of tickets on any horse which actually participated in the Derby were to receive $50 each.

JUST A "BOSS NEWSBOY."

The Herald and Examiner of this morning touched on the Foley swindle as follows:

"Some newsboys become great successes and get their names in Who's Who.

"Others run lotteries on horse races and get their names on police warrants.

"Matt Foley, former boss newsboy of the loop for the Herald and Examiner, was in the latter class. Police were looking for Matt yesterday. Matt, it is alleged, ran a lottery on the Kentucky Derby and used newspaper truck drivers and newsboys to sell the tickets.

"When the Herald and Examiner learned of the lottery from purchasers of winning tickets who were unable to collect the sums they claimed they had won Foley was discharged. Victims of the lottery were advised by the Herald and Examiner to take their complaint to the state's attorney's office and seek legal action against the perpetrator of the lottery.

"Dick O'Hara" on Tickets.

"It seems that when Foley heard that Joyce's slow motion horse, Dick O'Hara, was a candidate for the Kentucky Derby he evolved a scheme of playing on the get rich quick emotions of the gullible.

"Accordingly he had printed a large number of lottery tickets promising certain prizes to holders of tickets on the winner and on horses finishing in other positions in the Derby. The tickets even promised to pay $50 to all those possessing tickets containing the name of an actual starter in the Derby. Dick O'Hara's name was on practically every ticket. For who in his right mind would start Dick O'Hara in the Derby? He was sure to finish last.

"But Foley reckoned without Mr. Joyce's sense of humor. Somebody told the owner of the world's slowest Derby candidate of the get rich quick scheme and Mr. Joyce promptly paid the $500 fee, started Dick O'Hara, and upset the wealth making scheme of the pool operator.

WITH SOME DETAILS LACKING.

The "complete details of the Derby pool" which the Herald and Examiner refers to above as having been printed in that paper on June 15 failed to mention Foley or its other employé, Harry Goodman, or the Herald and Examiner, or the complaints from the gang's innumerable victims, or any intended discharge of the racketeers. The following is the text of the "full details" insofar as the article of June 15 discusses the lottery at all:

"A phoney pool was organized to swindle Chicago horse players out of their bank rolls. This pool agreed to pay off on the first three horses to finish and as an extra bonus gave a prize to every ticket holder who drew a horse that even started in the Kentucky Derby. And then they printed the entire pool with the number of Gallant Dick O'Hara on every ticket, figuring that a smart fellow like Pat Joyce would never think of starting such a slow horse in a $50,000 stake race.

"But Pat Joyce was told about the scheme and started Dick O'Hara in the Kentucky Derby. Every ticket holder in the pool thereby held a ticket on Dick O'Hara to start and the pool fellows had to leave town C. O. D."

Druggan Leaves Hospital When He Loses Police Guard

George Druggan, brother of the notorious Terry, yesterday made a mysterious departure from the University hospital, 432 South Lincoln street, where he has been since June 1, when he was severely wounded in the machine gunning of the Fox Lake hotel, in which three of his companions were killed.

The police theory is that he fears for his life. He left an hour after Chief of Detectives John Norton had issued an order removing a police detail that had been guarding his room for seven weeks. It consisted of six men working in pairs, in shifts of eight hours each.

It was 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the detail was called off. It was exactly 3 when a large closed car, with five men inside, drove up to the hospital. Two remained outside, while three went to Druggan's room. He had to be carried down to the car, as he is unable to walk. Machine gun bullets lodged in his spine, and physicians express doubt that he will ever have the use of his legs again.

Hospital authorities said they did not know where he had gone. They described his status as "simply a patient," who if he wanted to leave the institution was at liberty to do so.

Explaining the police detail and his reasons for removing it, Chief Norton said it had originally been assigned at the request of State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county, who had announced at the time of shooting he would hold Druggan as a material witness. Mr. Smith conferred with Chief Norton yesterday and told him he no longer wanted Druggan; that he had questioned him in the hospital and could get no satisfaction.

"So why waste six able bodied policemen?" queried the detective chief.

Cicero

Cicero, the great Roman orator, never lost an opportunity to terminate one of his famous speeches with the fiery exhortation—"Carthage must be destroyed." This phrase, through constant repetition, goes winging through history forever. As modern Ciceros, we too reiterate, but we elect to propound a constructive doctrine, fundamental and indisputable—namely this, and you've heard it before—"Land is the basis of all wealth."

planation of Read's friendship with Capone, revealing that Read, while on vacation in Miami, visited the Capone home four or five times in a single week.

On one occasion Read was invited by Capone to go on an airplane trip to Havana, the American says, and Read accepted, permitting Capone's lawyer to arrange for his passport and passage. The American, pointing out that Read had drawn $300 while he was in Florida, intimated that he had paid his own expenses.

In Havana the entire party was questioned by the police, the American stated, and when it was explained that they merely were visitors all were released.

Another Reporter Involved.

Another feature of Brundidge's story which he was expected to explain to the grand jury concerns the double affiliation of Ted Tod with the Chicago Herald and Examiner, for which he covered the state's attorney's office and Criminal courts, and with the Fairview dog track run by the Aiello-Moran-Zuta gang, for whom he acted as a press agent.

The Herald and Examiner declared there was no mystery about Tod's connection with the gang's dog track, that everybody had known of it. The Herald and Examiner said that Tod had even informed State's Attorney Swanson and Chief Investigator Pat Roche, asking them to give news of the state's attorney's battle to close up the dog tracks to the other reporter for the same paper assigned to that beat.

Brundidge is also expected to reveal the details of a lottery swindle in which Matt Foley, assistant circulation manager of the Herald and Examiner, is said to be a ringleader. Foley is now stated to be a fugitive from justice, warrants having been issued charging him and another member of the Herald and Examiner staff and an outsider with a conspiracy to defraud the purchasers of the lottery tickets.

Foley is charged with having failed to pay prizes to winners in the lottery, which was run in connection with the last Kentucky Derby. A subpoena has been issued for Duffy Cornell, former city editor of the Herald and Examiner, now circulation manager, to appear at the next hearing of the case.

Rittenhouse Will Appear.

State's Attorney Swanson said yesterday that he had appointed his assistant, William H. Rittenhouse, to appear before the grand jury when Brundidge is questioned.

Asked whether evidence concerning the murder of Lingle would also be presented to the grand jury, Mr. Swanson said:

"Something may turn up in one hour, two hours, or six hours, but at present there is nothing we can lay before the grand jury."

Bernard De Vry, foreman of the grand jury, conferred yesterday with Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle of the Criminal court regarding the procedure to be followed in questioning Brundidge.

"So far as I am concerned the Brundidge evidence will be submitted in the same fashion as in any other case," the chief justice said, and he referred the jury foreman to Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Spiro, who is in charge of presenting evidence to the grand jury, for further particulars.

Foreman De Vry and Judge Normoyle were both visited yesterday by Theodore C. Link, reporter for the St. Louis Star, who said that Brundidge would be on hand at the Criminal Court building at 10 or 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Frank Foster, gunman under indictment for the Lingle murder, was lodged in the county jail yesterday. He had been held in a secret place since Saturday morning, when he was returned to Chicago from Los Angeles, where he was captured. During the interim Foster was questioned by Assistant State's Attorneys Charles F. Rathbun and James E. McShane and by Pat Roche, the state's attorney's chief investigator.

Marines Uphold Barker.

Police Lieutenant George Barker, under suspension in connection with the attempt to assassinate Jack Zuta, west side hoodlum, on July 7, when Zuta was riding in Barker's car for protection, was given a vote of confidence by Marine post No. 237 of the American Legion meeting in the Auditorium hotel last night. Lieut. Barker served with the Sixth Marine regiment and was twice wounded in France.

Lieut. Barker is to face the police trial board tomorrow on charges made by Acting Commissioner Alcock, who accuses Barker of being derelict in his duty because he failed to notify his superior of Zuta's plea for protection from gang foes. A bystander was killed when the gunmen opened fire on Zuta.

SWANSON'S POLICE RAID CAFE AND SEIZE TRUCK LOAD OF BEER

Detectives from the staff of Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office, yesterday raided the Lantern café, 756 Waveland avenue, and seized two men and a truck load of beer.

One occupant of the place, who gave the name of Henry Hickman, 30 years old, 1731 West Madison street, tried to escape and jumped from the second story window. He fractured both ankles and was taken to the Bridewell hospital.

John Quinn, 620 Cornelia avenue, believed to be the owner of the place, was also taken into custody. It was stated that the raid conducted by Detectives Fred Joyner, David Levin, and Herbert Seyferlich, was made on information that a load of beer was to be delivered there. The driver of the truck escaped through a volley of shots fired by the detectives. Mr. Roche denied reports that the raid was made as a result of information obtained from Frank Foster, gunman under indictment for the murder of Alfred Lingle, TRIBUNE reporter.

MOTHER CLAIMS BABY DESERTED IN STEVENS HOTEL

She and Grandmother to Face Court Today.

Smiling Jimmie Stevens was clasped again in his mother's arms yesterday after having been for three and a half months the most popular foundling at St. Vincent's Infant asylum. And Jimmie's name isn't Jimmie, either, nor is it Stevens, the name conferred upon him after he was abandoned at the Stevens hotel on April 5. It's Lawrence Lopinot. He is the 14 month old son of Edna Lopinot, 19 years old, who was a third year student at Notre Dame High school near East St. Louis, Ill., when she met the child's father, Leo Gleason.

Lawrence, formerly Jimmie, and his mother were brought together in the East Chicago avenue police station. The baby cooed and smiled at his grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Lopinot. It was Mrs. Lopinot who registered at the Stevens hotel last April: "Mrs. M. Taylor, daughter and child, Detroit, Mich." The grandmother, mother and the foundling again parted company and the two women spent the night in custody of the police. They will face Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden today on a charge of child abandonment.

Mother Faces Questioners.

The mother is a frail little thing who smiled only occasionally as she ran the gantlet of questioners. She wore a simple dress of white and green sprinkled with pink flowers, a plain white hat, brownish silk hose, and plain white pumps. She is not the stylishly dressed daughter of a well dressed woman, as hotel employés described her last April.

The grandmother and mother were calm about the entire matter. They vouchsafed an occasional word of pride in the baby and the declaration that they wanted him forever. Edna, black haired and with well tanned face and arms and well manicured fingernails, hugged the blonde haired child as she posed for photographs, but whatever her feelings, she concealed them.

What about the father? Edna had little to say. He was married and he attacked her. Had she ever been out with him before? No. Did she know he was married? No.

The Grandmother's Story.

"She never met him at our house," said Mrs. Lopinot. "She never told me how she did meet him. Yes, I knew of him and his family. Edna didn't tell me about being attacked. It was four months later when I guessed something was wrong and then she told me about Leo Gleason. He was a bookkeeper. I don't know if he had any children. We never could find him. I heard he left town and I don't know if he took his wife with him.

"My husband was heartbroken when he learned about Edna. He is a driller and he makes $2.80 a day. I went to work and Edna went to work and we got enough money so Edna could go to the hospital. The baby was born in the Central hospital in St. Louis. We named it Lawrence Lopinot, but we didn't have it baptized.

"My husband couldn't afford to keep the child. Edna and I worked and we were able to pay $5 a week for Lawrence's board at St. Anne's orphanage in St. Louis. Then when we couldn't afford the $5 a week we brought the baby to Chicago and left it at the hotel.

"My husband now agrees to our bringing the little fellow home if we may have him. Edna and I can work and keep him now."

Not Concerned About Charge.

Edna was being asked if she would be willing to bring proceedings against Gleason to force him to support the child. She wasn't interested. She wasn't concerned with what Judge Padden might do about the charge of child abandonment. She exhibited mild interest in the problem of whether her child would be restored to her.

There had been a supposition that grandmother and mother had hoped to have the child adopted by a wealthy family by leaving it at one of the city's leading hotels and were disappointed at learning it was kept in a foundlings' home. They said this was not so, they hadn't ever heard what became of Lawrence; hadn't read the many newspaper stories about "Smiling Jimmie Stevens," about the scores of wealthy and prominent persons who wanted to adopt the youngster but couldn't because the law says six months must elapse before an abandoned child may be given to foster parents. No, they had read nothing about "Jimmie Stevens being near death because of bronchial trouble and needing his mother."

Didn't Know Baby Was Ill.

"I would have come to him if I had known he was sick." Edna said, patting the head of the little fellow, who looked healthy enough yesterday.

"Whom does he look like?" Grandmother Lopinot was asked.

"He has her expression, but is the father's picture," she replied.

Miss Bernadine Healy of St. Vincent's, who finally traced Lawrence's past to St. Anne's orphanage, and then induced the grandmother and mother to come to Chicago and claim the child, said an effort would be made to find Gleason, who, the two women said, doesn't know of his son's existence, and bring him to court.

KIDNAPED

Leave Son of Victim in Road as They Speed On.

Peoria, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—William Urban, part owner of the Empire gambling resort, one of the oldest and most elaborate in this vicinity, was kidnaped today by five men and several hours later authorities admitted they had no clews as to his whereabouts.

A rumor that $100,000 ransom had been demanded was denied by Urban's business partner, Frank Daughtery, who said he had received no word from Urban or his kidnapers.

Authorities said they believed the kidnaping was engineered by a gang of Chicago hoodlums run out of their home city by the new police administration and hard put for funds.

Child Spreads Alarm.

With Urban when he was kidnaped was his six year old son, Willard, who had driven with him to a rural freight station near the Urban home. Shortly after they arrived at the station five men drove up in two automobiles and forced Urban at the point of pistols into one car, and put his son in the other. One of the men followed in Urban's car when the kidnapers sped away with their prey towards Galesburg. The child was put out of the car several miles away and he spread the alarm.

A few hours after the kidnaping, a carpenter employed at Urban's home saw Urban's automobile being driven by two strange men towards Peoria, he told police. He was positive in his identification of the car and authorities believe the kidnapers may have had Urban bound on the floor of the car and were planning to hide him here.

Receive No Recent Threat.

So far as authorities could learn, neither Urban nor Daughtery had been threatened recently, although rumors of threats against other gamblers have been heard.

The income from Urban's gambling palace, together with that from a baseball pool operated by him, is reputed to have been as much as $75,000 a month.

Since the first of the year, several gamblers in the St. Louis area in Illinois have been kidnaped and held for ransom, but this is the first time such a kidnaping has occurred here.

Pennies Pay for Auto Trip; Some Left for Next Year

Oquawka, Ill., July 21.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Lumbeck have returned from a twelve day penny motor trip through Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The trip was financed in an unusual manner. They saved every penny they got and started out with eight tobacco cans containing 8,200 pennies. Every item of expense on the trip for oil, gas and food was paid for with pennies. They visited 125 towns and returned with 3,700 pennies, which will be a nucleus for another trip some time in the future.

WITNESS SHOT DOWN ON WAY TO COURT IN COUNTERFEITING CASE

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—Seven men started for the federal court in Brooklyn today to be tried on a charge of conspiring to circulate counterfeit money as the result of a raid on May 28 in which $1,000,000 in bogus twenties and fifties and an elaborate plant and machinery were seized.

One of the seven had promised to turn state's evidence, and he never arrived. Six bullets, four of which entered his body and two his head, while he was on his way caused his absence. He was taken to the Coney Island hospital near death.

He was James De Sapio, 32 years old, who when he was arrested just after the raid was suspected of being the head of the ring, or at least an important member of it.

The other six men came on to court, arriving in considerably less danger of conviction than they had been before De Sapio was shot. When Judge William B. Sheppard heard what had happened he increased their bail, which originally had been set in sums ranging from $3,000 to $15,000 to $50,000 each. None could provide that much, and they all went to jail in defaul.

De Sapio, by regular occupation a salesman of olive oil and cheese, left the home in south Brooklyn, where he lived with his wife and their seven children, shortly after 9 o'clock to go to the court.

On his way to the subway he had come to Coney Island avenue and Seaview avenue. A shiny cheap coupe drew up and one man got out. He stepped up to De Sapio, fired six shots as fast as he could pull the trigger and was in the car and gone before anybody realized what had happened.

VATICAN PAPER RAPS PILGRIMAGE BY METHODISTS

VATICAN CITY, July 21.—(AP)—Observatore Romano, in an editorial today, called the forthcoming pilgrimage of American Methodists to Italy aboard the steamship Conte Grande, which left New York Saturday, a "mistaken pilgrimage."

The paper, which frequently is used by the Vatican for official notices, commends La Tribuna, which published an editorial Saturday criticizing the pilgrimage.

Observatore Romano suggested that instead of visiting Italy, "where every milestone speaks of catholic triumphs," the pilgrims should have decided to visit places in Germany and Switzerland, where protestant leaders lived.

Gotham Tests Out New Stop Light and Likes It

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—The progressive signal light system for crosstown traffic, established experimentally last Friday night and being tested further each day this week, drew today from police officials and civic associations alike expressions of approval. Police Commissioner Mulrooney announced that on Friday he would make known his final decision on whether the new system will be permanently installed in Manhattan. So far, the commissioner said, the system had disclosed a decided improvement in the movement of crosstown traffic.

HOLD RICH MAN FOR MURDER OF CAPITAL GIRL

He Was Accuser of Other -Suspect.

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—The police investigation into the murder last April of Mary Baker, a pretty navy department clerk, took an amazing turn tonight when police charged Herbert M. Campbell, hitherto regarded as the state's principal witness in the case, with being the man who raped and shot the young woman to death on a lonely road on the outskirts of Arlington National cemetery.

It was Campbell, a wealthy Virginia landowner, who set the police on what is now believed to have been a false trail which resulted in the arrest in Montreal last week of Herman H. Barrerre, ex-service man, as the slayer. Barrerre was brought back to Virginia a few days ago and closely questioned, but police stated tonight that the alibi he presented has held up in virtually every respect.

Gun the Chief Clew.

The entire case hinges on the ownership of the murder gun. The weapon was traced to Campbell, but he threw the police off the scent by explaining that Barrerre, who was employed by him, had taken the pistol a day or two before the murder, and later returned it to him.

After grilling the Virginian for hours tonight police authorities announced the evidence offered by him had broken down and a warrant charging him with murder would be sworn out.

"You know we have grilled Campbell since 9 o'clock. Part of his alibi has gone to hell," Commonwealth Attorney Gloth said.

"He still denies he killed Mary Baker. Nevertheless a warrant charging him with the murder will be sworn out and he will be kept in jail.

"He has admitted the gun with which Miss Baker was killed was never out of his possession, and that he brought it to his office himself on Sunday, May 11."

Police said they would question Campbell until they had learned the entire story.

A Brutal Killing.

The body of Miss Baker, the daughter of a clergyman, was found on the morning of April 11 partly stuffed into a culvert just east of Arlington cemetery. She had been choked, shot through the throat and criminally assaulted. Her automobile was found three-quarters of a mile away.

As the murder investigation proceeded, it revealed the seemingly quiet government clerk as a woman of many love affairs with many men. A half dozen suspects who were rounded up readily admitted having made week-end trips with the girl, but all successfully proved alibis as to the murder.

HOODLUM FREED ON BAIL.

Michael ["Bubs"] Quinlan, hoodlum, was released on $100 bail yesterday by the Grand Crossing police. He was charged with disorderly conduct after several persons had failed to identify him as a robber.

COAL DUST FIRE RUINS BUILDINGS WORTH $200,000

Belleville, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—A spectacular fire, supposedly caused by spontaneous combustion in coal dust, destroyed seven buildings of the Superior mine of the Perry Coal company today. The loss was estimated at $200,000.

Eighteen miners were caught 160 feet below the surface by the flames, which raged up and down the hoist and dumping apparatus and main elevator shaft, and were forced to go a mile and a half underground before they emerged to safety through a rear shaft.

Five of them refused to leave the shaft until they had fought two hours and subdued the fire, saving their employers thousands of dollars.

Suspect Is Sent to Rockford for Trial on Robbery Charge

Tommy Abbott, who had been in custody at the detective bureau as a robbery suspect, was smuggled out a rear entrance yesterday and sent to Rockford with Assistant Chief of Police Homer Reed to face a charge of robbery there after being having identified by a robbery victim.

R. M. West, a Milwaukee showman, and his wife were robbed by two men of jewels valued at several thousand dollars in their room at the Wilson hotel in Rockford on May 3. Abbott was one of the holdup men, West said. The day after the robbery, West received several phone calls offering to return the jewels for $3,000. West refused and the calls were traced to Chicago, and West came here to view suspects.

WOMAN KILLED IN CRASH.

Rockford, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Edward Corrigan was killed and her husband and an 8 year old son were seriously injured today when their automobile collided with another machine, two occupants of which suffered minor hurts.

SPECIFY DUTIES OF ENGINEERS IN SUBWAY WORK

McDonough Maps Task of Plan Making.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Ald. McDonough, chairman of the council local transportation committee, in a statement yesterday cleared up some of the uncertainty relative to the engineering organization to plan and build subways.

In the resolution authorizing employment of the staffs, passed at the last council meeting, a group of engineers was first named as an "advisory subway engineering commission to prepare detailed plans, specifications, and estimates of cost." Then Robert Ridgway, chief engineer of the New York transit commission, was "to be associated as special consulting engineer" and "the work" was to be carried on under his general supervision, direction and subject to his approval.

Specific on Responsibility.

Ald. McDonough became more specific. "That there may be no division of responsibility," he said, speaking for his committee, "it is our wish that the final decision on any and all questions relating to the conduct of the work, design, and plans shall rest with him [Ridgway]."

As originally decided, R. F. Kelker Jr. is to be the chief engineer. Under the order of the McDonough committee he has assembled an organization of engineers which has performed a large amount of preliminary subway work. Regarding that phase, Ald. McDonough said, "It is the desire of the committee that this same organization shall continue its work with Maj. Kelker as chief engineer, and that the staff be enlarged so as to complete the estimates and plans as soon as possible."

Coöperate with Ridgway.

The advisory commission, Ald. McDonough explained, will act in an advisory capacity and coöperate with Mr. Ridgway. The members of the commission are George M. Wisner, George C. D. Lenth, Edward J. Noonan, David A. Wallace, and R. F. Kelker, the latter as chief engineer.

It was reported recently that Mr. Wisner would decline the chairmanship if tendered him, but Ald. McDonough offered him the position yesterday and he accepted. All of these engineers spent yesterday in Maj. Kelker's office.

Engineers Discuss Procedure.

"We spent the day discussing questions of procedure and fundamental questions affecting subways," said Mr. Ridgway later, with Maj. Kelker present. Asked when subway construction will probably be started, he went on: "This is a pioneer job for Chicago and I must know more before answering that question. So far as the engineering problems are concerned, they are complicated and require careful consideration.

"Plans can not be made over night. Half baked plans will lead to difficulties and delay. The more care bestowed on the plans makes for more speed in construction. With an intensive study, we should be able to start at a relatively early date."

President Faherty of the board of local improvements was present at the morning session. Ald. Bowler later said that "Mr. Faherty indicated every desire to fully coöperate." In the afternoon Mr. Faherty drove out to McHenry to see Ald. McDonough, who has been ill for three days at his summer home. McDonough said last night that Mr. Faherty was "anxious to cooperate" and get work started. McDonough added over the phone: "Faherty said that the only trouble he will cause will be about any unnecessary delay."

McDonough's statement assigning the work to the engineers was read to them yesterday and they appeared to take the orders cheerfully.

Today Mr. Ridgway will confer with Attorney Walter L. Fisher on various legal phases of subway planning.

SECRETARY HURLEY UPHOLDS PURCHASE OF FOREIGN MEATS

Washington, D. C., July 21.—(Special)—Secretary Hurley ruled today that in purchasing beef for consumption in Philippine and Hawaiian stations the army must do so on the basis of lowest bids and not upon considerations of whether the bids were submitted by Americans or foreigners. In a statement the secretary pointed out the difficulties of supplying meats in the Philippine and other distant stations and said the use of cheaper beef obtained through lower bids saved some $300,000 annually.

WIFE WINS LOVE SUIT AGAINST MRS. EISENBRAND

Mrs. Doris Eisenbrand, 1360 Scott avenue, Hubbard Woods, who 13 years ago shot and killed her husband, Dr. George Eisenbrand, a dentist, yesterday was ordered by Superior Judge Kern to pay $25,000 to Mrs. Mary A. Prins, 1955 Foster avenue. Mrs. Prins sued Mrs. Eisenbrand for alienating the affections of her husband, E. Paul Prins, an architect.

Mrs. Prins charged that her husband was wooed from her in 1924 by Mrs. Eisenbrand. For four years the architect's wife pleaded with her husband and the other woman to give up their companionship, but Mrs. Eisenbrand refused, according to Mrs. Prins. Prins and his wife separated in 1928, shortly before the suit was filed.

Mrs. Eisenbrand shot her husband in his office in the Republic building on Sept. 11, 1917. When persons in the building entered the room they saw her standing over the body, into which she had fired four bullets, crying hysterically and calling her husband's name.

Mrs. Eisenbrand later declared she remembered nothing of the shooting. One of the principal points of her defense was that her husband had had friendships with other women. She was acquitted.

"My solution to the problem of cleansing without irritation is—Palmolive Soap . . . I feel especially safe in using and recommending Palmolive, because I know that no oils are used in it except vegetable oils. Olive and palm oils have actual cosmetic value in themselves and they are very desirable ingredients in a soap."

Marguerite Hoare

An interview with Marguerite Hoare, of London on the relation of soap to beauty

Why soap is essential—and which soap to choose . . . answered by adviser to women of exclusive social and diplomatic circles.

WHEN women of importance choose a beauty expert in a strange city, they make their choice with some care. During the Naval Conference in London, the wives of the delegates consulted women in diplomatic circles. Who took care of the wives of ambassadors and ladies of distinguished British families? . . . they asked. "Marguerite Hoare, of Mayfair," was the answer.

Miss Hoare's salon at 19 South Wolton Street is one of the world's important beauty shops. Here, Miss Hoare recently gave an interview on home beauty methods that will be of genuine interest to every woman.

Wives of ambassadors and distinguished members of society come to Miss Hoare for advice and beauty treatments.

Miss Hoare's advice

"When not enough soap and water is used," said this prominent expert, "one risks oiliness, blackheads and similar disfigurements. When the wrong soap is used, one suffers dryness, roughness, irritation, injured skin texture.

"My solution to the problem of cleansing without irritation is—Palmolive Soap. Palmolive is a delightful soap to use—bland, soothing and gentle. Yet its soft lather has wonderful cleansing properties. It softens and carries away all impurities from the pores.

"I feel especially safe in using and recommending Palmolive, because I know that no oils are used in it except vegetable oils. Olive and palm oils have actual cosmetic value in themselves, and they are very desirable ingredients in a soap."

A very simple treatment

The Palmolive method of home cleansing is so easy to follow. Here it is, as outlined by specialists all over the world:

First, massage a rich lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water tenderly into the skin, letting it penetrate the pores for a minute or two. Note how creamy, how soft and gentle, is the lather made by this olive and palm oil soap.

Now, rinse off the soap with plenty of warm water, then colder and colder, until your skin actually tingles.

Your complexion should be cleansed this safe, thorough, refreshing way night and morning.

This Palmolive cleansing is the method advised by Marguerite Hoare of London, who advocates and uses Palmolive Soap in all her beauty treatments. The same method is recommended today by 23,723 beauty experts all over the world, who in all their experience have found no better, safer method. So, when your own beauty expert advises Palmolive cleansing, you may be sure she has excellent background for her statements.

Night and morning cleansing is indispensable to a clear, fine skin, beauty authorities agree.

The twice-daily cleansing should consist of massage with a rich lather of Palmolive and warm water, followed by thorough rinsing.

"We spent the day discussing questions of procedure and fundamental questions affecting subways," said Mr. Ridgway later, with Maj. Kelker present. Asked when subway construction will probably be started, he went on: "This is a pioneer job for Chicago and I must know more before answering that question. So far as the engineering problems are concerned, they are complicated and require careful consideration.

"Plans can not be made over night. Half baked plans will lead to difficulties and delay. The more care bestowed on the plans makes for more speed in construction. With an intensive study, we should be able to start at a relatively early date."

President Faherty of the board of local improvements was present at the morning session. Ald. Bowler later said that "Mr. Faherty indicated every desire to fully coöperate." In the afternoon Mr. Faherty drove out to McHenry to see Ald. McDonough, who has been ill for three days at his summer home. McDonough said last night that Mr. Faherty was "anxious to cooperate" and get work started. McDonough added over the phone: "Faherty said that the only trouble he will cause will be about any unnecessary delay."

McDonough's statement assigning the work to the engineers was read to them yesterday and they appeared to take the orders cheerfully.

Today Mr. Ridgway will confer with Attorney Walter L. Fisher on various legal phases of subway planning.

SECRETARY HURLEY UPHOLDS PURCHASE OF FOREIGN MEATS

Washington, D. C., July 21.—(Special.)—Secretary Hurley ruled today that in purchasing beef for consumption in Philippine and Hawaiian stations the army must do so on the basis of lowest bids and not upon considerations of whether the bids were submitted by Americans or foreigners. In a statement the secretary pointed out the difficulties of supplying meats in the Philippine and other distant stations and said the use of cheaper beef obtained through lower bids saved some $300,000 annually.

WIFE WINS LOVE SUIT AGAINST MRS. EISENBRAND

Mrs. Doris Eisenbrand, 1360 Scott avenue, Hubbard Woods, who 13 years ago shot and killed her husband, Dr. George Eisenbrand, a dentist, yesterday was ordered by Superior Judge Kern to pay $25,000 to Mrs. Mary A. Prins, 1955 Foster avenue. Mrs. Prins sued Mrs. Eisenbrand for alienating the affections of her husband, E. Paul Prins, an architect.

Mrs. Prins charged that her husband was wooed from her in 1924 by Mrs. Eisenbrand. For four years the architect's wife pleaded with her husband and the other woman to give up their companionship, but Mrs. Eisenbrand refused, according to Mrs. Prins. Prins and his wife separated in 1928, shortly before the suit was filed.

Mrs. Eisenbrand shot her husband in his office in the Republic building on Sept. 11, 1917. When persons in the building entered the room they saw her standing over the body, into which she had fired four bullets, crynig hysterically and calling her husband's name.

Mrs. Eisenbrand later declared she remembered nothing of the shooting. One of the principal points of her defense was that her husband had had friendships with other women. She was acquitted.

"My solution to the problem of cleansing without irritation is — Palmolive Soap . . . I feel especially safe in using and recommending Palmolive, because I know that no oils are used in it except vegetable oils. Olive and palm oils have actual cosmetic value in themselves and they are very desirable ingredients in a soap."

Marguerite Hoare

An interview with Marguerite Hoare, of London on the relation of soap to beauty

Why soap is essential—and which soap to choose . . . answered by adviser to women of exclusive social and diplomatic circles.

WHEN women of importance choose a beauty expert in a strange city, they make their choice with some care. During the Naval Conference in London, the wives of the delegates consulted women in diplomatic circles. Who took care of the wives of ambassadors and ladies of distinguished British families? . . . they asked. "Marguerite Hoare, of Mayfair," was the answer.

Miss Hoare's salon at 19 South Wolton Street is one of the world's important beauty shops. Here, Miss Hoare recently gave an interview on home beauty methods that will be of genuine interest to every woman.

Wives of ambassadors and distinguished members of society come to Miss Hoare for advice and beauty treatments.

Miss Hoare's advice

"When not enough soap and water is used," said this prominent expert, "one risks oiliness, blackheads and similar disfigurements. When the wrong soap is used, one suffers dryness, roughness, irritation, injured skin texture.

"My solution to the problem of cleansing without irritation is—Palmolive Soap. Palmolive is a delightful soap to use—bland, soothing and gentle. Yet its soft lather has wonderful cleansing properties. It softens and carries away all impurities from the pores.

"I feel especially safe in using and recommending Palmolive, because I know that no oils are used in it except vegetable oils. Olive and palm oils have actual cosmetic value in themselves, and they are very desirable ingredients in a soap."

A very simple treatment

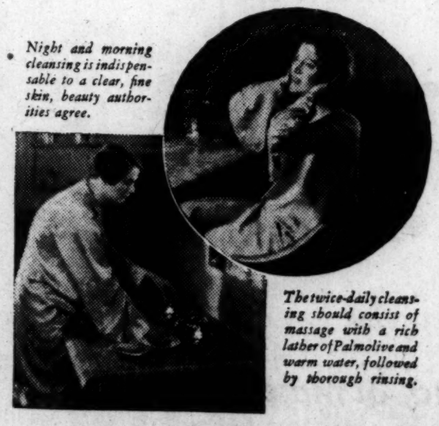
The Palmolive method of home cleansing is so easy to follow. Here it is, as outlined by specialists all over the world:

First, massage a rich lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water tenderly into the skin, letting it penetrate the pores for a minute or two. Note how creamy, how soft and gentle, is the lather made by this olive and palm oil soap.

Now, rinse off the soap with plenty of warm water, then colder and colder, until your skin actually tingles.

Your complexion should be cleansed this safe, thorough, refreshing way night and morning.

This Palmolive cleansing is the method advised by Marguerite Hoare of London, who advocates and uses Palmolive Soap in all her beauty treatments. The same method is recommended today by 23,723 beauty experts all over the world, who in all their experience have found no better, safer method. So, when your own beauty expert advises Palmolive cleansing, you may be sure she has excellent background for her statements.



Night and morning cleansing is indispensable to a clear, fine skin, beauty authorities agree.

The twice-daily cleansing should consist of massage with a rich lather of Palmolive and warm water, followed by thorough rinsing.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—This country's newest "major industry" is considering joining hands with the movies and growing up. Miniature golf, which has swept the country like a heat wave, is getting ready to move into neighborhood motion picture houses that it darkened. The move, it was learned today, will not be made until late fall when the cool breezes begin to blow, thereby providing winter quarters for the vacant lot golf courses and turning unprofitable theaters into "country clubs."

At the offices here of the Miniature Golf Course of America, Inc., it was learned that Warner Brothers, Fox, and Famous Players are negotiating for rights to equip certain of their houses with indoor golf courses and in other instances to construct courses adjacent to their theaters, eliminate "sidewalk standers" and hold the patrons for a later show.

Operating Out West.

Fox, it is said, has the most ambitious idea for the golf-movie merger. Representatives of the organization admitted this afternoon that the first "Fox indoor country club" would be opened "near Broadway" late in August. On the west coast, Fox already has a share in several outdoor tiny golf courses operating on lots next to the movie houses.

Warner Brothers executives when questioned said they were interested in miniature golf, but that no definite plan of any kind had been made.

The reason for the prospective alliance between the putter and the talkie, it was explained by movie men, was that in many neighborhoods the golf craze has cut attendance at the theaters by almost 25 per cent. By joining hands with the golf interests the movie men believe they can win back their losses from darkened houses on which they hold long leases.

Number Estimated at 25,000.

The extent to which the vest pocket golfing craze has grown this summer is apparent when conservative estimates place the number of courses at 25,000. Of this number 3,000 are factory made. The miniature golf course of America, with its affiliated companies, the Tom Thumb courses, Inc., and a pipe products company control the patents on the factory-made playgrounds.

Outdoor miniature golf was born four years ago just off Wall street in downtown Manhattan. John N. Leadbetter and Drake de Lanoy owned a course with grass fairways and sand greens on which brokers relaxed during the noon hour. They began to experiment and just happened to hit upon cottonseed hulls. The miniature links spread to Long Beach and then to Florida and other southern resorts. Finally they became popular throughout the country. In the last five weeks, Leadbetter said, his organization had sold international patent permits to Australia, Germany, France, and England.

Wean Away Night Clubbers.

There are now 240 factory-made miniature golf courses in New York and probably twice that many "pirated" courses. There are only a few in Manhattan. Most of them are in the suburbs or strung out along the main highways to the various beaches. A lot of folks who used to play the night clubs are playing these courses.

Both Leadbetter and De Lanoy are still in their twenties, but when they buy putters they buy them in 300,000 lots. They have a production manager who looks after such things.

Physician Dies

DR. VESPER SHAFFER.

Dr. Vesper Shaffer, 66 years old, of 2258 North Central Park avenue, a practicing physician in Chicago for many years, died yesterday morning at the Woman's and Children's hospital, Ashland and Maypole avenues. She was a member of that institution's obstetrical staff. She served her interneship there when it was the Mary Thompson hospital.

Dr. Shaffer was born in Williamsfield, Knox county, Ill., July 22, 1864. She attended St. Mary's college there. She was later graduated from Northwestern university with an M. D. degree. She was one of the first Chicago physicians to use "twilight sleep."

Surviving her are two brothers and two sisters, Benjamin N. and James A. Shaffer, and Mrs. Celestia S. Potts-Colby, all of Williamsfield, Ill., and Mrs. Letta S. Brown of Watertown, S. D. The body will be taken to Williamsfield for burial beside Dr. Shaffer's parents.

MISSING WIFE RETURNS; MERELY ON A VACATION

Gary, Ind., July 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Helen Edge, 22 years old, for whom police had conducted a search since June 17, because of her mother's suspicions of foul play, returned to her home and husband late today. Edward Edge, the husband, had just been discharged from Mercy hospital where he was a pneumonia patient for two weeks. Mrs. Edge said she had taken a vacation trip alone through the east, driving back to Gary over the week-end from New York. The police had planned to question Mr. Edge about his wife's disappearance, but last Friday they received a message saying she was safe.

TELLS WHY JOBS ARE SCARCE FOR WOMEN PAST 40

They Complain Too Much, Investigator Says.

At its recent gathering in Chicago the national board of the Federation of Business and Professional Women appointed Dr. Lilliam Gilbreth, noted industrial engineer, to conduct a survey to determine why employers are loath to hire women over 40 years old. A starting point for the survey is contained in a communication which Dr. H. Lucile Long, chiropodist, has asked to have forwarded to Dr. Gilbreth.

While temporarily incapacitated by illness for carrying on her on profession, Dr. Long relates, she was interested to discover that even women of 30 and over had difficulty in obtaining new positions. Finally she became associated with an employment agency handling only clerical positions, and made a specialty of placing the older woman with years of experience.

Complain Too Much, She Says.

"I very soon realized," she says, "that I would starve if I continued. Employers did not want and would not have the 'older' girls. I have reached a point where I do not blame them. Of course there are exceptions, but here are some of the reasons:

"They complain about ventilation; they complain about the lights; they complain about working overtime; they constantly try to improve the system or methods by telling how things were done somewhere else, where they worked; they see subtle meanings to remarks of the men; some 'pretty, young' girl gets all the 'breaks'; all the heavy, hard work is being shoved on them; the boss swears; the girls 'talk about' them; the typewriter is old and rickety, and so forth.

What Employers Say.

"The office managers claim the older girls all have one or more of these 'kicks,' and by questioning older applicants I find them to be correct. Employers complain that older girls figure that their years of experience entitle them to soft snaps, whereas the young girls pitch in and work hard, or get more work done with less effort.

"I could cite numerous instances where, after successfully placing older girls, they have come back to complain of some trivial thing that would be laughed off by a younger girl. It is a shame that all older women must suffer for the faults of some, but at least three-fourths of the older girls are out of work due to faults of their own. The other fourth are out due to the faults of the three-fourths."

KURD TRIBESMEN DEFEAT TURKS IN PRIMITIVE BATTLE

Trap Troops in Own Fort; Take Many Prisoners.

BY H. BASIL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Persia, July 21.—Bloody fighting between Turkish troops and Kurdish tribesmen around the base of the historic Mount Ararat, with an ultimate victory for the half savage marauders, who took a rich booty of ammunition, horses, and supplies and then forced their captives to undergo humiliating work while being stripped of most of their clothing, was told in reports reaching Persia tonight from the frontier.

The heavy fighting lasted three days. The Turks defended the fort of Bornusor, on Bayezid heights, with a strong force of well equipped heavy artillery. But they finally capitulated after their commander-in-chief and a number of officers were killed in action.

Turkish Planes Helpless.

During the march back into the mountain fastness of the Kurdish tribes, Turkish planes soared helplessly overhead, fearing to drop bombs because of the danger of hitting their own men who were marching as prisoners into the impenetrable hills.

The Kurds, giving way to barbaric frenzy in their victory, took the clothing from the Turkish soldiery and forced them to transfer, by foot or any way they could, all the spoils taken in the battle. The booty consisted of all kinds of arms, according to reports from Bayezid, as well as provisions, tents, and ammunition.

The fort was completely cut off from all hope of rescue as the Kurds slowly closed in, fighting the mountain variety of warfare which they are taught in childhood. There is no accurate estimate of the fatalities, but the fortification instead of serving as a defense for the Turks, became a trap in which the Kurds held them until they were forced to surrender.

Send Punitive Expedition.

A strong punitive expedition has been sent out to wreak vengeance on the marauders, who have carried on guerilla warfare for months, marauding the Turks and inciting tribesmen to revolution. The expedition is reported to be marching on Bayezid from the Turkish Fort Kars. A Turkish victory, with big losses to the Kurds, near Van Lake has been disputed in later reports.

This outbreak follows in the wake of Persian successes in quelling the Kurds after the reappearance of the nomad chieftain Semitko, who slipped back into the mountains from Turkey as the uprising gained force. The long Persian campaign against the Shakak tribe, which ended with his flight, was promised to have a bloody renewal when it was learned that he had again taken command and was plotting a general uprising with the Persian Kurds.

A secret advance was made into the hills after all passes and any other possible means of escape were cut off, and the Persian leaders ordered him to surrender his person and his tribe's arms on the pain of annihilation.

Semitko refused, and the circle closed in. Semitko was killed, many of his followers were wounded, and others escaped into the mountains, pursued by soldiers. The Persian soldiers were ordered to take special care of Kurdish women and children who remained in the deserted camps.

CHICHERIN RESIGNS AS FOREIGN MINISTER OF RUSSIA; IN ILL HEALTH

MOSCOW, July 21.—(AP)—Georges Chicherin, soviet commissar for foreign affairs, resigned his post today and his resignation was accepted by the central executive committee. He had a brilliant record as a statesman.

The resignation has been reported imminent for many months because of the commissar's ill health. After treatment at Wiesbaden in Germany, he returned to Moscow early in June, and his retirement was then definitely forecast.

A new lineup was presented at the commissariat for foreign affairs as a result. Maxim Litvinoff, who for some time has been acting commissar, was appointed to succeed Chicherin.

Nikolai Nikolaevich Krestinsky, present soviet ambassador to Berlin, was appointed first vice commissar in place of Litvinoff, and Lev Makailovich Karakhan second vice commissar. The board at the commissariat will consist of Krestinsky, Karakhan, and Boris Stomoniako.

Chicherin, although of noble birth, became one of the leaders of soviet Russia soon after the revolution which ended the rule of the czars. His diplomatic moves kept Europe guessing for years.

As commissar of foreign affairs in the new government, Chicherin forwarded the Russian memorandum of May 11, 1922 which repudiated all debts engendered by the Czarist government previous to the revolution. He also engineered the treaty of Rapallo with Germany during the ill-fated Genoa conference, it which the allies sought to fix Russia's status.

Confirm Deaths of 4,000 Children in Russian Camp

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, July 21.—The report of the death of 4,000 children from a typhoid epidemic in a concentration camp for German colonists in the Ural mountains was confirmed by letters received here today. Baltic Lutheran churches yesterday offered prayers for the deliverance of both German and Lettish colonists from "the anti-Christ communist government in Russia."

MIXUP OF BABES STILL PUCKERS BROW OF SCIENCE

But Specialists Believe They Can Solve Problem

I marked them myself," she said.

Chief hope for positive identification of the babies lay in the taking of fingerprints and toe prints, which will be performed by Mr. Watzek. Parents and children have markings closely similar, he said. Dr. Deutsch may find hereditary influences in eye conditions, he said.

Profile photographs were studied by the experts. Both the babies showed receding chins, short upper lips, tip-tilted noses, and sloping forehcads.

Both pairs of parents conferred with Dr. Kegel and the parents' attorney, John P. Loughnane, in the commissioner's office last night. It was decided that they would not bring damage suits against the hospital, as had been contemplated, until the parentage of the babies was determined by the scientists.

Mothers Sure of Babies.

Said Mrs. Bamberger, bending over her black haired infant as he consumed a belated supper: "I certainly know that this is my baby—at least, the baby I had all the time I was in the hospital. Of course, though, I'd like to know if he's mine, or if I never did get mine."

Said Mrs. Watkins, sitting next to her, cuddling her black haired infant: "You couldn't fool me on mine, either. This baby has a distinct personality even if it is only three weeks old today."

At that Baby Watkins, or Bamberger, as the case may be, yawned.

"I'm inclined to think I have the right baby, with the wrong name on his back," Mr. Watkins said.

A. E. Paul, hospital superintendent, could not be found at the hospital or at his home, and it was not revealed where he was.

CAPT. CHRISTIAN GROSS, WAR HERO, SEEKS DIVORCE

Attorney Robert Cantwell Jr. revealed last night that Capt. Christian Gross, former Chicagoan, clubman and polo player and a world war hero, had filed suit for divorce against his wife, Mrs. Virginia Harrison Gross, daughter of Burton Harrison, former governor of the Philippines. The two were married there in 1926. He names a co-respondent, "a Spaniard, Alberti, who promised to put her in grand opera in six months."

Capt. Gross, at present secretary of the American legation in Berne, Switzerland, also seeks to have set aside a separation agreement he made with Mrs. Gross in Paris in 1928, which purports to give her $250,000 of an $830,000 trust fund, and custody of their son, Peter. He says a Paris attorney re-wrote the agreement without his knowledge. Mrs. Gross brought suit in New York to compel him to abide by its terms, but a Supreme court referee held courts there had no jurisdiction as the captain's legal residence is still Chicago.

In the world war Capt. Gross organized the first American hospital unit. Later, when this country entered, he served with its armed forces. He has a D. S. C., a British military cross, and six other decorations for valor.

keep cool

IF YOU are well, your body will keep itself cool. If you are sick, it will get hot—even sometimes into a fever. "Feeling the heat" is often a sign that you are not a hundred per cent well. Your doctor will tell you that the most important way to keep well is to clean out of your body regularly and naturally (not with powerful habit-forming drugs) the poisons that make you feel sick. We all have them. They're just as natural as ashes in a fire! If you let them stay in your body even a short time, however, you lose your appetite, feel dopey and headachy, and everything just goes plumb wrong. Internal lubrication such as you get with Nujol (colorless and tasteless as pure water) is what your body probably needs. Is it worth trying? Millions of other people all over the world use Nujol regularly, and you couldn't get them to use anything else. They know how it puts sunshine into their lives. Why don't you find out how it feels to be really well? Get yourself a crystal-clear bottle of Nujol this very day and join the folks who get a real kick out of existence!

RUMANIA CABINET MINISTER SHOT BY YOUNG STUDENT

Blame for Attack Put on Persecutors of Jews.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 21.—Because Undersecretary of State Constantin Angelescu favors fair and equal treatment of minorities living in Rumanian territory, George Beza, a Nationalist student, fired a number of shots at him this noon in the office of the ministry of interior.

Hand Petition to Minister.

The assassin entered the office with two other students and handed to Angelescu a petition asking financial support for Rumanians in Dobrudja. The petition was signed by the Society of Awakening Rumanian Youth, an anti-semitic organization.

As M. Angelescu began reading the petition, Beza started shooting. The assassin and his two companions attempted to escape, but they were caught at the doors of the ministry. The first answer Beza gave to the police was:

"I did it in order to end the national shame of this country. I have started something. You will see what will happen yet."

Find Literature in Room.

In the little room where Beza lived, manuscripts, manifestos, and the anti-semetic newspaper, Iron Guard, were discovered.

Thousands of anti-semitic pamphlets were secretly distributed through Bucharest today, inciting the population to destroy all Jewish property. The police late this evening arrested four more students on suspicion that they are members of the assassin's gang.

Meanwhile, the government is taking the strictest measures against the anti-semitic rioters. Two priests were arrested in the village of Borsa on charges of agitating for the recent riots. Eight peasants received six months in prison for participation in the riots.

Troops Pour Into Bukowina.

VIENNA, Austria, July 21.—(AP)—A situation reminiscent of the war days prevails on the principal roads and highways of the Maramuresh and South Bukowina districts leading to Bessarabia, the Jewish Telegraphic agency reported today.

Strong military detachments are arriving in connection with the anti-Semitic peasants' movement, which is spreading from Bukowina to Bessarabia, and the march of the anti-semitic youth organization, "Iron Guard."

All railway bridges leading to Bessarabia, particularly those in and around Jassy and Radauti, are in control of troops in view of the attempts being made by the "Iron Guard" to invade Bessarabia. The nationalistic youth organization, led by M. Codreanu, is chiefly composed of school boys and college students.

Put Down Agitators.

Similar stringent measures are being taken by the authorities, local and national, to control the tour of the country now being made by Dania and Nicolai Totu, anti-Semetic agitators. The refusal of local officials to grant permission to these two to stop off at various towns has partly quieted the alarmed Jewish population.

FATHER ADMITS HE DROWNED HIS THREE CHILDREN

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 21.—(AP)—The bodies of three small children of Taylor Hott, 35, Martinsburg laborer, were found today in the water of a quarry hole into which the father later confessed, county authorities said, he pushed them last night.

Hott's statements that he killed the children, Gertrude Virginia, 7, Calvin W., 6, and Floyd, 5, by drowning them and was prompted to do so because his wife was unable to care for them were doubted by officials. Hott was out of work.

Autopsies indicated, they said, that the children were killed before being hurled in the quarry hole. C. N. Campbell, assistant prosecuting attorney of Berkeley county, also said that pieces of cloth tied around the children's throats indicated they had been strangled whereas Hott related in his confession that he tied the cloths over the children's mouth to prevent outcries.

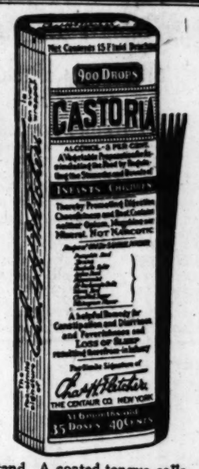
Restless Children



Children will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always one sure way to comfort a restless, fretful child. Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than some powerful medicine that is meant for the stronger systems of adults.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is any need. In cases of colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. But it has everyday uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed to set everything to rights. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

is the only automatic refrigerator that freezes without noise

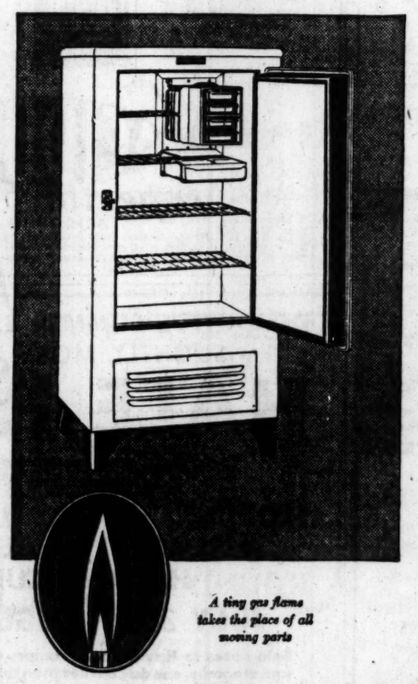
ONE of the beauties of Electrolux is that it never gets on your nerves. Live with it a lifetime, yet its perfect silence never changes. The years can't make it noisy.

The silence of Electrolux is natural. Artificial deadeners of sound play no part in this silence. Spring suspensions, live rubber mountings, sealed housings—Electrolux uses none of them, for it needs none. With not a single mechanical part there's nothing about this automatic refrigerator to wear, to vibrate, to cause friction—and hence nothing to make noise.

Free from trouble

Another advantage of this simplicity is the freedom from trouble, from mechanical repairs, which it insures you. There are no valves, no moving parts. Merely a solid welded one-piece steel unit, through which the refrigerant circulates by means of the heat from a tiny gas flame. Should the gas flame ever go out, for any reason, no harm is done—the gas shuts off automatically until you light it again. Even the refrigerant that Electrolux uses is permanently and hermetically sealed in solid metal. It never needs renewal.

The action is simplicity itself. Light it and forget it—that sums up Electrolux. With not a thing to wear out, scientists can't even predict an end to the life of Electrolux. It should last indefinitely.



A tiny gas flame takes the place of all moving parts

The cost of operation is one of the best things about this newest and finest of all automatic refrigerators. Electrolux is not an expense, not a luxury. The family that has to count the pennies is the family that needs this refrigerator most. For Electrolux is the world's cheapest means of keeping food, of having ice. A few pennies a day. A dollar or two a month—no more than half what you pay for ice right now. You can see what an economy Electrolux is, how quickly it will pay for itself.

QUICK FACTS!
1. Permanently noiseless.
2. Absolutely safe.
3. Only a few cents a day to operate.
4. Lasts indefinitely.
5. No mechanism to wear, to vibrate, to need oil.
6. Free from trouble.
7. Perpetual, steady cold.
8. Plenty of pure ice cubes.
9. Tested and endorsed by national authorities.

Liberal purchase terms

Before you think of buying any automatic refrigerator, see Electrolux. At the nearest display room you will find a complete range of sizes and models, in white and color, at prices from $195 to $430 f. o. b. Evansville. Purchase price is about the same, size for size, as the prices of mechanical refrigerators. But the operating cost is much less. And terms so liberal are offered that there is no reason why you should not start enjoying the comfort, the convenience and the economy of Electrolux right away.

100 Hurt in Riot Against Actions of King.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 21.—(AP)—Four persons were killed, one hundred injured, and five hundred arrested in riots here today. In Port Said, Suez, and Alexandria minor riots occurred.

The Wafdist or Nationalist party had made Cairo the storm center of their protest against the suspension of parliament and against the manner in which Premier Sidky Pasha is running the country.

The four who were killed were members of a mob which barricaded a street near Abdin palace and the public buildings. Among those arrested were various members of the local Wafd committee.

Police Fire on Mob.

The rioters could be dispersed by the local police and Egyptian troops only after firearms had been brought into play on two occasions. Police and military casualties numbered 2 officers and 28 men wounded.

The cause of the disorders was the announcement that the followers of former Premier Nahas Pasha had called off their proposed "outlaw" parliament session. The mob vented its fury by ripping up lamp posts, barricading a street, and setting fire to an escaping gas column.

From Port Said it was reported that 20 rioters and 16 police were injured in a clash there. Although there were demonstrations at Suez also, nothing of a serious nature occurred in that city.

Alexandria remained quiet throughout most of the day, but most of the shops were closed. As an extra precaution the troops and police drew a cordon around the Arab quarter, cutting it off from communication with the European section. Having learned that stones were freely employed during the riots there, the Alexandria police appeared with wicker shields as a protection against stone throwers.

Toll of Riot Is 19.

LONDON, July 21.—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Henderson informed the house of commons today that 19 persons, including one Italian, were killed during the recent disturbances in Egypt. Of those killed, ten were policemen, he said.

Fifty civilians are still in hospitals, while 29 policemen and 65 civilians are at their homes suffering from injuries. The Egyptian army reported four officers and four men wounded, of whom one officer was in a serious condition.

Charges Innocents Suffer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 21.—A statement was made on the Egyptian situation at the interparliamentary congress session today by Mjram Pasha, finance minister of Egypt. He declared that in Egypt today a struggle is going on between brutal autocracy and democracy, and that innocent blood is being shed.

For the fourth time in five years, he said, the Egyptian parliament has been suspended and the people goaded beyond endurance. Constitutional rights have been defaced at the price of blood, he declared.

"Parliament Still Lives."

"The parliamentary system has come to stay in Egypt," declared Majram Pasha. "and 75 per cent of the electors are ready to lay down their lives to defend it. Life is not worth living unless it is worth dying for. The Egyptian parliament is not dead. Long live the Egyptian parliament!"

It was rumored here today that negotiations are going on between Nahas Pasha, leader of the Wafdist party, to induce King Fuad to summon parliament.

CHEERS GREET NEGRO GOLD STAR MOTHERS IN PARIS

Jazz Band Plays Martial and Lively Music.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 21.—Fifty-five American Negro gold star mothers, on their way to visit the graves of their sons, today got their first glimpse of Paris.

It was a little after 2 o'clock this afternoon when the special train bearing the mothers from Cherbourg pulled in at the Gare Invalides, the ritziest railway station the city possesses, and which is traditionally reserved for visiting royalty and such. Clustered in front of the station along the sun washed esplanade, under the shadow of the gilt dome of the Invalides, was a crowd of several hundred Americans and French.

Greeted by Negro Band.

As the mothers, conducted by army officers, climbed up the steps leading to the street, there was the blare of music and the strains of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," played by a band of Negro jazz players from the Montmartre.

At the door of the station the mothers met an impromptu welcoming committee composed of Negro girls who dance in the Montmarte cabarets. Each mother was presented with a little bouquet of flowers and an enthusiastic hug. Col. O. B. Davis, one of the highest ranking American Negro officers, looking very dignified with his carefully trimmed beard, was similarly greeted by the impulsive dancers. Then the band struck up with the "Star Spangled Banner" and the "Marseillaise."

Plan to Entertain Mothers.

While the mothers, blinking in the sunlight and dazzled by the splendor of Paris, climbed into chartered busses, the band really got down to business. The players struck up a roaring jazz tune, "Happy Days." The aristocratic and aged duchesses in the nearby boulevard St. Germaine, raised their windows and listened with astonishment to what was probably the first jazz ever heard in that sedate quarter of the town.

Then, amid frantic cheering and waving of handkerchiefs, the busses pulled out for the hotels. An extensive program of entertainment is planned for the Negro mothers, one of the most important features of which will be a "real southern feed," with corn on the cob, fried chicken, and watermelon, for which the entire country is now being combed.

Hunter Brothers to Appear on California Airfields

TYPHOON DEATH TOLL IN COREA MOUNTS TO 258

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, July 21.—With communication facilities completely restored in the storm areas of southern Japan and Corea, the official figures given out by the home ministry at noon today show that the death and destruction was greatest in Corea where the number of dead has been placed at 258 and the injured at 155, with the missing at 253. The number of houses destroyed in Corea was 5,410.

Damage from the storm in southern Japan is placed at about $50,000,000, the greatest damage being prefecture Nagazaki. The total number of deaths in Japan is reported to be 62, with 268 injured and 26 missing.

The number of houses completely destroyed was 4,982, and the number of others damaged was 5,604.

TODAY AGE MUST COMPETE WITH YOUTH

Present-day business is merciless toward the man who's "slowing down." Efficiency demands physical and mental vigor—the common attribute of youth. Yet pep-full energy of mind and body is not beyond the reach of older men!

ACIDURO — The Superior Acidophilus Milk — is helping many an oldster to successfully vie with youth. This tasty beverage made from pure, whole milk contains billions of aciduric health units, eager to take over the task of displacing the harmful germs that infest the human colon, clog the system with chronic constipation, and physically and mentally "slow up" so many of us in these modern times. Doctors say that ACIDURO is valuable indeed in combating intestinal putrefaction . . . . ask your own physician about it.

To get the most benefit from this wonderful beverage, drink several glasses each day.

SEES VITAL NEED FOR WATERWAYS AS NATION GROWS

Says All Transportation Should Work Together.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—The necessity of a thorough exploitation of the nation's inland waterway resources to assure adequate transportation facilities for an estimated 40,000,000 increase in the nation's population during the second quarter of this century was stressed tonight by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley. While praising the nation's railway and motor equipment, Mr. Hurley said that the transportation team will not be complete without a full development of the navigable streams and lakes of the country.

"The government is just completing the census of our people," Mr. Hurley said. "The results indicate that the second quarter of the twentieth century will see an increase of forty millions in our population. We are confronted by the great task of providing the intricate transportation system for forty million people, embracing highways, waterways, railways, and airways.

Up to Capacity Now.

"In addition to this, we must realise that our present transportation system is no more than adequate for the present population. Careful planning on a national basis is necessary to solve this great engineering and economic problem without placing an unreasonable burden on our people and without injury to our existing systems of transportation. Broad engineering vision and strong executive guidance are necessary in order that the present transportation facilities, rail, water, highway and airway, may be expanded and utilized to meet the needs of a rapidly growing population.

"To meet the situation by building more trunk line railroads instead of utilizing and improving nature's water routes would be economically unsound. Railroads will be expanded, highways will be multiplied and airways will perform their specialized services. Water transportation cannot replace the fast freight service required for certain commodities. Neither can it reach beyond the limits of the geographical location.

Low Cost for Heavy Freight.

"The railroads will continue to perform the great burden of freight service that waterways cannot undertake. The highways will reach into areas that the waterways cannot serve. The airways will more and more serve the need of transportation where time is a vital consideration. But the waterways will perform a special service which is fundamental in assuring minimum cost of transportation. Waterways properly utilized relieve other forms of transportation by moving the bulk, low rate commodities which constitute the basic material in many important industries. The present administration has undertaken to put the inland waterways system in operation."

Secretary Hurley spoke of the necessity of completing the lakes to the gulf waterway, but did not give any definite figures as to when it will be completed. He said that the President's program called for its completion within five years.

OLD KLAN GROUP BUT WITH NEW NAME ASKS MEMBERS IN ATLANTA

Atlanta, Ga., July 21.—[Special.]—With the utmost secrecy an undetermined number of men, "sovereign, white and of true blood," are being invited to affiliate with an organization called "Caucasian Crusade," which is supported, ostensibly, by seven widely known Atlantans, whose past activities and known sympathies indicate the organization is intended as a vast new edition of the Ku Klux Klan.

The seven sponsors whose names are signed to a printed letter include a founder of the Ku Klux Klan, a Georgia congressman, a former congressman and noted criminal lawyer, a veteran Atlantic editor, a physician who operates a private sanitarium, a sheriff, and a wealthy undertaker.

Mrs. Ida Anderson, 48 years old, killed her husband, Charles A. Anderson, 55 years old, and her son, Willis, 18 years old, with a hand ax early yesterday morning while they slept in their farm home three miles west of Geneva, Ill. She then ended her own life with a razor, according to Leslie L. Urch, sheriff of Kane county, who investigated the double murder and suicide.

The sheriff found evidence that before ending her own life Mrs. Anderson left the house, set fire to a large shed housing farm implements and two automobiles, and then returned and set fire to the home. Before the Geneva fire department had taken the three bodies from the home and put out the flames there the shed had burned to the ground. Policemen were forced to shoot a collie dog which tried to prevent their entering the home.

Charles Larson, 52 years old, brother to Mrs. Anderson, had been sleeping in an attic room of the one story frame house. He was awakened by the smoke, descended an outside stairway and was breaking in a window when Edward and Harry Killey, neighbors, arrived. The three men fought the fire until the Geneva firemen and Sheriff Urch came.

In search of a motive for the killings and suicide, the sheriff and police discovered the family had been in financial straits. The herd of eighteen cows was mortgaged. The 47 acres of land and the house were covered with first and second mortgages.

Neighbors said that Anderson drank, he having been arrested in St. Charles for driving while intoxicated a few days ago. Mrs. Anderson paid his fine, and according to Chief of Police Harry Crawford, "she acted queerly." Sheriff Urch said the woman kept to herself and seemed moody and depressed when she appeared on the streets of Geneva.

Larson was absolved of any blame in the affair early in the investigation, but was held at the Kane county jail as a material witness for the inquest there this morning. The Killeys were released after questioning.

After the dance, nothing refreshes like Welch's

take a Welch cooler

"bracing as a sea breeze"

Here's a delicious fruit drink that packs its own cooling system! "A natural refrigerant", that's what dieticians call Welch's—the fragrant juice of luscious Concord grapes.

Welch's cools as it slips deliciously down a parched throat. It cools as it permeates the system and is quickly assimilated into the heated blood. Other drinks cool momentarily, then re-heat the blood with new digestive effort. But not Welch's. For Welch's is already digested by nature, sunning on the vines in tempting purple clusters.

Serve Welch's when friends drop in... between dances... after bridge. See how its energizing coolness tunes everybody up! After a strenuous hour of golf or work, Welch's rests and recharges you. When the children come in hot and hungry, Welch's satisfies them healthfully. For your breakfast fruit... instead of harmful dinner drinks... at any hour of the day or night... Welch's gives you quick refreshment with a royal flavor.

And Welch's is made the way you want your drinks made—of perfect fruit, bottled immaculately, aged for ripe flavor. You know you cannot get such purity and goodness in cheaper grape juice. Keep Welch's always on hand in your refrigerator. Order it at your fountain or restaurant, on your train, at your club. But be careful to say "Welch's"—otherwise you might get just a cheap inferior grape juice, and wonder why the flavor isn't up to Welch's.

(6 and more servings to a 30c pint) when diluted with water, as most people prefer it. Remember, Welch's is pure grape juice—full strength. Try it this new way: Add a third, a half or more of cold water, till you find the strength that best suits your taste. Then drink America's most temptingly delicious fruit drink all around the clock—for health—for pleasure.

NOT FATTENING

Welch's is strengthening but not fattening. It is full of blood and bone building mineral salts, and energizing sugars turned invert (non-fattening). That's why physicians tell dieters, "keep up your strength with plenty of Welch's." Scientific weight-control menus—free. Just mail the coupon.

SPREADING THE KELLOGG TREATY OUT.

Lawmakers of thirty-two nations meeting in London listened to Congressman Hull of Chicago on the wrongfulness of trade with any violators of the Kellogg-Briand treaty outlawing war as an instrument of national policy. Mr. Hull is an advocate of American membership in the league of nations, to say nothing of the league court, and his line of thought as to our obligations under the Kellogg-Briand treaty is consistent with his general views on international policy for the United States.

But outside the group of Americans who are anxious to have us depart from our traditional policy of political independence, the theory that the Kellogg-Briand treaty binds us to accept in advance of the event the judgment of any other tribunal than our own conscience as to who is an "outlaw state" and therefore refuse to trade with her will not be acceptable. The Kellogg-Briand treaty is a pledge not to employ war as an instrument of policy and it is nothing more. The senate in consenting tried to prevent extension of the treaty by interpretation, though less formally than it should have. But the individuals and organizations who, like Mr. Hull, are for bringing us into the European political system under the guise of world pacification began as soon as the treaty was adopted by the senate to extend its implications to include moral obligations for the imposition of the treaty upon other nations. They hold that we have not merely pledged the United States not to make use of war as an instrument of its national policy, but have also bound ourselves by necessary implication to enforce fulfillment of the pledge by other nations. This view is popular in Europe, especially in Great Britain, whose statesmen see in it a welcome escape from the embarrassment of America's doctrine of neutral rights, which, as English publicists are now telling us, has been abolished by the Kellogg-Briand treaty.

Thus we are invited by our own internationalists, with the applause of Europe, to slip into the European political system and discard the independence of judgment and action our forefathers so jealously guarded. Mr. Hull told his hearers from 32 nations that in "the present state of world opinion," whatever that is, a "covenant breaking state is an international outlaw, its aggression an international crime, and the action of any state permitting its nationals to trade with such an aggressor state, particularly in arms and munitions of war, is participating in the wrongful acts of an aggressor state." How easily these terms are thrown about by our passionate internationalists! But who is to determine for us when a covenant has been broken or what justification there may be for its breach? Who is to declare for us that a nation is an aggressor, an international criminal with which we are bound to cease trading on pain of being declared an accomplice in its crime?

Of course, Mr. Hull and his like are willing to have us turn such decisions over to the league of nations and its council, with the United States a minority member on the board. But we think American common sense will not follow them on this path. On every occasion on which the American people have had an opportunity to express themselves, if only by indirection, on a measure involving the preservation of their political independence they have shown their unwillingness to compromise it, and we are confident this new attempt to interpret the Kellogg-Briand treaty as a general pledge to use our force, military, political, or economic, in European affairs according to some judgment not our own will be repudiated so far or so soon as it is recognized for what it is.

Neither the senate nor the public, we are confident, would have accepted the Kellogg-Briand treaty if there were in it any such implications as Mr. Hull and the European publicists who agree with him propose to attach to its strict phraseology. We pledged in that document not to use war as an instrument of national policy and we refrained from pledging ourselves to force any other nation not to do so.

If we are ready at any time to sit in formal judgment on any other nation and declare it a criminal with which we refuse to trade it will be, we trust, upon our own judgment and not that of any other government or group of governments. Even in this there is danger, as any one knows who has come out of the fumes of international propaganda since 1919. There are some Americans, and we suspect Mr. Hull is among them, who still have confidence in the judgment of 1914 on international criminals, but for the American intelligence in general the memory of our state of mind in those days does not encourage us to verdicts of criminality among nations. Our common sense and we hope an increasing observation of European politics will warn us that the questions of "guilt," of aggression, of the making and breaking of covenants, are difficult and often hopelessly obscure. And, we may add, our internationalists are certainly the last to whom sensible Americans will be inclined to turn for enlightenment on any of these questions in any situation, although they probably will be the most ready to give judgment.

MUSIC FOR CHICAGOLAND.

In America of the early days singing was more of a common social resource than it has been in the last generation. Americans did not sing as they worked, as many of the old world people did and still do. But the singing schule was a feature of village life and congregational singing one of the strong supports of church services. At social gatherings and among the young folks singing was a general pleasure and the popular songs of the day, patriotic and sentimental, were famous.

This lasted up to the end of the 19th century, and the elders of this generation well remember the tunes that thrilled their youth, some of which THE TRIBUNE music critic, Mr. Moore, recalled in his Sunday article on the Chicagoland Music festival, "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," "The Banks of the Wabash," "Sweet Marie," "The Sidewalks of New York," and he could add many more like "In the Gloaming," "The Good Old Summer Time," "The Rugby Boating Song," and the famous songs of the civil war period and before, "Shells of Ocean," "Roll On, Silver Moon," "Rosalie the Prairie Flower."

Then, as Mr. Moore reminds us, came canned music and the exciting new inventions which have absorbed our interest in the later decades. With them popular singing declined. We listened more and sang less. It was and is a pity, for the love of music is strong in us, and there is more in singing than in listening. As Mr. Moore remarks, we cannot match the great rare voices of the professional stage, but in a chorus the defects of the individual are fused in the body of tone, and a chorus of mediocre individual voices under proper training and leadership will produce splendid musical results.

We have been in the musical doldrums so far as popular singing is concerned, but all we need is encouragement to turn again to its great resources of pleasure. It is with this in mind that THE TRIBUNE has planned the musical festival for Chicagoland which will be held Saturday night, Aug. 23, at Soldiers' field. There will be a score of brass bands and drum corps, and we expect at least a score of choruses. We know this occasion will provide some thrills not to be forgotten, and we hope it will encourage not only the professional musician but the amateur and do something toward reviving the good days when we all took pleasure in popular and social song. There is great store of musical talent in the American people of today, more, we think, than in years gone by, for we have had a great influx of people from lands where singing is a general popular habit. All this talent, with the rich heritage of folk music which our Americans of continental birth or ancestry possess, should be inspired to pour its beauty into American living, not as an occasional stunt or novelty, but as a daily resource.

One of the problems of our age is to make the individual master of the machine which is serving him, and the human love of song should not be drowned out in the noise of our mechanical world. Europeans who visit America often say that, with all our material comforts and luxuries, we do not contrive to be happy. There may be something in that, though there is not as much as they think. On the contrary, America is a cheerful and happy land and we are everywhere devising and establishing new resources of wholesome recreation. Among these we should make more of music, and it will be done.

THERE WILL BE MORE HOT DAYS.

Camp Algonquin on the Fox river takes underprivileged children and their mothers out of the city's heat. Fresh air and wholesome food build up the children's bodies to resist disease. The relief from care and household drudgery gives rest to the mothers. The camp accommodates 500 at a time and is operated during the twelve hottest weeks in the year.

Here is a charity to which TRIBUNE readers have contributed for many years. They need scarcely be reminded that such weather as Chicago has endured in recent days strains the facilities of the camp and emphasizes the need for it. Hot weather causes discomfort to every one, but those who spend their nights in comfortable, well ventilated, spacious rooms cannot readily appreciate what high temperatures mean to those who are less fortunate.

The camp is one of the activities of the United Charities and every penny spent on it is well spent. As much can be said of the free ice fund to which TRIBUNE readers have also contributed for many years. The sums given to this fund serve to enable mothers to obtain ice with which to keep their babies' milk fresh. In this way the intestinal disorders which take a heavy toll in the years of infancy have been prevented. The contributions of TRIBUNE readers have been an important factor in lowering the baby death rate in Chicago. Though the weather this year has been hotter than usual, and though there are more babies in Chicago than there were a year ago, the number of baby deaths is smaller by several hundred, according to a recent announcement by the health department.

The drain on both the camp and ice funds has been heavier than usual this year. A few dollars given to either fund may mean the saving of lives.

A CITY OUT OF DEBT.

[Indianapolis News.]

Approximately $64,000 in bonded indebtedness, all that is outstanding against the southern Indiana city of Washington, is soon to be paid. As a result, it is announced by Mayor McCarty, the municipal tax rate probably will be reduced from $1.12 to 56 cents on each $100 in property. The program serves to direct notice to the very considerable part interest on debts owed by a community may enter into revenue demands. In this case, obviously, the carrying charge on a comparatively small obligation does not account for all of the difference between the existing tax level and the one that is contemplated. Good civic management in other directions was necessary to bring about the opportunity for so considerable a reduction. Nevertheless, the necessity of putting money into sinking funds to retire bonds, as well as to provide a net financial return to their owners, was an item in the situation. Moreover, in the conduct of many municipalities, the piling up of bond issues reaches a point where a considerable share of their annual revenues must be diverted to interest purposes alone. This is not to argue that a pay-as-you-go policy should be relied on exclusively, certainly not in many types of public improvements, when the benefits will extend through many decades. Nevertheless, care always should be exercised not to overburden the future with mortgages. Washington has revealed extraordinary foresight on that point.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

MANY RHEUMATIC DISEASES.

"IN the files of the Mayo Clinic there have been accumulated about 150 different designations for about thirty different species of rheumatic disease." This statement was written by Dr. P. S. Hench for Dental Survey.

Considering only chronic joint troubles he makes five divisions instead of 150 or even 30. The least important group he calls senescent arthritis. Sixty to 70 per cent of all persons over 50 years of age have rheumatic pains or stiffness of the lower part of the back due to this disorder. Some others have neck pains that belong in this class. In the group are the twists, curves, and knobs of the last joint of one or more fingers; the creaky knees, and the painful hips not otherwise accounted for. Some day we may know the reason for this group of minor troubles and then we will not charge them up to age.

His second group covered the traumatic arthritis cases. The most common cause is obesity. The joints of obese people are called on to carry more weight than they are built for. They wear out, as would an overworked inanimate machine. Other illustrations of this group of disorders are: Farmer's back, miner's elbow, golfer's shoulder, nun's knee, baseball fingers, and card player's wrist. We see this trouble in "stove up" horses, worn out hunting dogs, and old cows. A woman of my acquaintance thinks her son who has had chronic rheumatoid arthritis since childhood contracted the disease by drinking milk from a badly "stove up" old family cow. But she is wrong. Next comes chronic chemical arthritis, gout being the leading example of this. This is the only variety of chronic arthritis which is much affected for better or for worse by diet.

Fourth comes the great group of chronic joint troubles which he terms infective. This group he subdivides into two subgroups. This is the group which starts everybody looking for a focus of infection. The search should include the teeth, tonsils, nose and sinuses, the chest organs, the abdomen, and especially the pelvic organs.

Another Mayo Clinic man does not think the nose and nearby sinuses are responsible for many joint troubles. Dr. Hench thinks the teeth the most important of the sites of focal infection. My statement—"especially the pelvic organs"—was written to emphasize a cause which is often not investigated.

RUBBING GOOD REMEDY.

Mrs. E. F. writes: Will olive oil, rubbed into the scalp, prevent falling hair?

REPLY.

Yes, to some extent. Rubbing is about the best remedy we have.

"JAKE" PARALYSIS.

L. H. writes: I have been watching your articles on "jake" paralysis, as I happen to be a victim of that terrible disease. I am a woman of 30 years and I am improving each week. I drank three ounces one Saturday night and on the following Friday was taken with paralysis. Two weeks later it affected my hands. Two weeks later I had a wonderful examination by a physician who told me that in six months I would be a well woman again. I am able to get about very well and can do almost everything but cut with a scissors. I have a heavy foot drop, but it is not as bad as it was.

What I am writing about is to tell you of the cure. They told me to take hot baths and massage. I took two hot baths a day and would take an alcohol rub, and within two weeks you could count every bone in my hands and feet. Now I use wintergreen oil and that sure does me a lot of good. I also take a pint of mineral oil a week for my bowels and drink lots of water for my kidneys. These are very simple remedies, but you would be surprised how much good they do, for I am able to go downtown by myself. Before I started these remedies I could hardly stand on my feet. Before I was stricken with this disease I always loved children and there was no amount of noise I could not stand. Now I go all to pieces when children come near me. Well, I guess plenty of rest and no worry will do the work.

A DELINQUENT TENANT.

Chicago, July 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A tenant was ordered out on account of nonpayment of rent amounting to $100. A notice was served on him, as he refused to move when told. 1. Can owner collect back rent? 2. How would you go about it? R. R.

1. Yes.
2. Employ an attorney.

A POLICEWOMAN'S QUALIFICATIONS.

Chicago, July 16.—[Friend of the People.]—I am desirous of obtaining [1] the date of the next civil service examination for a clerical position in the Chicago public schools, and [2] the date of the next examination for policewoman. J. M.

At this writing no examinations are called for school clerk, junior clerk, or policewoman. Applicants for policewomen at the time of examination must be not less than 30 nor more than 45 years of age, not less than 5 feet nor more than 5 feet 9 inches in height and weighing not less than 115 pounds nor more than 180 pounds and with weight and measurements proportionate to height. The minimum age for the other examinations is 21 years. J. S. OSBORNE.

Secretary Civil Service Commission.

SAYS LAWYER IS CROOKED.

Chicago, July 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A child of mine was killed by a truck in August, 1927. The case was turned over to a lawyer for me. The lawyer did not file the case in court and has now left the city.

1. When a lawyer is crooked is there any chance to go to the insurance company myself for settlement?

2. What can be done, if there are any chances? A. S.

1. Of course there are chances, but we would not consider them very good. 2. If you are right in your assumption, then the advisable course would be to employ another lawyer, but we doubt if you are right.

SPEAKING OF MIXED UP BABIES—

This mix up in babies that is told about all over the front page is a very serious thing. Not the case here in Chicago where frenzied parents think the nurses in a maternity hospital got some newborn babies mixed up; that's another story. The big mix up is the naval peace pact baby that the senators are rowing over down in Washington. The question is whether the peace baby is really a peace baby or whether it is a war baby. When that London naval pact baby grows up it may be a nice, gentle, kindly youth who will jump to bring a glass of water for ma or go down cellar and get the home brew for pa, and he will answer to the name of Clarence. Or that London baby may grow up and turn out to be a brawling, wayward youth who will tell his pa to chase himself and kick the teacher in the slats.

The peace baby is all right if it is a peace baby. But there were lots of nurses over there in London when the baby was born, and maybe it got mixed up with the other babies. Great Land of Goshen, they ought to have put a strawberry mark on the London peace parley baby, or tattooed the word "Peace" on it, or something; but they didn't, and so—well, how are they going to tell? The only thing the senate seems to think it can do is to adopt the baby anyhow, and then if it starts hellin' round when it grows up to disown it. But by that time it may be too late. Oh, well!

LULLABY FOR A CHILD.

Rest, the hours are winging,
Sleep, the dark is here,
Angels float about you singing,
Put away your childish fear.

Put away your childish playthings,
Drooping lids betray you, too;
You are tired and the day brings
With its closing, rest for you.

Head upon the yielding pillow,
When the moon comes peeping in,
And the branches of the willow
On the pane, their dance begin.

Softly breathe and tired, slumber,
Though the night be dark and long,
Spirits there in untold number,
All about you weave and throng.

Dark behind you, dawn before,
With another day to play,
Gently, softly close the door,
On tip toe, and steal away.

CLARENCE P. MILLIGAN.

MR. CAPONE (Alfonse, please forget that Scarface thing) rises to say he has been misquoted. Now that Mr. Capone has become one of the leading citizens of Miami he is, indeed, deeply pained at being misquoted. In his more turbulent days even rival gangsters did not misquote Mr. Capone—they missed him, but they did not misquote him.

NEWS from the aviation world says that large numbers of Chinese students are coming to America to learn flying and parachute jumping. They ought to be good with the parachute, those Chinks; we can think of a lot now that should do very well—such as Hop Lee and Hop Sing and Hop Guy Wong and Hop Moy; and, oh, there's a lot of 'em that qualify right off the bat.

Anyhow, What Goes Up Must Come Down!

Parents' associations and the very wise who know just how a boy should be brought up are suggesting a rule that all tree sitters should descend when the curfew tolls the knell of parting day, etc. By the time the Parents' association and the Assistant Parents' association get this thing all figured out and know just how to deal with it they will look up in the trees and find them empty of everything except branches, leaves, and bird nests. Long before their parents can catch up with them the boys have always thought up something brand new and are busy doing it. A boy usually manages to stay about three jumps ahead of the old man, so why worry?

AND DO YOU remember the days gone by when we moaned to high heaven because there was snow along in January and things they called blizzards? And now; ah, could we only meet a blizzard or a snowstorm face to face we would burst into happy tears. "'Tis a curious world," as Cleopatra remarked to her boy friend, Marc Antony; "men are never pleased with what they've got."

RIGHT IS MIGHT—

LYKELL, LYKELL!

In my classy new roadster,
One bright summer day,
I was carefully driving,
At Devon and Broadway;
When another guy hit me,
'Twas just my hard luck,
That I had the green light,
But he had a TRUCK.

A BEAR WAS SHOT by the police in a Chicago suburb Sunday. It was a bear that had escaped from some private zoo or a circus, but wait until that story gets to Europe. Can't you just see the headlines in the papers already? "Bears Now Roam Chicago Streets; Gangsters Have Killed All Police; Town Turned Into Jungle; Inhabitants at Mercy of Bears, Lions, Tigers, Crocodiles, Elephants, Hyenas, and Indian Massacre Imminent."

DOGGONE! It's simply no use; you can't keep anything during this terrible hot weather. We had a grand last line for today, but the fool thing melted while we were taking it down to Hank.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 22, 1865.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Lieut. Col. William E. Mulford, late of the rebel army and formerly of Indiana, has received permission to leave the country, on condition that he must never return.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Capt. Wirz, formerly military commandant of the Andersonville prison pen, is to be put on trial next week before the military commission now in session in this city of which Brig. Gen. Underwood is president.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The vertebral neck bones of the assassin of President Lincoln, J. Wilkes Booth, which were broken by the pistol bullet which caused his death, are now on exhibition among other original curiosities of the war in the army medical museum in this city.

NEW YORK.—The Tribune's special says the statement that Jeff Davis probably would be tried by a military commission receives confirmation daily. A prominent senator asserts that it has positively been determined to try the arch traitor by a military commission.

CHICAGO.—John D. Murphy of Chicago and Julia M. Norton, daughter of Elisha Norton of Racine, Wis., were married on July 20 at the home of the bride's father by the Rev. Mr. Ravlin. At Waukegan on July 20 Adjt. Edward A. Blodgett of the 96th Illinois volunteers was married to Miss Julia E. Wygant of Chicago and Col. Wells H. Blodgett of the 46th Missouri volunteers was married to Miss Emma A. Dickson of St. Louis, Mo.

BOSTON, Mass.—Interesting ceremonies took place at Harvard college in commemoration of the patriotism of her sons. Harvard contributed 425 of her graduates to the war, 96 of whom were either killed in battle or died from wounds or disease. About 2,000 persons attended the commemoration exercises.

JULY 22, 1900.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Annette E. Mc Crea, woman landscape gardener of Lincoln park who planned the new rose garden and other notable improvements in the north side playground, was "bounced" on order of Supt. Paul Redieske.

MANSFIELD, O.—Cyrus B. Fockler, Zion elder, returned here from Chicago by order of John Alexander Dowie, and was mobbed by a crowd of 5,000 citizens. He escaped a mob two weeks ago by fleeing the city. It took the whole police force of the city and the fire department to rescue him today. He is alleged to have caused the deaths of children, estranged families and driven several of his followers insane. The mob was just about to apply tar to Fockler when he was rescued.

CHICAGO. — "Bathhouse" John Coughlin, banker and alderman of the First ward, is going abroad. He will leave for Europe about Aug. 1, accompanied by a wardrobe which would make Solomon in all his glory look like "30 cents."

PARIS.—Mrs. Potter Palmer advertises an offer of a reward of $500 for information leading to a return of a $17,000 necklace which is missing. It is not known whether it was lost or stolen.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 22, 1920.

WARSAW.—[By Parke Brown.]—All military missions and relief organizations are preparing to evacuate Warsaw because of the rapid advance of the bolsheviks against Poland. Germany has mobilized 50,000 crack reichswehr troops for the purpose of meeting a bolshevik invasion of East Prussia. The speed of the Red advance is estimated at ten miles a day.

NEW YORK.—The Resolute won its first leg on the America's cup today by its allowance of seven minutes and one second, as it took both it and the Shamrock the same amount of time to a second to cover the 30 mile windward and leeward course. The Resolute must win two more legs to keep the cup in this country, while one victory is all the Shamrock needs to lift the trophy for Sir Thomas Lipton.

SPEED BOATS.

Chicago, July 19.—In the early morning of July 19 the sloop Scarab was rammed by Mr. B. H. Marshall's speed boat, which is just another example of what can happen when people dash through the night at high speed, not knowing what is ahead.

The writer was on the water the previous night in a speed boat capable of doing 33 miles per hour, and the evening was unusually dark. For the safety of those aboard we cruised at half that speed, knowing that should we hit driftwood or approach a small craft we would be able to control the boat.

From the writer's point of view the federal authorities should rigidly check up on the lights of boats to the smallest craft, because without lights they are a menace to traffic of all kinds. Furthermore, the speed boats that take passengers aboard, both at Navy pier and Edgewater Beach, should be equipped with a spotlight to view the water ahead. Speeding at 40 miles an hour on open water without lights to see ahead is just as senseless as going down a Chicago highway on a dark night with nothing but cowl lights. Motorists light the road ahead to see what is there, and so should all high speed motor boats, more especially those that carry the public.

Last year this city was horrified by wrecks of colliding speed boats, wrecks by hitting floating debris, and this year we are going through the same thing and nothing being done. It is the hope of the writer that some one with authority will see this and start agitation in the proper directions where something will be done.

A YACHT ENTHUSIAST.

THE WAR OF BIRDS AND CATS.

Wilmette, Ill., July 4.—Last Sunday morning I was attracted to my yard by the alarmed screaming of birds. Upon investigating I found that the commotion was caused by a pair of grackles which were fiercely attacking a cat climbing up the tree in which the birds had their nest. The cat had reached a point about five feet above the ground. So furious were the attacks of the grackles that the cat began to retreat bleeding from wounds the birds had pecked in its back. The birds pursued, keeping up the clamor.

No sooner had the retreat begun than two other cats, until now unseen, began stealthily to approach the tree. Suddenly out of nowhere appeared three other screaming grackles to attack these felines, which, not willing to risk punishment, vanished.

An argument for the reasoning powers of animals and birds.

A MESSAGE FROM CONAN DOYLE.

Tupelo, Miss., July 15.—Yesterday, out of the brightness of a cloudless sky came a mysterious musical voice—the voice of Sir A. Conan Doyle—saying: "Deep within the gloom of night's misty shadows, alone, the All Knowing waits to disclose the noonday of what and the what is.

"Do you rightly wait? If so, across the glorified fields of Eden's balmy dreams will come the messages of life and truth to make clear the things of the here and the now."

THEORY REGARDING MEN'S CLOTHES.

Chicago, July 19.—Why do men wear uncomfortable clothing in the summer? Because they have to hide themselves, they look so funny. They wear stiff high collars to hide their Adam's apples; they wear long trousers instead of shorts to hide their hairy legs and knobby knees. One of the marvels of nature is the sublime unconsciousness that the male has of his own deficiencies.

OUR HAIRY ANCESTORS.

Chicago, July 19.—I understand there are no bathing beaches in Tennessee, which accounts for their inability to accept Darwin's theory of our ancestry.

SHAVED.

Chicago, July 20.—If any man is foolish enough to take Miss Aaron's advice let him read my tale of woe before he does anything about it. I was inclined to agree with her and tried the experiment with the following results. The operation of shaving all parts of the body not covered by a bathing suit took exactly one hour and ten minutes and more acrobatic exercise than a hard game of tennis. It took three razor blades to do the job. When I had finished I hied me to the beach, where I am sure I was more conspicuous than the hairiest of apes ever was. At least it seemed to me that few failed to study the curiosity with considerable interest and amusement. But that is not the worst. Whether it was the irritation of the skin, or the sand, or the sun, I do not know; but when I came home I had a fine rash, like barber's itch, under my arms and on my legs and chest, which continues after four days. Then, when the hair begins to grow back, the friction with clothing feels like one was wearing a nutmeg grater.

J. K. JR.

UP-STAGE.

Chicago, July 16.—I wonder if I am the only one who suffers a severe pain when harking to the ultra radio announcers of New York? The glib rattling off of the name of a composition in a foreign tongue [long practiced, I imagine], a pause, then an English translation in a voice and manner which seems to say, "This for the benefit of Hoi Polloi." And last Sunday! When announcing a composition by our own Gus Luders, the announcer overdid himself by saying GusTAHVE LuDAIRS! I'll bet Gus turned over in his grave.

A. B. PAUL.

MRS. BYRD.

Cleveland, O., July 14.—As a daily reader of your paper I have a question to ask you. Why is it that Mrs. Richard Byrd, the real hero of the antarctic expedition, is scarcely ever mentioned in the papers?

Any woman who is left alone for two years with the entire responsibility of bringing up a family, having already been left alone so many times before, is the heroine par excellence and deserves equal credit with the men of the expedition and should be given at least an editorial in the paper and a few pictures so we can see this remarkable woman. NEWS APOLOGIZES TO JARECKI IN CONTEMPT CASE

Admits Story on Election Trial Lacks Truth.

The Chicago Daily News, through Attorney Thomas Marshall, yesterday made a formal apology to County Judge Jarecki for a story which appeared in that newspaper last Thursday. In an account of the proceedings to oust Fred V. Maguire as chairman of the board of election commissioners, the newspaper said the judge had been called before the leaders of the Democratic party and ordered to turn over to them available jobs in return for what the leaders were doing for him in the Maguire proceedings.

Attorney Albert Fink, representing Maguire, called the article to the attention of the judge Friday and asked for a contempt citation against the publisher and editor of the newspaper. Special Assistant State's Attorney Charles Center Case, who brought the action against Maguire on the charge that the chairman had permitted persons with police records to act as election officials, refused to take the witness stand at the request of Attorney Fink and be questioned on the origin of the story. Fink made that request on Friday. Case appeared in court yesterday represented by Attorney Carl R. Latham, who said he was present because of the possibility of a contempt action against Case.

Rumor "Without Foundation."

"Full investigation has been made of a rumor referred to in that article," Attorney Marshall said. "As a result of that investigation the rumor has been found to be without foundation in fact. The Chicago Daily News therefore expresses its regret that publicity was given by it to the rumor.

"It must be obvious to your honor that this article, the obtaining of it, was a blunder which occurred in the haste of printing an afternoon newspaper, and was not the result of any deliberate attempt to injure your honor. . . . The comments which occurred in the article would not have been made if a lawyer had been reporting the trial and not a layman. From the standpoint of the reporter, it may be stated, in possible mitigation that no experienced reporter in reporting the proceedings, a judicial proceedings in court, would have made such comments.

"Neither the publisher nor the editor desires to appear to evade any responsibility that those positions place them in. In fairness to them, however, I think it should be said that neither of them had any knowledge that any such article was to be published or that such an article did go into the paper."

Asks Speed in Trial.

Attorney Fink filed a motion for a rule to show cause why Walter A. Strong and Charles H. Dennis, publisher and editor respectively of the News, should not be held in contempt. The judge took the motion under advisement.

Attorney Fink suggested that the judge instruct the prosecution to speed the trial of the case of Maguire. In three days thirteen witnesses have been examined. At that rate it will take until Dec. 9 to hear the 1,500 witnesses who have been subpœnaed, he said.

Thus far in the trial, Mr. Fink said, two witnesses have been charged with crime without proof, five charged with crime were removed before the proceedings were begun, three were found not to be householders, one was charged with crime and proven to have a record but confirmed while Case was attorney for the board, and two were subject of general charges without proof of being disqualified. All witnesses mentioned were election officials. The hearing was continued until today, when Case promised to answer the defense tabulation.

DETROIT VOTES TODAY ON PROPOSITION FOR RECALL OF ITS MAYOR

Detroit, Mich., July 21.—[Special.]—A massmeeting of supporters of Mayor Charles Bowles was held in the National Guard armory tonight as one of the high points of Detroit's recall campaign.

Tomorrow the voters of Detroit will pass judgment answereing the question: "Shall Mayor Bowles be recalled?" Estimates of votes cast range from 125,000 to 200,000.

More than 100 churches refused today to permit distribution within their walls, Sunday, of the Civic Searchlight, organ of the Detroit Citizens' league. The league has endorsed the recall.

Mayor Bowles and other speakers denounced the citizens' league as being a partner in a "conspiracy of fraud and dishonesty" waged by political freebooters and crooks.

The forces sponsoring the recall, today issued challenger cards to sufficient numbers of workers to watch every booth in the city, while supervisors will form a contract between the booth workers by automobile.

LEGGE SURE HE HAS SOLD CROP REDUCTION IDEA

Calls Critics Political Bunk Artists.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Chairman Alexander Legge of the federal farm board, back from his two week tour of the central west, today lauded the spirit of the wheat farmers and ridiculed those who he said are trying to capitalize themselves by political attacks on the board.

Declaring that the farm board was created to assist the farmer and not for politics, Mr. Legge observed that "from now until November politicians will be so busy saving the farmer it might as well take a vacation." He added, however, that "if we are expected to resume that burden after election, perhaps a little progress can be made by carrying on in the meantime."

During his visit in Kansas, Oklahoma, the Dakotas, and other wheat growing states, the farm board chairman said he was convinced that the farmers themselves are wholly in sympathy with the board's campaign to reduce wheat acreage and that there will be a reduction in next year's crop.

Attacks "Political Bunk."

Among those he charged with spreading "political bunk" about the farm board Mr. Legge named the Democratic national committee, certain chambers of commerce, and the grain dealers.

Asked if he considered the move by Senator Arthur Capper [Rep., Kas.] to have the board purchase 100 million bushels of wheat to raise prices "political," Mr. Legge stated that Senator Capper's plan was "a political remedy" and one that would be futile at this time. He also mentioned the political activity of Gov. Clyde Reed of Kansas.

"I notice the Democratic national committee has adopted as a slogan 'the failure of the farm board,'" said Mr. Legge. "This seems to be copied almost word for word from the grain dealers and the chamber of commerce of the United States. Concurrently I notice that certain of the chambers of commerce, particularly in some of the grain markets, are making an effort to substantially increase their dues for the avowed purpose of propaganda to protect their present position.

Says Fight Will Continue.

"Certain interests which seem to feel they have a God-given right to handle the products of the farmers, and who have accumulated immense fortunes in doing so, may be depended upon to continue their fight against most any program directed toward improving the farmers' position, and doubtless will be easy picking for any politician of any party who is willing to play their game.

"However, farmers as a class are doing a lot of thinking for themselves these days and many of them seem to be aware that their present unhappy condition is a result of long years of unregulated production while they listened to gigantic schemes that high powered statesmen had to offer, rather than of any action of this board.

"Present and future orations, written by the Democratic national committee and fathered by various orators, to broadcast the alleged failures of the farm board are only more of the same kind of political bunk by virtue of which the farmer arrived at his present position."

She thought:
"I like you—but not to dance with."
Yet, to be polite,
She said:
"It's so nice and cool here. Let's just sit and enjoy the breeze."

Girls made excuses to avoid dancing with him

(Body Odor)

THE hot night was just an excuse. She couldn't tell him the real reason. It was far too personal. She couldn't bring herself to mention body odor, even by its polite nickname, "B.O."

Fortunately his uncle, a physician, was more frank. On from the West for a visit, the first in years, he soon sized up the situation—had a talk with his nephew. . . . No more "B.O." now—no more polite snubs or unexplained business setbacks. He enjoys a warm welcome from friends—steady advancement in his work—since he learned the easy way to avoid offending.

"Warmer tomorrow," beware "B.O."

Hot, sticky, perspiry days—sultry nights—no one is safe from "B.O." Don't think you are because you don't notice it. We seldom do in ourselves, because we so quickly become used to an ever-present odor. But others instantly notice it.

Why risk offending—ever? The remedy is so simple, so sure. Adopt Lifebuoy as your toilet soap. Enjoy its cooling, refreshing, antiseptic lather, so abundant even in hardest water. It washes away stickiness and fatigue—leaves you "fresh as a daisy," pores purified, every trace of "B.O." gone. Its pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—tells you Lifebuoy purifies.

Watch complexions freshen

Lifebuoy promotes true complexion loveliness by letting the skin breathe. Its bland, deep-cleansing lather gently frees clogged pores of stifling impurities—brings back healthy, radiant freshness to dull, sallow skins.

AMENDED PHONE FRANCHISE SENT TO CITY COUNCIL

Changes Safeguard City, Meyering Says.

Members of the city council committee on gas, oil, and electric light voted unanimously yesterday to recommend the adoption of the amended telephone franchise bill at the city council meeting next Tuesday.

Ald. A. J. Horan [29th] indicated at the close of the session that he would have some amendments to present, but it is understood that he will defer their presentation until he can do so on the floor of the council. He declined to detail their nature.

Meyering Ends Opposition.

Ald. William D. Meyering [8th], one of the dissenters when the unamended draft of the measure was before the committee last week, made the motion yesterday which sent it to the whole council. Last week he urged more time for consideration, but he has now been convinced, he said, that the franchise makes it mandatory that the Illinois Bell Telephone company pay the cost of relocating its conduits and cables for the subway and to pay a reasonable rental for occupancy of subway space.

Amendments tacked to the franchise by the committee on July 15 satisfied Meyering on the doubtful points, he said.

What Amendments Provide.

The franchise provided that if any ordinance shall be adopted by the city council authorizing or empowering the city to require public utilities to remove and relocate their conduit, cables, and other equipment the company agrees that it will accept the ordinance and will remove and relocate its equipment in conformity with it.

An amendment was adopted which made the responsibility of the telephone company for the removal of equipment more certain, according to the aldermen, and safeguarded the rights of the city to demand such removals under other legislation and agreements.

Another amendment provides: "The company agrees that it will pay the city a reasonable rental for any space occupied and used by the company in any subway or subway structure or in any gallery or galleries connected therewith."

GASOLINE BLAST KILLS 1, WRECKS 4 DWELLINGS

Rock Rapids, Ia., July 21.—(AP)—One man was killed and another slightly burned in an explosion of six storage tanks containing 120,000 gallons of gasoline at an oil company's yards here tonight. Two tank cars also exploded. Fred Yappen, 35, son of the owner of the company, was the victim, and Fred Stubbe, about the same age, suffered burns on his right arm and back. The loss was $50,000.

Four dwellings close by caught fire and were destroyed and a creamery was also damaged by the flames.

The explosions, which began shortly before 7 o'clock and continued at intervals of several minutes as the flaming liquid spread from one tank to another, shook the entire town.

Pieces of the tanks were blown 300 feet and windows were broken in stores and homes three blocks away.

New York Bridges Swell with Heat; Given a 'Shave'

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—Two drawbridges over the Harlem river expanded so much from the 99 degree heat today that a quarter of an inch of their steel work had to be burned off with acetylene torches before they could be closed.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Just So

BOY FALLS OFF FATHER'S TRUCK; FATALLY HURT

Three year old Edwin Michalik, 3229 West 37th street, was fatally injured yesterday when crushed by a wheel of a truck driven by his father, Stanley Michalik. The boy was seated beside his father when the truck hit a rut, pitching the lad into the street. Before Michalik could stop a rear wheel passed over the boy.

Joseph Stroika, 16 years old, 5600 South Spaulding avenue, was fatally injured when he fell from a machine, on which he was trying to hitch a ride, into the path of a truck. Alexander Donakuski, 6646 South Artesian avenue, driver of the truck, was not held.

These two deaths, and three others increased Cook county's motor toll for the year to 535. The other victims.

Andrew Frogner, 61 years old, 2650 North Sawyer avenue. Died at the West Suburban hospital from injuries received Saturday when struck by an auto at Milwaukee and North Sawyer avenues.

William Peck, 65 years old, 4106 North Avers avenue. Died at the Belmont hospital from injuries received Friday in a collision between two machines at Addison street and North Kimball avenue.

Nick Sotor, 45 years old, 1354 West 79th street. Died at the Auburn Park hospital from injuries received in an accident on July 17 in which a son, Thomas, 4 years old, was killed. Sotor's truck collided with a machine being driven by Sylvester Drummer, 8210 South Throop street. Drummer was held by Gresham police.

Anton Urban Sr., 6637 Glenwood avenue, died in a Milwaukee hospital from injuries received in an auto accident near Milwaukee on Sunday. His wife and a son, Anton Urban Jr., and Mrs. James O'Malley, 5739 Winthrop avenue, were injured.

Ship 40 Cases of Whisky in Leakproof Boxes

Precautions against leakage were taken by the shippers of forty cases of Pebbleford whisky, valued at $4,000, seized yesterday by special prohibition agents under Alexander Jamie. The liquor was sent in four large boxes, each lined with metal, the seams of which were soldered. The liquor was shipped from Miami, Fla., consigned to the Metropolitan Glass company, 1545 North Western avenue. Agents followed the liquor from the American Express company depot at Indiana avenue and East 13th street to the glass company, but the latter refused to accept it. The Papaya Conserve company was the consignor.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam.

SCHEVEN—Bobbie Scheven. In memory of my dear little grandchild, age 6¼ years, who went to heaven one year ago.
A bud the Gardener gave us,
A pure and gentle child.
He gave into our keeping
To cherish, undefiled.
But just as it was opening
To the glory of the day,
Down came the heavenly Gardener,
And took our bud away.
HIS LOVING GRANDMOTHER.

STATE CONTROL OF RUM URGED BY LA FOLLETTE

People Competent to Deal with Issue, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., July 21.—[Special.]—Return of the liquor question to the states so Wisconsin citizens can decide by ballot what they want done in the line of liquor control was advocated by Philip F. La Follette in his governorship race platform announced today.

Mr. La Follette declares that the regular Republican platform in its proposal of a national "advisory" referendum of prohibition fails to safeguard the rights of the people to settle this question themselves and says that regular Republican opposition of a binding initiative and referendum in Wisconsin deprived the people of a direct vote on the 18th amendment. The Democratic state platform also declares for state control.

Urges Utility Competition.

The platform also calls for public competition with private utilities as the only effective way to knock down rates, favors state and national legislation against chain stores and banks as well as enforcement of present laws that can be applied to curb these institutions and calls for an increase of gasoline taxes for highway construction.

"Eleven years ago the control of liquor traffic in 45 states was concentrated at Washington by federal law," the platform declares. "This experiment has been tested by the Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover administrations. Thoughtful citizens have seen its weakness in corruption of the public service.

Asserts People's Rights.

"We assert the right and the moral capacity of the people of Wisconsin to deal wisely and effectively with this and other domestic problems in accordance with their legally expressed will. We freely accord the same right to the people of other states.

"In recognition of this principle the progressive platform of 1928 urged amendment of the Volstead act to comply with the latest mandate of the people of Wisconsin. The Supreme court has never passed upon the power of congress to enact such legislation.

"If the court shall decide that congress must first revise the eighteenth amendment and submit it to the states to restore to the several states effective power to deal with this question, we favor such action to the end that there shall be restored to the people of Wisconsin the right to give effect to their will upon this question, as they may express it by direct vote at the polls.

"We specifically pledge the submission to a direct vote of the people of Wisconsin of any proposed changes in state law made possible by amendment of the Volstead act or the eighteenth amendment before they become law in this state."

AIR-RAIL LINE TO MAKE SPOKANE TRIP IN 24 HRS.

An air-rail hookup providing 24 hour passenger service between Spokane, Wash., and Chicago was announced yesterday by the North Western railway and Julius Perit, manager of the eastern division of the Mamer Air Transport company.

The change from planes to trains and vice versa will be made at St. Paul, according to present plans. Westbound passengers will leave Chicago at 8 p. m. by rail, reaching St. Paul at 7:25 a. m., and the plane will leave there at 7:45 a. m., arriving at Spokane at 7 p. m. the same day. Stops will be made at Aberdeen, S. D.; Miles City, Billings, Butte, and Missoula, Mont.

The new service will provide all air service to the Pacific northwest, although a night's stop over at St. Paul will be necessary in order to make the entire trip by air. Air passenger service between Chicago and St. Paul is provided by the Northwest Airways.

British Investigators Urge Gallows for Murderers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 21.—It is learned that the select committee of parliament on capital punishment, which has been taking evidence for several months, will soon bring in a majority report advising retention of capital punishment. There will be a small minority reporting favoring abolition of capital punishment. One of the notable witnesses before the commission was Judge Marcus Kavanagh of Chicago, who advocated retention of capital punishment.

If You Need Cod Liver Oil

These Sugar-Coated Tablets Are Your Escape from Its Fishy Taste and Odor

Does anything surprise you in this modern world? Think of turning the by-products of coal into pleasing perfumes, billiard balls, or beads for your daughter's neck. And think of the miracle that gives you all the benefits of cod liver oil without the taste.

The flesh, strength and energy increasing elements (vitamins) are now taken from pure Norwegian cod liver oil and put into sugar-coated tablets free from fishy taste, odor or oiliness.

This wonderful discovery—McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets, sold by all druggists—is magically turning pale, puny, delicate, underweight youngsters into rugged, robust, rosy-cheeked boys and girls. McCoy's are also doing wonders for weak, rundown, underweight men and women.

The smallest child can easily take McCoy's, as they taste like candy. 7-year-old Annella Biggs of Irvington, N. J., was so pleased with McCoy's that she herself wrote—"Last Fall I took them (McCoy's) and stopped after I gained 5 pounds." As proof of their safety and benefit, McCoy's have been tested and approved by the Good Housekeeping Bureau of Foods, Sanitation and Health. And all druggists guarantee them—60 tablets 60 cents.

3 ENTER G. O. P. RACE IN MICHIGAN FOR GOVERNOR

Lansing, Mich., July 21.—[Special.]—At least three men will contest for the Republican nomination for governor and one of them is a prominent Democrat, it was determined here today, 24 hours before the final hour for filing petitions in the September primary.

Petitions were brought by airplane from Detroit today for Alex J. Groesbeck, who served three terms as governor, but was defeated by Gov. Fred W. Green four years ago. More than 50,000 names, representing 47 counties, were included on the petitions filed with the secretary of state.

The Groesbeck delegation was headed by former Judge Ernest P. Lajoie of Detroit and included Hezekiah N. Duff, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The personnel of the Groesbeck party apparently was designed to weaken the claim of Wilber M. Brucker, attorney general and administration gubernatorial candidate, to united support of the state's former soldiers.

The third candidate to file for the Republican nomination was Judge Edward J. Jeffries of Recorder's court, Detroit, a Democrat. Judge Jeffries has been indorsed by the state Democratic organization at a primary convention.

NEW SYNCRO-MESH TRANSMISSION*

One of Buick's four new series—with new Valve-in-Head Straight Eight Engines and new Insulated Bodies by Fisher—is priced $200 lower than last year's Buick six. It is the world's lowest priced Valve-in-Head Straight Eight!

Buick, winner of more than twice as many buyers as any other maker of fine cars, will soon present the most brilliant creations in Buick's twenty-seven years of fine car building—

Four series of Straight Eights providing twenty ultra-luxurious models! With masterly new engines—all Valve-in-Head, all Straight Eights—revealing performance far surpassing even the finest previous Buicks! With new Syncro-Mesh Transmissions* assuring the highest degree of smooth, silent, non-clash gear-shifting! With new Insulated Bodies by Fisher endowed with characteristic Buick beauty and protected, like a fine home, against heat, cold and noise! Together with a host of other important improvements!

Buick is building eights exclusively. The Eight as Buick Builds It is fundamentally a better engine. Every unit has been carefully designed to assure uniform excellence throughout. The entire chassis reveals increased size and strength to conform with the increased power of the new engines. And the result is an entirely new degree of roadability—a train-like sureness and steadiness of flight heretofore unknown in Buick's field.

You are familiar with Buick's twenty-seven year record of leadership. . . . You have hoped for greater goodness and greater value in straight eight manufacture. . . . Await the Eight as Buick Builds It!

A dark horse spurted to the front in the first round of the Western Amateur golf tournament yesterday at the Beverly Country club. In his first attempt at the title, Lloyd Nordstrom of Davenport, Ia., led the field of 215 contestants with a score of 38—34—72, one over par.

This hitherto unknown player got the jump on two former British champions, two former western amateur champions, the Chicago district and trans-Mississippi titleholders, and a brilliant array of sharpshooters who have proved their skill in tournaments.

Tolley Weakens on Last 9.

Tolley was out with a string of eight 4's and a 3 to reach the turn one under par, but a drive into a bunker on the 13th and trouble with a trap on the 14th brought his score for the last nine to 38.

Armstrong was more consistent than Lehman, but the latter was somewhat more brilliant. Don was out in 37 and home in 36 while Johnny was taking a 40 on the first nine and coming back with a 33.

Next came Gus Novotny of Edgewood Valley and Al Huske of Briergate, each with 74. Close behind were such seasoned campaigners as T. P. Perkins, 1928 British champion; Chick Evans, Rudy Knepper, George Dawson, and several others, all with 75.

Bob McCrary, the trans-Mississippi champion, got a miserable start and was out in 41, but rallied on the home nine and finished with a 77.

Westland Has Off Day.

Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge, who won the Chicago district amateur championship recently, had an off day, shooting a 42 and a 39 for an 81. Charlie Becka of Calumet, runner up to Westland, came in with a 77. He shot par 36 on the first nine and continued well until he reached the thirteenth, but a 5 here, a 6 on the fifteenth, a 4 on the seventeenth, and a 7 on the eighteenth brought him home in 41, 6 strokes over par.

Another of the favorites, Keefe Carter of Oklahoma City, who won the Western Amateur in 1925, shot a 40 and a 37 for a 77.

The 32 who qualify for match play will be named at the end of another 18 holes today. Don Moe, the defending titleholder, is exempt from the preliminaries. Two 18 hole rounds will be played tomorrow, and 36 hole rounds will follow on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, when the champion will be crowned.

Course Balks Players.

That numerous difficulties now beset the most skillful golfers on the newly altered Beverly course is indicated by the fact that no one was able to shoot par 71.

Nordstrom went one over par on the first hole when he hooked his tee shot into the rough and put his second in a trap. He was one over again on the third, where he dubbed his drive so badly that it carried scarcely fifty yards.

Then he steadied and shot par all the way to the twelfth, where he took four putts for a 5. He birdied the 14th by reaching the green with a drive, a pitch and one putt.

On the eighteenth he was in trouble again, but extricated himself nicely and got another birdie. He hooked his tee shot, got out with an iron and sent a mashie pitch to the green. Then he sank a 20 foot putt for a 4.

Leaders in Mackinac Race Near Their Destination

Dispatches from Mackinac island at midnight said that the leading yachts in the annual race to that isle were 20 miles from their destination. The entire fleet was expected to arrive early this morning.

Vagabond, owned by Eddie Purtell, and flying the burgee of the Milwaukee Yacht club, was far in the lead. Whether or not she would have her time allowance on the smaller boats was problematical, as the most freakish wind in the history of the race had left the result in doubt momentarily.

Peoria, Ill., July 21.—(AP)—Eddie Shea, Chicago featherweight, knocked out Ray McIntyre of Los Angeles in the first round of a ten round bout tonight. A left to the jaw finished McIntyre after 1 minute 30 seconds of action.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—It cost Hack Wilson eight gallons of perspiration and three rolls of muscle, but the loss was amply repaid, for in this afternoon's 6 to 0 Cub victory over the Giants, Hack propelled his 28th homer to break a scoreless tie in the fourth inning. He came back in the sixth to bust out No. 29 with one on, making the score 3 to 0. Hack has made five homers in four days after laying off 12 days between No. 24 and 25.

Another homer by Doc Farrell with one on in the seventh accounted for the fourth and fifth Cub runs.

Mr. Hack not only sweltered out a victory for Pat Malone and the rest of his mates but his herculean socking lifted the Cubs into first place, a berth they have not occupied this last fortnight or so. When the Robins lost the second game of a double header to the Cards they permitted the Cubs to pass them in the big race. The standing this evening is Chicago, .584; Brooklyn, .581.

Malone Breezes Through.

Malone was a great pitcher during the eight innings he worked. He never was in any danger and though the Giants made eight hits, none was for extra bases. At the end of eight innings Manager McCarthy halted the perspiration race between Malone and Wilson by telling Pat to go to the showers. Charley Root pitched the ninth and continued the Giants' goose egg chain.

The victory today reëstablished the Cubs as a .500 ball club on this trip, after they had been dragged under yesterday in the opener. The champions now have won 9 and lost 9 since leaving home on July 3.

Tomorrow the boys will engage in a double header with the Giants and the lads are praying the weather man is right in his prediction of more livable temperature. If Root feels no ill effects from pitching the last inning today, he probably will work one of tomorrow's contests and Blake the other. In the event Root is not elected, Bud Teachout probably will be the choice. It looks like Heving and Donohue for the Giants.

Gabby Strikes Out.

There were two scoring threats, one by each club, up till the time Hack produced his first homer. In the first inning the Giants had men on third and second with two out, as a result of Leach's single, Blair's error and a sacrifice fly by Terry, but the inning ended when Malone threw out Ott.

In the Cubs second D. Taylor got to second on Jackson's throwing error and went to third while Critz was throwing out Grimm. Hartnett was called out on strikes and Farrell fouled to Hogan.

Cuyler opened the fourth inning by popping to Lindstrom. Then Hack looped a homer into the right field stand. D. Taylor popped to Critz and Jackson threw out Grimm.

Terry opened the Giant's fourth with a single to center, and after Ott had popped to English, Hogan singled to left, Terry stopping at second. Further progress in the inning was halted by Jackson, who grounded into a double play, Farrell to Grimm.

English Starts Trouble.

English singled to center with one out in the sixth, then Cuyler lined to Leach for the second out. At this point, Hack smacked out No. 29, which was bigger and better than No. 28, in that it went higher and deeper into the right field stand.

After one was out in the seventh Hartnett beat out a slow roller to Lindstrom and proceeded to second when Freddie made a bum throw. Farrell then got his homer, which was a liner into the left field stand, scoring Hartnett ahead of him. Malone singled to center and went to second on Blair's single to right. Pat took third while English was forcing Blair, but Cuyler flied to Ott.

The Cubs added a run in the ninth on Hartnett's single and three bases on balls.

BIG BILL TILDEN'S decision to play on the American Davis cup team brightens Yankee chances against France in the international matches this week just that much. However, this announcement does not carry the thrill we had expected. Constant bickering over the player-writer amateur rule has become boresome. Either the rule is right or wrong, and it should be enforced to the letter or rescinded. We think in Tilden's case it is wrong.

BILL TILDEN.

Perhaps you recall that The Wake originally predicted that Tilden would join the American team if invited to do so. When he said he would adhere to his newspaper contract we accepted that statement as final. Now we find another change of front. As we understand it, Big Bill may write of the tourney for three days preceding it. Then he must not write daily stories of the matches, but may comment on them afterward. Isn't that silly?

If Tilden secured a compromise thereby we fail to see it. Under the strict terms of the rule, he could have done this very same thing without official confirmation that such actions would be all right.

Tilden apparently could not resist the temptation to take one more fling at the trophy in America's behalf. To a person who has devoted most of his time to tennis before leaving college, we suppose the lure was irresistible. To The Wake, the situation has become so tiresome our elation or depression at victory or defeat will be correspondingly lessened.

ITALY MEASURES ARMY UNIFORM FOR BIG CARNERA

Omaha, Neb., July 21.—(AP)—Frank Paccassi, business manager of Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight fighter, said tonight that Carnera's ring career had run its course.

Paccassi announced that Carnera has a year to serve in the Italian army and must return to his native land to don the uniform. The business manager revealed that the managers of Carnera had made an agreement with Premier Mussolini of Italy for a six months' extension of the date on which Primo was to enter the army, but that this time had elapsed and he must return to Italy at once.

Curtains for Primo.

"After a year in the Italian army, Primo will not be worth a darn. This is the final curtain to Primo's career," Paccassi lamented as he told of efforts that had been made to match the fighter with Jack Dempsey.

Paccassi's statement that Carnera was to join the Italian army came on the heels of his announcement today that the government authorities had denied Primo and his manager, Leon See, an extension of their stay in the United States.

Make Sailing Plans.

He revealed the government decision upon receipt today of a telegram from Byron H. Uhl, assistant commissioner of Ellis island. The telegram, addressed to See, advised him of the decision and ordered See and his fighter to prepare to vacate American shores.

Paccassi immediately got in touch with See at Steubenville, O. See, he said tonight, told him that he and Primo would leave for New York following an exhibition at Steubenville tonight and would sail for France the latter part of the month.

It's Always Rough Weather When Robin Fans Get Together

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—The Brooklyn baseball fans, the only aboriginal tribe of fans still retaining clan identity in a sophisticated major league world, are enjoying an unusually pleasant season this year. The Brooklyn Robins, or Dodgers, have been leading the National league and the tribal spirit has flamed very hot in Flatbush, Busywick and all the remote and primitive Brooklyn settlements far out toward the ends of the car lines where the civilized New Yorker from Manhattan seldom ventures.

There has been such a rallying around the little tribal headquarters erected by the late Charlie Ebbets as never disturbed the region before and the traveling secretaries of visiting clubs have gone away bearing interesting data on the undeveloped riches of the country on the far side of the bridge, gleaned from the turnstile readings. I hear the management intends to enlarge the Brooklyn ball yard next winter.

They're Real Fans.

The Brooklyn fan is the only baseball patron in this section who still retains a scolding, cheering, quarreling interest in his baseball team. There are still some devotees attending the Giants' games who feel a loyalty to John J. McGraw, but this is a personal following composed of horse-track people, Tammany regulars, and parties who for lack of any more definite classification might be described as gentlemen around and about the town. They are mostly red-faced, gray in the hair, if any, and very blunt and positive about things, or so I picture them just from observation of individuals, because they do not sit in any particular section of the Polo grounds regularly and their identity as a crowd is rather loosely held except at times when there is some occasion to rally to the support of Mr. McGraw.

His baseball club, however, with its ever changing personnel and its tendency to ballyhoo ephemeral ball players beyond their true importance, after the manner of the Garden corporation ballyhooing unimportant fighters, does not seem to stir the ferocity in the general run of patrons which distinguishes the fan from the mere customer. The Giants have a large following of customers, but from their demeanor at the ball games, as compared with the firce interest of the Brooklyn fan, I do not judge them to be fans in the old meaning of the word.

Brooklyn Crowd Impulsive.

The Brooklyn fans, though, are plainly impulsive and quite natural. They abuse their own athletes with all the furious wrath and painful candor of close relatives in a household row, but when the pinch comes the Brooklyn Robins, or Dodgers, are their ball club and they stand with them against the league. Not many years ago every major league ball club had one or two nut rooters who sat in the same seats at all or most of the home games, doing curious things or yelling distinctive remarks, some of them quite goofy and meaningless under analysis, but who made themselves locally famous for their goings-on. Nowadays I do not hear of any such, except at the Brooklyn park, although it is true that I have not been going around the leagues to look for specimens of this strange wild life, the nut fan.

The most persistent and bothersome of the nut fans in Brooklyn is a female of the species, a portly lady with a red complexion and a voice and vocabulary which sounds as though they might have been cultivated on the tailboard of a fish wagon in the alleys of the borough.

I first noticed this lady nut several years ago scolding and bawling out the Brooklyn athletes one moment and turning on the members of the visiting troupe the next, and old settlers of Ebbets field told me she had been at it for years then. Is is a bit of a surprise to observe that she is still as energetic, noisy, and pestiferous as ever and I am now ready to admit that any one who can keep going as long as she has is not merely appealing for attention but is a genuine nut.

Organizes Cheering Section.

Sometimes she organizes crowds of the younger set around her and sets up concerted yowlings to upset the gentlemen of the opposition, as on a recent day when the Phillies trotted out a pitcher with a four count windup. The lady set up a squawking "One, two, three, four" as the pitcher wound up for each pitch and the Brooklyn fans took up the count with her. The pitcher changed his beat, winding up in three counts and then dropped it to two to throw them off, but he lasted three innings and walked off, leaving two men on base.

There is another Brooklyn nut fan, known just as Abe, who seems to root consistently against the Robins, sometimes rising to point at individual athletes in the dugout and shout opprobrious remarks, and I hear tell that he has sometimes required cops to protect him from other fans whose loyalties have been outraged by his comments.

The Brooklyn fan may be rational on all other subjects but you touch him off when you mention baseball. I was talking to a perfect specimen and he discussed many things in a reasonable way, but when I mentioned the abuse of the Brooklyn catcher, Hank De Berry, in Saturday's game with the Cubs, a maniac stare appeared in his eyes, his hair stood out like a porcupine's bristles, and he began to shout:

"De Berry deserved what he got," he yelled. "De Berry threw away that ball game. It makes no difference how long he has been with the ball club, Robby should have jerked him out of there and put Lopez in to catch. Robby threw down the fans. They

The White Sox yesterday had intentions of riveting another decision to the winning streak that had reached three games, but Boston's Red Sox had other ideas. So the White Hose finished on the worthless end of a 3 to 1 score in a game played in one hour and 24 minutes, the fastest of the season on the south side.

Whatever hope they had of going places was shattered by Horace Lisenbee, who breezed through the nine innings with only five hits chalked up against him. Two came in the ninth and enabled the Chicagoans to dodge a coat of whitewash. Tommy Thomas yielded only six hits, but three came in one inning and supplied Lisenbee with the margin by which he gained the decision. Walsh hurled the ninth after Tate, a hitless pinch hitter, had gone in for Tommy.

Henry Named to Pitch.

The fourth of the series will be played today with Dutch Henry the White Sox pitching nominee. The south siders expect to look at the offerings of Bull Durham.

Boston's first run was a gift. After two men had been retired in the second inning, Thomas passed Reeves. He immediately set out to steal second and finished at the plate because Crouse's peg went to center field and Barnes slipped in pursuing the ball.

Reeves again was a trouble maker for Tommy when Boston picked up its two runs in the fifth. The Red Sox shortstop opened the session with a single to left and took second when Berry hit a one baser in the same direction. Both moved up on Lisenbee's sacrifice. Oliver's single past third drove them home. Berry beat out a slow roller to Ryan in the seventh for Boston's sixth and last hit.

Jolley, Reynolds Hit.

Until the ninth all of the White Sox's three hits had come after two were defunct. But the Chicagoans opened fire earlier in the final frame. Mulleavy flied out and then Reynolds lined a single to center. He pulled up at third when Jolley shot a double over first and scored on Barnes' long fly to left. Cissell then sent Oliver scurrying back for his fly and the game ended.

Alex Metzler, who has been used as a pinch hitter most of the season, yesterday was sent to the St. Louis Browns on waivers, White Sox officials announced.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BILL JOHNSTON.

The wisp of a fellow whose iron forehand several times made him Bill Tilden's master, has gained fifteen pounds since going into seclusion at Ross hospital, near San Rafel. Confined to his bed for three weeks, he is now allowed to hike 20 minutes every day on Mount Tamalpais.

Johnston was stricken with a lung disease last April.

Study of Air Science Boosts Yacht Speed

Yachtsmen have apparently become air minded. In an effort to wrest more speed from the four winds, they have been experimenting with various theories in aerodynamics, a science which has aided flyers in discovering the why and wherefore of wind pressures and their reaction on planes.

The business of keeping up with the winds was given a new twist by an aerodynamics implement called the wind tunnel. This is a magnified version of the Venturi tube, used by students of physics and hydraulics in measuring the flow of liquids. The wind tunnel was designed to test the result of pressure on various parts of model aeroplanes.

What Happens in Wind Tunnel.

The model of the plane to be tested is placed on a small stand in the wind tunnel. In order to insure a uniform flow of air through the tunnel, a pair of honeycomb shaped plates are built around the area inclosing the test plane. The air is then sent through one mouth of the tunnel and is sucked through to the other by a propeller. Measuring devices attached to that part of the tunnel in which the model plane is secured determine its lifting power, its drag or resistance and the center of pressure.

A recording disc faces the current to determine the positive pressure on the plane. Gustave Eiffel, who supervised the construction of the Eiffel tower in Paris, decided to try the disc away from the wind to ascertain the negative pressure.

Here it was that Monsieur Eiffel

BY FRENCH LANE.

Two horses from Washington—Jock, the property of Edward B. McLean, the publisher, and Hot Toddy, owned by Mrs. Katheryn Elkins Hitt, fought it out in the Lake Villa purse at Arlington Park yesterday.

When the combat ended Jock, racing next to the rail, was in front by about three-eighth of an inch and he got the decision over Hot Toddy, which had started his rally just a few seconds too late, or it would have been reversed. Canaan, from the Lemar Stock farm stable, was three lengths back of the two leaders.

Cheers and Groans Follow.

Few stretch runs such as Hot Toddy's vain one have been witnessed by an Arlington crowd. It brought all the 9,000 spectators to their feet and the official numbers were hung out amid cheers and groans, for the backers of Jock were certain he had won and those who supported Hot Toddy were just as sure his nose was showing in front at the finish.

But despite the groans, which later turned to hoots, there was no change made in the placing. There seldom is a change made in a placing unless there has been a foul. There was no semblance of a foul in this race. But who could deny the Hot Toddy followers the right to howl at the decision even though they were wrong?

After Hot Toddy got away from the barrier in front, Jockey Steffen immediately rushed Jock to the lead and he never faltered from there until the finish. Cantankerous ran second most of the way, Canaan was third, and Hot Toddy was running fourth.

Hot Toddy Moves Up.

Just after the run down the stretch started with Jock still leading by three lengths, Cantankerous began to quit and so did Canaan. Hot Toddy, under a vigorous ride by E. Watters, began to move up. But Watters had made his move too late. Hot Toddy had plenty of run left. He drew nearer to Jock, a few inches at each stride. In the last few jumps it appeared as if he would head the McLean star, but Jock kept gallantly at it and won in the last jump.

In the mutuels Jock and Hot Toddy absorbed most of the support. Jock paid $5.74 to win, $3.22 to place and $2.76 to show. Hot Toddy paid $3.06 to place and 2.44 to show. Canaan's show price was $4.56. The time for the mile was 1:37 1-5.

In the Fox River purse for 3 year olds, which was also at a mile, Jimmy Moran, a Maryland colt from the stable of E. K. Bryson, scored handily by a length and a half from Fortunate Youth, with Uncle Luther third. A bad spill came half way down the back stretch when Jeanne Wachs stumbled and threw Jockey Richard. He was badly injured and was taken to the St. James hospital in Elgin.

Jimmy Moran Trails.

Jimmy Moran trailed Flyer and Outer Harbor for the first six furlongs and then tore for the lead, which he took at the head of the stretch. Jockey Morris had him galloping easily down the stretch as he held all the others safe. Jimmy Moran was overlooked and paid $16.46. He ran the mile in 1:38 over a track which by this time had been dulled by a drizzle of rain.

Edward J. Lehmann's consistent Suitor won the Sheboygan purse, which was another mile dash, but he had to stage a great run in the stretch to whip Searington and Plumbago. Suitor had thousands of backers and they almost lifted the roof off the stands as he came up with his stretch rally. He paid $4.78. Low Gear, which also mustered a late following, was away tardily and ran far back of the field most of the way.

Blue Larkspur, Misstep to Run in $35,000 Handicap

Blue Larkspur came out of the Arlington Cup in such good condition Trainer Dick Thompson announced yesterday it was his intention to start the cup winner in the Arlington handicap on Saturday afternoon. Blue Larkspur will have his final training drill tomorrow morning.

Leo Marks, owner of Misstep, reported that the little red flash of the western turf, was coming along nicely and likely would be a starter. It was also announced during the afternoon that Toro will start in the handicap and that both Easter Stockings and Gallant Knight likely will be shipped from Latonia to start in Saturday's handicap.

Joseph E. Widener's Curate, Herbert B. Swope's Lativich, William T., Sun Beau, Dr. Freeland, Snowflake, Plucky Play, and other handicap candidates worked well at Arlington yesterday. The field in the $35,000 race is expected to number more than a dozen.

Uruguay Beats Rumania in International Soccer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay July 21.—Starting the second week of games in the international championship soccer football tournament here, Uruguay beat Rumania, 4 to 0. This was the only game scheduled for today.

MISS HEDBURG TOPS JUNIOR WOMEN'S GOLF

Lucy Jane Hedburg of Skokie yesterday led the qualifying round for the women's western junior golf title at Evanston. Miss Hedburg scored 45-42-87 to lead her nearest competitor by six strokes.

Priscilla Carver or Mission Hills was second with 93 and Jane Gage of La Grange third with 94. After a tie for eighth place among the qualifiers, Evelyn Folger of Bunker Hill defeated Esther Lerch of Skokie in the playoff.

Miss Hedburg also won the driving contest by averaging 200 yards in three trials.

Her card showed two birdies and eleven pars, with only one bad hole, the second, where she took seven after being in the woods. She finished four strokes over women's par. First round pairings:

Frances Welter, 98, vs. Evelyn Folger, 103.

The bi-monthly professional-amateur golf tournament held yesterday at Edgewood Valley resulted in a triple tie for first place. B. M. Steele and Guy Paulson of Olympia Fields scored 33—35—68; F. J. Kelly and Tom Dickson, Edgewood Valley, had 32—36—68, and T. A. Hunter and Jess Adams of Hickory Hills shot 35—32—68. The next pro-amateur event will be held at Ravisloe Aug. 4.

aviation students, and subsequently yachtsmen, received a big surprise. The reversal of the disc proved that this negative pressure was from three to four times as powerful as the positive pressure.

Flyers Note Pressure Variance.

This discovery revealed the fact that planes and boats derive motion not from the driving pressure on the windward side but rather are "sucked" forward by the negative pressure on the lee, or side opposite to the wind. Early flyers became aware of the difference of pressure on both side when diving suddenly during a flight, they found, when resuming a horizontal position, the top of their planes' wings cut to shreds by the negative pressure, whereas the positive pressure had in no way affected the under side of the wings.

Aeroplane designers took advantage of Eiffel's work by reducing the wing surfaces on planes, thus giving them more of a "leading edge" (the forward and upper surface of the wings) and increasing the suction effect resulting from the negative pressure. Subsequently, the fabric along the leading edge was doubled to prevent tearing during a drop of the plane.

Except for individual experiments by amateurs, yachtsmen didn't begin to deal with this new principle until after the war, according to Paul H. Blair, Chicago naval architect and surveyor for Lloyd's Register, who has employed aerodynamics in increasing the driving power of yachts. The wind tunnel was employed as a test for wind pressure on the sails of yachts, and these tests also bore out the suction theory.

Increases Speed of Ariel.

The Ariel, owned by Malcolm D. Vail and E. E. Sheridan of the Chicago Yacht club, and one of the fastest R class boats on Lake Michigan, is an example of Mr. Blair's work. The Ariel was designed and built in 1920. It became the property of Ogden T. McClurg, who raced it with fair success. Upon his death it was sold to Mr. Vail and Mr. Sheridan.

Mr. Vail wasn't satisfied with the speed capabilities of the boat, and asked Mr. Blair what could be done to increase them. In changing the Ariel's rig, Mr. Blair used airplane cables and monel metal fittings. Later, the after edge of the mainsail was trimmed, the boom was shortened, and the leading edges of the mainsail and jib were lengthened. The leading edge in a yacht, similar to the upper and forward edge of a plane's wings, is that part of the mainsail nearest the mast. Here the negative pressure on the lee is concentrated, and Mr. Blair's work in trimming the sail increased the Ariel's leading edge and diminished its drag or resistance.

This operation naturally increases the area in which the suction or negative pressure gathered. As to whether or not the Ariel's power was increased, Mr. Blair points to the fact that she won the fleet championship of the [illegible] class boats of the Chicago Yacht club last year; took the time prize in the Michigan City race last year and this, and in the six races in which Mr. Vail has skippered her this year, has defeated all comers, including easterly boats of recent design.

Another aviation angle which yachtsmen have taken up is the slotted wing, originated by F. Handley Page, English plane designer. This is an opening in the wing of a plane between the upper and lower surface. Its chief value is as a safety device. The wing slot opens automatically whenever a plane is stalled or goes into a spin, captures the negative pressure, and halts the plane temporarily, the increased suction adding to its lifting power.

Yachts Use Idea for Speed.

The yachtsman's adaptation of the slotted wing is found in the overlapping jib, Mr. Blair explained. Here it is used for speed's sake, rather than safety's. The leech or after edge of the jib is moved aft of the leading edge of the mainsail, thus creating an additional vacuum, hence more speed. The overlapping jib was first used with success by the "Scharen-kwers," European boats which competed last year in the international races at Marblehead, Mass. Mr. Blair has outfitted the Ariel and the Joan with overlapping jibs and both have found it successful.

Mr. Blair has made a business and a hobby of yachting, having started sailing at the age of 8. Since then he has done considerable deep water sailing. He designed the lines, sails and accommodation plans for the Northern Light on the John Borden Field museum expedition to the Arctic in 1927.

Nipigon River Trout Fill Many a Creel

BY BOB BECKER.

Fishermen from Chicago and other parts of the central states are putting four and five pound brook trout in their creels while fishing the Nipigon river country this summer. Reports from that noted trout stream and the adjacent island of St. Ignace tell of excellent sport with the whopping big red spotted trout, which attain record breaking size in that part of Canada.

Among the middle western fishermen wrestling with the big fellows up there along the Lake Superior shore line is N. H. Pritchard of Chicago, who, with a party of Wisconsin, Toronto, and New York anglers, has just made some fine catches of brook trout, including many large specimens.

One of the surprising things about the July fishing this year on the Nipigon is the number of good sized fish which are being caught quite close to the town of Nipigon. When we fished that stream we went 'way up above Virgin falls and came down with tent and canoe to fish a number of rapids. This took considerable time, and we camped out while coming down stream. This year both fly and bait casters have been able to stay fairly close to the little town of Nipigon and get plenty of fish without too much travel.

The St. Ignace island fishing is reported to be exceptionally good this summer. This island in Lake Superior can be reached in a few hours by boat from the mainland. It is a dandy place for a base camp from which one can work the open trout water for the big "coaster" brook trout (four and five pounders or larger), as well as the small inland streams for medium sized fish.

Canzoneri Gives Champion Bass Boxing Lesson

Philadelphia, Pa., July 21.—[Special.]—Tony Canzoneri, Brooklyn junior lightweight, gave Benny Bass, the recognized champion, a ten round beating at the Phillies' park tonight before a crowd of 15,000 sweltering fans. Canzoneri, obliged to come in over the 130 pound limit, was too strong for Bass, who weighed 125¾, but Tony did 130¼ after weighing-in time.

ROBINS TUMBLE CARDINALS, 9-8; THEN LOSE, 17-10

Hendrick's Homer with 2 On Wins First.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 21.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins relinquished the National league leadership to the Chicago Cubs today, dividing a double header with the Cards. The first contest went to the Robins, 9 to 8, but the Cards came back in the second game with a 17 to 10 slugfest. Five home runs were hit in the opener. Circuit drives by Mancuso, Frisch, Bottomley and Puccinelli scored all of the Brooklyn runs but proved worthless when Harvey Hendrick poled out a pinch hit home run in the ninth with two on base and won the game.

PHILS, 7; PIRATES, 2.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 21.—(AP)—Clever pitching by Lester Sweetland today enabled the Phils to defeat the Pirates, 7 to 2, in the first game of the series.

The Phils hammered Kremer for five runs in the first and added four more in the fifth to complete their triumph.

Two home runs, one by Southern and another by Whitney, with O'Doul on base, gave the Phils their first two of tallies. A base on balls for Sweetland, singles by O'Doul and Klein, and a double by Klein and a triple by Whitney accounted for the final quartet of counters. Traynor's double and singles by Grantham and Comorosky scored the Pittsburgh runs. Score:

OLD ALEX, FIRED BY DALLAS, SAYS IT'S A SURPRISE

Dallas, Tex., July 21.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran major league pitcher, was given his outright release today by the Dallas club of the Texas league. Failure to keep in training after he had promised to do so several days ago was given as the reason for Alexander's removal from the roster.

Interviewed at a local hotel two hours after Bob Tarleton, vice president of the Dallas club, had announced his release, Alexander professed complete surprise.

"I can't understand it," the veteran said. "I was in shape and ready to pitch yesterday's first game, but they told me just before game time I would pitch the second. Then they put me in as a relief pitcher in the first. I stepped into a hole and wrenched my knee."

U. S. CHESS TEAM BEATS GERMANY IN WORLD MEET

HAMBURG, Germany, July 21.—(AP)—Competitors in the team tournament of the International Chess federation today resumed play in the tenth round, in which the United States team was paired with the hitherto undefeated German quartet. Finishing three of the four games in the first session, the Americans won the match by 2½ to ½, with one game adjourned.

F. J. Marshall and H. Steiner of New York won from Seamisch and Wagner, respectively, and J. A. Anderson of St. Louis drew with Carls. The game between I. Kashdan of New York and Ahues was adjourned. The United States' total went up to 24½, Holland having 26, and Germany and England, each 25.

STEEPLECHASING at Arlington today

CHICAGO sport lovers are now experiencing a brand new sensation—the thrill of the steeplechase. This exciting spectacle—staged three times a week at Arlington—is taking the town by storm. Thousands are flocking to this marvelous racing place to see the most agile fencers in America take the difficult jumps of the new steeplechase course.

Besides the chase, they see the keenest races ever held on a western track. The world's greatest thoroughbreds, the most famous eastern jockeys are all gathered at Arlington to provide the greatest horse competition of all times.

One month ago 7.65@12.25
One year ago 13.75@14.85
Top yesterday, $10.00; average, $9.35.

Receipts at Chicago today, 45,000 cattle, 21,000 hogs, and 15,000 sheep.

Hogs broke 10@25c on yesterday's slow trade, closing at the low point of the day, with light weights weakest. The extreme top came down 25c at $9.75, while the general average showed 20c loss at $8.80. Early bids of $9.90 were lost when the market weakened on top kinds, and, reported sales at $9.80 and $9.85 failed to materialize.

Range of prices widened again, with medium weights selling on a "catch as catch can" trade, as usual when a wide spread in prices exists. A difference of a few pounds often makes a difference of 50c in price. Choice 200 lb averages topped the price list, while 250 lb average stopped at $9.05 and 350 pounders at $8.50. Larger houses were bearish and left 7,000 in the pens at the close. Five western markets expect 62,000 hogs today against 65,400 last Tuesday.

August Feeders Bid $7.25.

Trading in both hogs and feeding lambs for future delivery was more active yesterday. About 1,200 medium wool black face mountain lambs averaging 55@62 lbs were bid $7.25 for delivery during the first half of August. The same bids for first half of September was made on similar quality and weight.

Medium wool white face mountain lambs of medium weight for delivery the first half of September were bid $7.00. Hog futures ruled steady to 10c higher, September light opening at $9.55 and closing at $9.60, while mediums for the same month sold at $9.50. December light, mediums and heavy were bid $8.25, but $8.50 was the lowest offer at the close.

Cattle receipts yesterday were estimated at 13,000 the smallest Monday run since middle of last January. This total compares with 16,861 a week ago and with 23,011 two weeks ago. The shortage frustrated buyers' efforts to further weaken the market, but salesmen, on the other hand, were unable to regain any of last week's $1.00@1.50 loss.

Cows and heifers weakened slightly near the finish, in face of the meager supply of 6,000 estimated for today. Twenty markets showed a decrease of 21 per cent compared with a week ago and 30 per cent smaller receipts than a year ago. Several carloads of prime 980@1,064 lb yearlings topped the market at $10.85 in midsession, while the bulk went at $8.00@9.75, against $9.25@10.75 the previous Monday. Steers averaging 1,000 lbs sold down to $7.00. Calves were steady considering poorer quality. Stockers and feeders were weak.

Lambs Slump 50c.

Another disastrous break in the market for fat lambs carried top west ern rangers down to $10.00 and sorted natives down to $9.50@9.75. Although receipts were comparatively small at 15,000, buyers were in a bearish mood and insisted that the dressed lamb trade could handle even smaller supplies without experiencing a shortage.

Aged and yearling sheep were scarce and steady. Little change was noted in the market for feeding lambs, although tendency on plain kinds ruled lower again.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 6,000 cattle, 24,000 hogs and 15,000 sheep, against 8,353 cattle, 26,591 hogs and 15,604 sheep the previous Tuesday, and 7,363 cattle, 25,767 hogs and 15,435 sheep a year ago.

Praises Advertising for Gain in Sales of Cigarets

New York, July 21.—(AP)—Commenting on the increase of more than 900,000,000 in total cigaret production during June, the American Tobacco company attributes the gain in cigaret sales during the first half of the year, a time when sales of other products were mostly declining, in part to "the aggressive advertising campaigns of cigaret manufacturers, who have shown their faith in newspaper advertising by increased appropriations." It adds that this has been at a time when many other manufacturers are reducing their advertising investments.

BORDEN'S PLAN NEW PLANT FOR HAMILTON PARK

Investment Will Total $600,000.

BY AL CHASE.

Borden's Farm Products company of Illinois yesterday took out a building permit for the construction of a two and three story pasteurizing plant at 220 West 70th place, which will represent a reported total investment in land and building of $600,000. The new structure will replace the Hamilton Park branch on the same site, which has been in operation for the last two decades. Work on the new building will start within a week. Completion is set for March 1, 1931.

E. E. and Elmer C. Roberts, architects, have drawn plans for a two and three story structure which will cover a site 152x266. The Borden company also is having plans drawn by the same architects for a $150,000 distributing plant on Vincennes avenue in Blue Island, which will be one story and occupy a site 78x344. In addition it will have a 40x70 garage and a 74x76 stable.

Buys Lake Geneva Estate.

Mrs. R. B. Whitaker has purchased the fourteen acre estate on the north shore of Lake Geneva, for many years occupied by the late Henry A. Haugan, Chicago banker. The property was bought from the Foreman Trust & Savings bank, trustee, for a price said to have been between fifty and sixty thousand dollars. W. F. Best & Son of Lake Geneva negotiated the transaction. The residence on the Haugan property is now rented. When the lease expires in a few weeks the new owner will take possession.

The Allan-Klapp company, newspaper representative, established twenty-seven years ago, has leased the northeast portion of the fourth floor of the new Michigan Square building, Michigan and Ohio streets through Hogan and Farwell.

Engarle Clearing Station.

Rapid growth of the Clearing Industrial district has necessitated an addition to the Clearing postal station located in the Clearing Administration building, at the northeast corner of 65th street and Central avenue. A one story annex, 25x75, will be erected on the north.

David A. Nicholson of 8 South Michigan avenue, living at Glencoe, yesterday purchased the southeast corner of Orleans and Hill, 168x100, from Mrs. Lillian D. Bamberger for an undisclosed consideration.

Location of two more accounting firms in the One La Salle building is announced with the leasing of space by F. B. Andrews & Co. and McCoy Holland, Arndt & Sweeney. L. J. Sheridan & Co., were brokers. There are now nine accounting firms in the building.

BUTLER BROS. TO TEST OUT RETAIL PRICE THEORY

Cuts Seen Shortest Road to Boom.

BY O. A. MATHER.

And now another big merchandising concern has espoused the theory that reduction of retail prices commensurate with the recent decline in wholesale commodity prices is the surest and quickest way to start a business recovery. Butler Brothers, wholesalers of merchandise to retail dealers, yesterday announced price reductions ranging from 2 to 12 per cent on a majority of items, with others running to 20 per cent and a few as high as 50 and 60 per cent.

"The public in many localities is on strike," President Frank S. Cunningham warned in a letter to the company's customers. "People are expecting lower prices, due to the general knowledge that markets are soft, and they won't be happy until they get them. We are offering our merchant customers the lowest prices in months and in some instances in years and are recommending that they pass these on to the public.

"We are pointing the way to all wholesalers and manufacturers by which the long delayed consumption of goods may be given impetus. We do not look for any great further shrinkage in primary costs. We do not anticipate long continuance of present conditions if the public's thinking is changed by lower prices which the people feel are their due."

Similar Argument.

A similar line of argument appears in the current review of the Foreman State National bank, Chicago.

"The radical retail price reductions announced by Montgomery Ward & Co. and Sears, Roebuck & Co. a week ago are of outstanding importance," the review says, "inasmuch as they seem to strike at the very heart of the resistance to business recovery—that of readjusting costs to the consumer as reflected in retail prices, down to the income of consumers as reflected in wholesale prices, and which have gone off so notably during the last twelve months."

Although thus far in July business has displayed the sluggishness characteristic of midsummer after failing in June to attain its normal seasonal volume, the Harvard Economic society says in its weekly letter that some factors which have contributed to the delay in business recovery, notably commodity price and stock price declines, seem at present to have about spent their force. And as no new adverse factors are in sight, it is believed that foundations have been laid for the recovery and that substantial improvement will be in evidence during the current half year.

But a warning against overoptimism is sounded in the statement that "whether attributed to the continued decline in wholesale prices, the downward reaction in stock prices or the fears and uncertainties created by political and other elements, the fact is clear that recovery in business has been delayed."

Grist of Earnings.

A grist of corporation earnings statements for the first half or second quarter of this year, appearing yesterday, held small grounds for enthusiasm, although poor showings had been anticipated. The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company reported that the half year produced a balance for the common stock of $8,267,362, compared with $13,131,380 in the first half of 1929, while sales billed were $93,022,036, against $99,927,790. The report pointed out, however, that the company's radio branch was transferred on Jan. 1 this year to the Radio Corporation of America in return for a stock interest in the latter concern.

The Hudson Motor Car company reported its half year's net income at $3,932,012, or $2.12 a share, compared with $10,621,512, or $6.55 a share, for the first half of 1929. Net income for the second quarter was $1,075,067, or 67 cents a share, compared with $2,316,945, or $1.45 a share, for the same period last year.

On the other hand, the General Foods corporation in the first half of this year had net income of $10,629,716, equal to $2.01 a share on the common stock, compared with $9,848,057, or $1.89 a share, in the first half of 1929. And the Procter & Gamble company, excluding James S. Kirk & Co., which was recently acquired, reported for its fiscal year ended June 30 a net income of $22,450,600, equal to $3.37 a share on the common stock, compared with $19,148,933, or $2.89 a share, for the preceding fiscal year.

Investment Trusts Guided By Conservative Policies

BY SCRUTATOR.

A good deal of the hurrah that attended the launching of investment trusts, or investment companies, in the boom period preceding last October has been missing this year; and that is probably better for the long run prospects of the companies themselves.

There are indications that some of the larger investment companies are taking the viewpoint that they should disclose as fully as possible to the public the underlying reasons for their existence and, as well, the actual holdings of securities they have in their portfolios. One of them, with resources of 327 million dollars, published a report as of May 31 showing that its investments were distributed over 942 issues, and that about one-third of the capital was in foreign countries.

The securities were named, with the holdings of each. Methods of bookkeeping were explained and it was shown what proportion of the income came from interest and dividends and what proportion from profits on sales made. As the company is of the management type, with few restrictions on what can be done with the funds in hand, the list undoubtedly changes almost daily, and a warning to this effect was issued with the report.

Question of Policy.

There is always a broad question of investment policy to be considered by the man who contemplates buying the stock of an investment trust, to give it the old fashioned name that came from Great Britain. It concerns what he may reasonably hope the company will do for him. It should, first of all, give him diversity as a protection; it should take his funds and spread them in such manner that his prospects of income depend more closely on general business conditions than on one operating company's ability to earn.

R. S. Jones, an executive of the company specifically mentioned above, holds that the same questions that come to the mind of a bond buyer should be asked about an investment company stock. This does not mean that the capital appreciation which good underlying stocks enjoy should be overlooked, or even that all stocks should be dividend payers when bought for the portfolio. It does mean that safety of principal should be a paramount consideration and that immediate returns comparable to a fair bond rate of interest might be sufficient for the investor.

There have been isstances where so-called investment companies were dealing in the markets on margins. Their portfolio consisted of slips from brokerage houses. They were purely speculative organizations and the buyers of their stocks would have profits only if the management could guess the market prices from week to week.

Turns to Fixed Trusts.

Stock exchanges, public officials, banks, and even the better investment companies are actively opposed to such activities. The public, grown cautious, has turned rather sharply toward fixed trusts, which should efficiently eliminate the perils of present market fluctuations. Rigidity of the agreements, however, may constitute a flaw in their value, making it impossible to change from a losing portfolio security to a winning one when it first becomes apparent the loser is there.

The investment trust has obvious advantages for the small buyer of securities, so long as it applies itself to the task of selecting good conservative stocks and bonds. It has few, if any, as a speculative machine to guess the dips and the rallies and the reactions of the markets. Probably the investor should buy investment trust stocks as rich men buy bank or insurance stocks and wait years to get the big profits.

Youngstown, O., July 21.—(AP)—A three day battle to keep secret the bonus paid to Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel corporation, ended in Common Pleas court today with the revelation that he received $1,623,753 in 1929.

EUGENE G. GRACE.

Grace was a "hostile" witness in the suit brought by the Cyrus S. Eaton interests to enjoin merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company with Bethlehem Steel. For two whole days and part of a third he sat silent on the witness stand while counsel argued the propriety of placing his compensation into evidence.

Judge David G. Jenkins, presiding in the trial, overruled the objection of the Bethlehem attorneys shortly after court reconvened for the third week. The Eaton forces sought the figures in support of the contention that Grace's bonus was fraudulently concealed from Youngstown company stockholders before they ratified the merger last April.

Receives 3.319% of Net.

It was revealed that Grace received 3.319 per cent of the net earnings of Bethlehem, less fixed charges and an amount equal to the annual preferred dividend, but before depreciation. This amounted to $700,473 in 1925, $852,150 in 1926, $721,885 in 1927, $831,445 in 1928, $1,623,753 in 1929, and $701,968 for the first six months of the present year. The total for the past 5½ years amounted to $5,431,684, or, including his stipulated salary of $12,000 annually, $5,497,684.

Grace was unable to testify as to the bonus received by other officials of Bethlehem. He said his own bonus was paid on a sliding scale beginning at 1½ per cent of the earnings, according to the amount of earnings. During the last five years, he explained, earnings have been high enough to assure him the 3.319 per cent.

After a full day of questioning in which Grace was led over the negotiations preceeding the merger contract of one and one-third Bethlehem stock to one of Youngstown, he was excused, and President Frank Purnell of the Youngstown company was called back to the stand by Judge Jenkins, who asked him if the directors of Youngstown knew about the Bethlehem bonuses before they voted for the merger. Purnell said they did not.

"Do you mean to tell me," asked the court, "that when the directors of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company discussed this merger in their meeting on March 12 they did not know at all about the bonus?"

"No, sir," replied Purnell.

Explains Advantages.

Grace, while he was on the stand, explained the advantages of the merger and the relative positions, financially and otherwise, of the two companies. He also explained why he called back an unsecured loan of $800,000 to Pickands, Mather & Co. which had been advanced to replenish funds used to buy Youngstown company stock.

He said he was afraid the loan would be misunderstood by the federal government.

Bethlehem brought to the Youngstown company, he said, a better cash position and shipping on all waters. He also explained that Bethlehem had underproduction of pipe, Youngstown overproduction.

New York, July 21.—Stock prices wilted down with about everything else today. The few perspiring traders on hand agreed between mops that the old burning brow that the market was probably entitled to a little rest after the ambitious performance it had been giving for these many weeks. They just sat back and let it flop.

Not even the diehard bulls were disposed to put up much fight for their favorites anywhere, seeing the weather was what it was.

So the whole active list melted sharply lower levels. The leaders United States Steel, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse, New York Central, Standard of New Jersey, and shares of that calibre lost from 2 to 6 points

FRIGIDAIRE CORP. INVADES LOW PRICE FIELD

Frigidaire corporation, a subsidiary of General Motors, announced yesterday that it has entered the low price field with an all porcelain finished model at a factory price of $157.50.

E. G. BIECHLER.

"Anticipated demand from a new class of purchasers, lower overhead, cheaper copper, and other raw stocks and production economies now make it possible to bring electric refrigeration within reach of thousands to whom price has been a barrier in the past," said E. G. Biechler, president and general manager.

CO-OPS TO LOAN 65% ON COTTON, SAYS WILLIAMS

Washington, D. C., July 21.—Carl Williams, farm board member representing cotton, said today cotton cooperatives would advance to their members the largest amounts possible on the 1930 crop, adding that would be not less than 65 per cent of the market value of the cotton and perhaps more.

Williams said his attention had been called to statements that cotton cooperatives would not be able to advance more than six cents a pound this fall.

New York, July 21.—The Pennroad corporation for the period from April 24, 1929, the date of its incorporation, to June 30, 1930, reports net income of $4,071,512, after general expenses, interest, and taxes, equivalent to 43c a share on 9,090,000 shares of stock.

"The money derived from the sale of the capital stock of the corporation was available for investment for an average period of but ten and two-thirds months," said Henry H. Lee, president.

"Changes in securities since the statement of March 27, last, include the acquisition of common stocks of the Seaboard Air Line Railway company, Delaware and Hudson company, Southern Pacific company; preferred A stock of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad company; additional common stock of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company; and 4½ per cent convertible bonds of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company."

Sheaffer Pen Directors Declare Extra Dividend

Stockholders of the W. A. Sheaffer Pen company will receive the same dividend returns in 1930 as in the boom period of 1929. Directors yesterday declared an extra dividend of 50 cents along with the regular semi-annual dividend of a dollar. In March the company paid the regular dividend of a dollar and an extra 50 cents, giving stockholders a total of $3 per share in 1930 as in 1929.

REPORTS OF RAIN INFLUENCE DROP IN GRAIN PRICES

Wheat and Corn Both Off Around 3c.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Timely rains and lower temperatures have temporarily checked deterioration in the spring wheat territory in the American and Canadian northwest and in parts of the main corn belt.

Reports yesterday showed as high as 6 inches of rain in the McCook, Neb., section, and 3½ inches at some points in Kansas, where withering heat and dry weather promised to result in a crop failure. Late last week the dry sections in southern Alberta and Saskatchewan also received good rains, over 1 inch being shown at some points.

The better weather conditions resulted in a marked change in sentiment on the part of grain traders and led to free selling of futures with wheat and corn both dropping nearly 3c from Saturday's finish. The wheat market failed to show much rallying power and finished at the inside figures with net losses of 2⅝@2¾c, with July, 87¾c; September, 90⅞@91c, and December, 96⅝@96¾c.

Hedging Sales Affect Wheat.

Harvesting of winter wheat is nearing completion and it is not expected that the rains in the west and southwest will have any influence on the movement, which has become extremely heavy, primary arrivals of 8,282,000 bu, comparing with 7,420,000 bu last year. Chicago received 1,230 cars for the day, of which 1,105 cars graded contract, only 15 cars of hard and red winter falling below No. 2, probably the best showing known as far as quality is concerned.

Hedging sales against wheat afloat into the pit persistently and more than offset buying by the seaboard against sales abroad. Foreign demand was fairly active with sales in all positions estimated at 1,000,000 bu or more, including 500,000 bu hard winter to France. Reports told of a poor quality new crop in both France and Italy, and Broomhall mentioned seed of dry grain for mixing purposes. The basis at the Gulf was ½c lower, with No. 1 hard for first half August quoted at 4c over Chicago September.

Winnipeg led the decline in wheat and finished 2¾@2⅞c lower due to the rain reports, while Liverpool was ⅞@1⅛d lower for the day, but there was very little change in the relative difference between the latter market and Chicago.

An increase of around 15,000,000 bu in the visible supply has been witnessed in the past two weeks as the result of the heavy movement of winter wheat to terminals, the gain for the week being 8,394,000 bu, making the total 125,191,000 bu against 108,797,000 bu last year. A department of agriculture report made the carryover of old wheat on July 1 on farms, in country mills and elevators and the commercial visible, 206,000,000 bu, compared with 184,000,000 bu last year.

Corn Has Fair Rally.

While soaking rains fell over parts of the corn belt the relief was not general, and Oklahoma, Illinois, and more eastern states received little or no moisture, although local showers were forecasted for the dry area. An official Iowa report suggested that the recent hot weather with drought had hurt the prospect in that state 50,000,000 bu since July 1. No estimates have been made by statisticians as to the total extent of the damage in the main corn belt, and it is felt that it will remain unknown for sometime.

The fact that part of the belt did get receive rain resulted in fair support being given the market on the break, with holders of bids and shorts buying, and the finish was on a rally from the inside figures with net losses of 1⅞@2⅛c, July being 87¾c; September, 79@79¼c, and December, 72⅝@73¼c. Shipping demand showed material improvement with sales of 197,000 bu. A decrease of 701,000 bu in the visible brought the total down to 3,643,000 bu against 2,085,000 bu last year.

Hedging sales, the first of the season, had a depressing effect on oats and they closed ⅝@1¼c lower with July, 34¼c, and September, 36⅞c. Weakness in other grains also had some effect, while commission houses bought on the decline.

Elevator interests were on the selling side of rye and the market developed independent weakness, closing 2@4c lower, with July, 53c, and September, 55⅝c. Rotterdam bought 40,000 bu rye at the seaboard on the basis of 57c, f. o. b. Montreal, or well below a Chicago parity.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—SUGAR—RAW—Turned easier today and after buyers had shown no interest at higher offering levels, prices were lowered, with a sale of 7,000 bags of Cubas reported ex-store to a refiner at 3.26c, duty paid. Raw futures were easy early in the day on lower cables and the easier tone in the spot raw market. Sales were limited to about 40,000 tons. Prices follow:

BONDS

Present money market conditions and commodity prices are both unusually favorable for the bond buyer. Current bond prices in our opinion do not yet fully reflect these favorable factors.

A list of bonds which we recommend at current prices will be sent upon request.

CHICAGO STOCK TREND IS LOWER; TRADING LIGHT

Auburn Auto Shares Show 8 Point Decline.

Saturday's moderate drift toward reaction gained some momentum on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday and when the close came prices generally were marked down all along the line. However, there was nothing in the way of a serious downward movement and the recessions, with a few exceptions, were fractional. Trading was light and the turnover for the day was but 110,300 shares.

Auburn, which has been noteworthy for its gyrations, made the greatest loss of the day by going down 8 points to finish at 119 on sales of 950 shares. The biggest gain was credited to American Public utility, prior preferred which went up 2¾ to 95 on very limited trading.

Bendix Slips Back.

Automotives generally were weaker. Borg Warner closed at 29—a loss of 1¼. Allied Motor, Cord corporation and Houdaille took fractional losses. Bendix slipped 1⅜ to finish at 32. It was announced during the day that Stromberg Motor Devices company, a subsidary of Bendix, has been awarded damages of $261,511 and costs in its suit against the receivers of the former Zenith Carburator company for patent refringement after sixteen years of litigation.

In public utilities prices were off. Commonwealth Edison dropped off 4 points to 290 and Public Service of Northern Illinois slipped a point to 272. Middle West Utilities lost ⅝ to finish at 29⅞. This was the most active stock of the day, the turnover amounting to 17,600 shares.

Southern National Gas corporation, a subsidary of Tri-Utilities corporation, has contracted to supply Insull properties in Biloxi, Gulfport, Pass Christian and other Mississippi cities with natural gas in place of the manufactured gas they are now using.

A majority of the gains recorded during the day were found in the investment trust division. Chicago Investment corporation, Utility and Industrial, National Republic, and North and South American corporation were all up fractionally. Continental Chicago, Chicago corporation, and Manhattan-Dearborn were off fractionally, while Insull Utilities dropped 1¼ to finish at 59.

Majestic Sags 2⅝ Points.

Grigsby-Grunow, on a turnover of 6,300 shares, dropped 1¼ to 14. Gossip along the street intimated that the Majestic Household loss of 2⅝ might be attributed to the announcement that the Frigidaire corporation has placed a low priced electric refrigerator on the market.

In the general list Kalamazoo Stove was off 3 points to close at 50. Beatrice Creamery lost 1¼, Iron Fireman slipped a point, and Great Lakes Dredge suffered ½ point loss. Thompson went up a point to 27½.

J. F. Raleigh, president of the Pines Winterfront company, announced that his firm starts production this week on vertical vane type detachable winterfronts for Ford automobiles. The board of directors of the Lindsay Light company announced yesterday that the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent and an extra ½ per cent were declared on the firm's common stock, payable Aug. 23 to stockholders of record Aug. 9.

REPORT OF BIG GILLETTE CREDIT REVIVES RUMOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—A report that the Gillette Safety Razor company had opened a large credit, said to amount to $25,000,000, among several large New York banks aroused considerable interest in the financial district today.

Wall street was inclined to believe the company would find it unnecessary to negotiate such a credit unless it contemplated buying control of another company.

The report of the credit revived the suggestion that Gillette had made an attractive offer to the Autostrop Safety Razor company, which filed a suit last April against Gillette, alleging infringement of patents for improvement in safety razors and blades. The case is not expected to be tried until fall.

Autostrop a few years ago developed a new type of razor and an improved blade and strengthened its position in the industry last year when it brought out the Probak blade, designed to fit other holders of the double edge type. The company owns the entire capital stock of Probak, Ltd., of England.

The last balance sheet of Autostrop showed assets of well over $6,000,000. The company has two classes of stock. There are outstanding 87,500 shares of the class A stock and 222,500 shares of the class B stock.

DURANT MOTORS SELLS INTEREST IN THREE UNITS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 21.—Durant Motors, Inc., has sold its interest in three companies manufacturing automotive parts to a group headed by A. A. Henninger, who has been in charge of the plants, for a price reported to be in excess of $6,500,000, it was announced today.

The companies are the New Process Gear company, the Adams Axle Company, Inc., and the Warner corporation, with plants at Syracuse, N. Y., and Muncie, Ind. Durant Motors owned part of the common of the first and the other two in entirety.

Their business will be carried on under the name of the Syracuse Gear corporation, producing differential gears, rear axles, and other automobile parts.

CHICAGO CURB EXCHANGE STOCKS

The trend was toward lower levels on the Chicago curb yesterday with a few scattered issues turning in gains. Borin Vivitone added 1½ on light sales and Dixie Gas jumped 4 points on a single trade. Other gas and oil stocks were easier, losses of around a point appearing in Associated Gas, Houston Oil, and Arkansas A and common at the finish.

WOOL.

LONDON, July 21.—(AP)—The offerings at the wool auction sales today amounted to 7,308 bales, of which 5,000 were sold. It was a fairly good selection and competition was keen for the finer sorts of greasy Merinos and crossbreds. Home and continental dealers were the chief buyers and current rates were maintained. Americans purchased a few lots. The sales will close July 23.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Aviation Issues Lag.

Aviation issues continue to show a tendency to lag behind the recovery in the general market. This is largely explainable by the fact that with few exceptions corporations engaged in this industry have been unable to operate at a profit in the current year. In fact, only one of the major concerns, United Aircraft and Transport, was able to report any net income at all so far in 1930, the remainder operating in the red.

Bullish Factor.

The most bullish factor in the Procter & Gamble situation seems to be the fact that J. P. Morgan & Co. hold an option to purchase 100,000 shares by Aug. 1 at $80 a share. Last year these bankers exercised an option to purchase 150,000 shares at 66 2-3. Possibilities of absorption by Standard Brands are seen because the Morgan firm is the banking sponsor of this company.

Warner Bros.

Warner Brothers Pictures met with some selling on the theory that declining earnings may result in lowering of the dividend rate. These rumors, however, undoubtedly have been inspired by bearish professionals. Although profits are understood to have undergone a seasonal recession, it is believed the full year will show an ample margin above the $4 payment.

The Nine Hundred Block

BY KATHARINE HAVILAND TAYLOR

SYNOPSIS.

To the nine hundred block, with its sordid dwellings, moved gentle, lovely Theresa Ames and her mother, Mrs. Colt, under the watchful eye of Mrs. Baum, neighborhood gossip. Theresa makes friends with Katie Warner, who lives upstairs, and B. Jones, a reporter; also Johnny Deane, who left a home of wealth to make good for the girl to whom he regrets, since meeting Theresa, he is engaged. He has found employment painting automobiles. Theresa does typing at home to support herself and mother. Mrs. Colt encourages Billy Treadway, a rich bachelor beau of her girlhood, in his attentions to Theresa.

Theresa's father, Arnold Ames, married again after Theresa's mother divorced him and married Barrington Colt, who recently died. The father now has a belated desire to help his daughter, but his wife threatens to leave him if he does. He arranges with Harold Gale, a friend, to secretly give Theresa work.

Johnny Deane had determined not to tell Theresa of his love for her until he had broken his engagement, but does not keep his vow. Theresa returns his love.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

INTOXICATING DREAMS.

Meantime below, Theresa stood waiting so as not to crush her "dress." The clock hands moved slowly. She thought of Johnny [he was ever in an undercurrent of her mind and in every space of her awakening heart], to reflect upon the bliss that would have been hers if she could have gone to a dance with him. But perhaps, she thought, after they were married they could dance at parks sometimes. And, anyway, you couldn't have everything, and Johnny himself was really all she wanted.

"Mother," she said, "I'm so grateful to Mr. Gale. If it hadn't been for his work I couldn't have gone with Mr. Treadway. We have a great deal to be thankful for——"

Perhaps, Theresa reflected, she would. Perhaps he would dance with her. That would be nice. She had come to like him.

At 9 o'clock Billy Treadway appeared; his bulging shirt front looked as if he had paused at some garage for free air, and he had lured a few of the long locks, which bald men regard so tenderly, across a desert waste in scalp, to anchor them with hair dressing. His dress clothes, also, loosed a mothball aroma which he had combated, ineffectually, with a faint scent, but Theresa was deeply impressed. She had to make an effort to expunge awe from her eyes as they turned his way. And that which she saw as his perfection increased her fear of the ordeal ahead of her in the nocturnal path she was to follow. She breathed deeply [and slowly so that it would not show], as this sometimes steadied her.

Billy sat down for a few moments. And because Theresa did not feel like telling him that she didn't want to crush her dress she perched lightly upon the edge of the chair that she always chose when rare guests appeared. It was the one that had the rip in the upholstery of the seat. She would have told Johnny of not wanting to crush her dress, she realized; and perhaps that ability to share small, sometimes ridiculous, schemings and sorrows of assorted sizes proved love as clearly as did anything.

Elsie Colt, elated by the moment and all that it forecast, resorted to a quick rich Westchester county manner. The soiled, blistered paper of the walls had faded for her; the cheap, worn, unsteady furniture was gone. She crooked a little finger as she spoke of the "old days" . . . "Billy," she said suddenly, "I have never understood why poppa didn't provide for me. Poppa was hasty; no one knows that better than I! And the rash step I was forced to take by—but—I won't go into that—! He was hurt—deeply hurt by me—dear poppa! Yet I always felt that he cherished me in his heart—and I have wondered!"

Theresa, who had heard this tale, in many versions, far too many times, moved uneasily. She hoped her mother would not go on to say—with a scorn-tinged smile—that "legions of old friends" could have "helped" her "without the faintest feeling of it!" That always gave Theresa double shame; shame for her mother's greed and shame for herself, because she was able to be ashamed of her mother.

Billy murmured something of life being difficult to understand; murmured it rather thickly. He was studying Theresa to think of how other men would stare after her and envy him his ability to take her away from them all. . . . He had known from the first that she was rarely lovely; but the yellow dress, echoing her hair in tone, making it even more golden; the softness of the dress, increasing her look of yielding—"God!"—he thought breathlessly; he realized he'd have to keep a tight grip on himself.

"There's a young man rooming upstairs, isn't there?" he asked abruptly, almost harshly, of Elsie, his eyes still on Theresa.

[Billy had passed the young man in the hall and never before in his harmless life had Billy received so murderous and vitriolic a look.]

"Ah, yes?" Elsie replied, in a baffled way which told of her searching to remember. "A laborer, I believe," she ended with careless chill. Theresa flushed hotly; Billy saw the flush and worry condensed in his eyes and heart.

"What's his name?" Billy asked.

"Deane—I think," Elsie drawled; for a moment, she turned face toward Theresa, the steeliness of her eyes and the object of her broadcasting gave further nutriment to Billy's worry. "He has made himself—quite annoying," she stated [again she faced Billy], "as one of his class can, you know? Unaware of difference——"

"I like him for it!" Theresa put in and not quite steadily. "He's as nice to Katie as he could be to any one!"

"Chacun a son goût," said Elsie, who, in lofty moments, felt an especial affinity with copy book French.

"Deane," Billy echoed; his brows drew close and for a short second he forgot even Theresa. Phil Drake had told him that young Deane—Big J. Z.'s son—was somewhere in town. Drake had heard it on the train coming up from Philadelphia and from a man who knew the head gardener at the Deane place on Long Island.

"What's his first name?" Billy questioned.

"His—first name?" Elsie murmured vaguely; "really I don't——"

Theresa put in, "John," she said; a slight sharpness in her voice. Her mother knew his name perfectly well! She couldn't understand her mother!

Billy's mouth was opened quickly by impulse, and closed slowly by caution. If Elsie knew the truth, he, Billy realized, wouldn't have a chance. He felt smaller than he had ever felt before. "But—'all's fair in love and war'" he reasoned weakly. And—it might as well be, since great brutality and great need can strip from a man his code, the code of his fathers, the code of his race.

"Well, shall we start?" Billy suggested. Apologetically, he consulted the face of a beautifully thin watch. Theresa's mother brought Theresa's plain, brown coat. Billy held it for her as if it had been ermine; and, as she stood back to him, he dreamed of putting a coat and his arm around her to hold both around her, and her—close. He was a bit awkward about his leaving; so shaken had he been, by a moment's intoxicating dream.

A half hour later, heart pounding so hard that it sickened her, Theresa followed a line of evening cloaked women to the women's room. She felt awkward and small and apologetic about using one corner of a mirror over the shoulder of a fat woman who seemed to regard it as her birthright. In her mother's day women had worn shoes and changed to slippers and Theresa did this, but no one else did and the fact made her flush.

Women gathered in knots to talk loudly, smoke; once or twice one of them appraised her swiftly yet thoroughly, to look away. Theresa smiled at one gawky maiden whose concentrated regard suggested that Theresa was no less a novelty than a zebra. The gawky girl looked a long period of heavy frost and then elsewhere.

A tall, raw boned, spare woman came in; a woman with an equine face and a lumbering, lurching gait which suggested that her legs were governed by cams. She wore an elaborate, and patently costly, evening wrap. Turnips in the human world are always within reach of diamonds and they invariably wear those diamonds they can reach. Some one called out a shrill, "Laura Smith, what a gor-geous wrap!" [Maiden names cling in old settlements and especially to such as had long been maidens.]

"Arnold made me get it," Laura Smith Ames said. Then, turning slowly, she saw Theresa, who was putting her "day shoes" in her slipper bag. And, seeing Theresa, Laura lost color suddenly and she swayed a little. Some one who realized what was "going on" began to chatter swiftly. Covert looks were exchanged behind Laura's back. Exercise for tongues tomorrow was being made by a woman's starkly displayed fear. Every one who knew Laura realized why she was looking so badly and why she could not eat.

Theresa found Billy waiting her. "Shall we try this?" he asked. She nodded, unable to speak; so choked she was by uncertainty. But she danced beautifully and soon the music of Simpson's Baltimore orchestra took from her the memory of her recent isolation and the gawky girl who had answered her honest smile—and not too many of those in this world to answer—with icy, questioning eyes.

"Where did you learn to dance, child?" Billy asked.

Good Morning!

The bunch of them have turned out an hilarious altalker with lots of wide open spaces, lots of snow, lots of Helen Kane, plenty of Victor Moore who is a funny feller we hope we will see—Moore—of [never mind, that's a plenty good enough pun for this kind of weather—I've heard worse in the winter time] some appealing comedy furnished by Stewart Irwin who should write to Will Rogers and ask should write to Will Rogers and ask if he isn't a brother or something—he looking as near like the world's greatest cowboy as is possible without being exactly like him—and a great deal of heavy villainy contributed by Frank Morgan. He is the man to be "got"—you know they always "get their man" in these Canadian Northwest melodramas—and while a "mountie" finally lands him, said brave soldier never would have done same without the assistance of Dangerous Nan McGrew, who "never went any further than the third grade," BUT . . . !

Nan McGrew and Doc Foster are a medicine show troupe that gets stranded in the Northwest. Things look vurr' ebon when Nan discovers the identity of a murderer with a $10,000 reward on his head. Desperate Muldoon, meet Dangerous Nan McGrew!

Dangerous Nan becomes the Nemesis of Mr. Muldoon who starts in to do some Nemesis-ing on his own score. He joins the troupe, for safety's sake. I could tell you more but—you know me. Auntie Close Mouth! ESPECIALLY am I like that today for aren't Sally Joy Brown's prize letter writers going to see this show Thursday? And should cats be let out of bags before that time? No. No indeed.

Helen Kane has not been a favorite of mine, but this time I found her funny and, in certain scenes extremely appealing. "Dangerous Nan McGrew" will make a hit with both grownups and children, and one of the funniest "Mickey Mouse" comedies you've ever seen helps to make the picture part of the Palace's program a pleasure this week.

"The time has come," an astute local manager said to me the other day, "for producers to swallow the fact that they've got to make good pictures not once in a while, but all the time, if they want to fill the theaters. The novelty of sound has worn off. Movie fans are educated folks in this day and they're demanding their money's worth. The just-anything-with-noise doesn't go any longer. 'Fewer and better pictures' must be the slogan of the movie industry if the industry is to survive."

Sounds like sense.

"The Rampant Age" is one of those "just-anythings-with-noise." Just another "jazz youth" movie, unoriginal and tiresome. Its only bright spots are the good work of Florence Turner and Eddie Borden and the sound and photography, which are creditable.

See you soon!

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 21.—Dr. F. O. Houba, a native Chicagoan and a graduate of the University of Illinois, but now practicing in Tacoma, announced today before the first international congress of microbiology that goiter is due to germs. The sessions opened today at the Pasteur institute. Dr. Houba, who as a boy sold newspapers at the corner of Wabash avenue and Monroe streets, says goiter is not the result of a deficiency of iodine in the system.

"I believed in the iodine theory until ten years ago," he said in an interview tonight. "I do not advocate changing surgical methods for advanced cases, but I have proved that if goiters are taken early they can be cured otherwise. They are caused by bacterial infection, and are curable by the vaccine method.

"Early cases respond remarkably fast. I have cured girls of 16 and 17 years old within six weeks. I stumbled on the cause by accidentally leaving a bit of goiter tissue in a tube of culture medium and I realized that it was bacterial growth.

"Water is the source of bacterial infection in a goiter. Like typhoid it is increasing in regions where the water supply is polluted by surface drainage. The great lakes region and the north Pacific slope are the areas where the disease is steadily progressing."

PARIS, July 21.—The aims of science for increasing man's knowledge were associated with the world struggle for peace by speakers at the opening of the first International Microbiological society's congress at the Pasteur institute here today. Attending the congress are delegations from twenty-eight nations, including the United States, Germany, Austria and soviet Russia, and among the delegates are some of the most prominent bacteriologists in the world.

"This congress has been called," said Prof. Bordet, director of the Pasteur institute of Brussels, who presided, "partly for the purpose of reuniting scientific workers of all nations, the contacts of whom have been interrupted and seriously retarded by the world war. We hope thus to reawaken a sense of profound interest in the welfare of humanity and to renew a consciousness of the imperious necessity of concerted defense against the causes of destruction which threaten it and of the growing need for peoples to adopt the supreme objective of their own preservation and the development of the human kind."

Bishop Cannon Weds Mrs. H. H. McCallum in London Ceremony

LONDON, July 21.—(AP)—Marriage of Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and his secretary, Mrs. H. McCallum, a widow, on July 15, was revealed today in the records of Christ church, London. Bishop Cannon's first wife, Lura Virginia Bennett of Louisa, Va., whom he married in 1888, died about two years ago.

The London ceremony, performed by the Rev. Dr. Farrum, was known Jr., revealed today that the prelate's romance with Mrs. McCallum developed last year during a tour of the holy land.

News of their marriage in London last week was received by Mr. Newell today in a radiogram. It said:

"We have followed your advice, given in Rome, March, 1929, and were married Tuesday. Tell Miss Squires. Best wishes. The Cannons."

Mr. Newell laughingly denied he had given them any advice. He, Bishop Cannon, and Mrs. McCallum were in Rome in the latter part of March after returning from a tour of Palestine.

"I teased them some," the attorney said, "and told them they ought to get married. I thought then they would some day," to only a few of the most intimate friends of the couple. The bishop and his bride today were aboard the steamship Arlanza en route to Madeira and Brazil. The bishop is 65 and Mrs. Cannon between 40 and 45. They are due at Madeira Wednesday for a brief stay.

Mrs. McCallum was said to have been the bishop's secretary for about a year, coming here recently with him and staying with Sir Henry and Lady Lunn. Their friends, looking forward to a marriage at home, were surprised when the news of the wedding was made known.

The couple were wedded under a special license issued at the faculty office. The bride's name was given as Helen Hawley McCallum, a widow, of 210 East 68th street, New York.

Sir Henry Lunn, editor of the Review of the church, was instrumental in obtaining the license from the archbishop of Canterbury.

Holy Land Romance.

Charlotte, N. C., July 21.—(AP)—Jake F Newell, Charlotte attorney and intimate friend of Bishop James Cannon

The Miss Squires mentioned in the radiogram is Miss Kitty Squires of Charlotte, who also was a member of the party touring the holy land.

Long an ardent worker in the cause of prohibition, Bishop Cannon's energetic opposition to Alfred E. Smith as Democratic presidential nominee in 1928, made him the center of an attack by fellow churchmen at the recent Southern Methodist general conference at Dallas. He was exonerated of undue political activity.

Final Chicago Census Report Is 3,375,235

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Chicago's population officially is 3,375,235, the census bureau announced today, a gain of 673,530 over the 1920 census of 2,701,705.

The new Chicago population figure showed an increase of 1,482 over that made public by the local supervisor in Chicago on June 12. The slight difference between the two figures presumably was due to the addition of scattered returns on persons and families not reached in the regular enumeration.

Official preliminary population figures also were announced today for a number of other places in the Chicago region. The population of Gary, Ind., was set at 100,749, as compared to 55,378 in 1920. A revised total for Indianapolis gave that city a population of 364,073, compared with 314,194 in 1920.

The population of Galena, Ill., was announced as 3,871, compared to 4,742 in 1920, and of Washington, Ind., as 9,066, compared to 8,743 in 1920. The following populations were announced for Iowa towns:

Iowa City	11,267	15,342
New Sharon	1,084	1,051
Oskaloosa	9,427	10,120
Sigourney	2,210	2,260

Further totals for towns in Wisconsin were announced as follows:

Marshfield	7,394	8,774
Monroe	4,788	5,031
Platteville	4,353	4,045
Prairie du Chien	3,537	3,943
Richland Center	3,409	3,623
River Falls	2,273	2,353
Shawane	3,544	4,188
Stevens Point	11,371	13,622
Waupaca	2,839	3,121

One of the peculiarities of the official Chicago report was that not a single plot of ground that could technically be called a farm was listed by the census enumerators as being within the Chicago city limits. Small truck farms were found in New York and other large cities.

BOBBY FRANKS' DAYS OF PLAY RECALLED BY CLUB FOR BOYS

Mrs. Jacob Franks yesterday attended the laying of the corner stone of a memorial to her son Bobby Franks, who was slain by Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold Jr. The memorial will be a boys' clubhouse to be built at 3413 West 13th street.

When the boy's father, Jacob Franks, died two years ago, his will provided for a memorial to be erected at a cost of $100,000, specifying to give "pleasure, help and encouragement to boys as he [Bobby] in his lifetime gave sympathy, consideration and encouragement to his playmates."

The Young Men's Jewish Charities was consulted in deciding on a fitting memorial, and so a clubhouse finally was selected. The clubhouse site is in the center of a congested district. The hundreds of boys swarming about the cornerstone at yesterday's ceremonies testified to the need of such a building.

Mrs. Franks put on a trowelful of motar as the cornerstone was lowered into place. Her son, Jack, spoke for her. He declared the clubhouse would be a fitting tribute to the memory of his brother.

"His death left an aching void in our hearts," Jack said. "It may help to appease that pain to realize that hundreds of boys will be happy here in this structure built in his memory."

Other speakers were Moses Levitan, chairman of the building committee; Joseph L. Block, president of the American Boys' Commonwealth, a self-governing group of boys that will have its headquarters in the new clubhouse; Probate Judge Henry Horner, Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, and Ald. Jacob M. Arvey.

The building will include a gymnasium, swimming tank, club rooms, and other athletic facilities.

Bobby Franks was slain in 1924. His slayers are serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary.

28 Million Dollars Given to Chicago Charities, Education

In all its hurry and worry Chicago found time in 1929 to dig down in its pockets and contribute, according to estimates of the Chicago Community trust, $28,000,000 to local educational and charitable institutions.

This estimate was based on the reports of 189 of the 400 philanthropic institutions in the Chicago area in their financial statements summarized by the Community trust. This was stated by Frank D. Loomis, secretary, in his annual report.

"Contributions for the year to the 189 institutions amounted to $8,510,000," Mr. Loomis declared. "Capital gifts and bequests received within the year were $13,758,000. Current contributions to all the 400 Chicago institutions probably did not exceed $11,000,000. Aggregate capital gifts may be estimated at approximately $17,000,000. This would indicate a grand total of gifts of $28,000,000 for Chicago educational and charitable institutions in 1929, or $8.35 per capita."

Mr. Loomis reported that 67 educational and charitable institutions received $93,004 from income of the Chicago Community trust funds in 1929. Among the institutions benefited were 22 hospital and health organizations [which received 36 per cent of the amount], 10 institutions for family service and relief, 10 children's homes, and 3 old people's homes.

The Community trust capital funds showed a new increase of $61,567 during 1929. The total book value of the fund of which the income is presently available for charitable use is $2,416,333. The appraised or market value is in excess of $3,000,000, according to the report.

"As to the general situation in charitable work," Mr. Loomis added, "it may be said there are increasing evidences of effective community control. It is increasingly difficult for inexperienced, ambitious or selfish individuals or groups to start new institutions which are not needed. The official endorsements of the Association of Commerce are widely respected among the contributing public generally. The Chicago Council of Social Agencies is promoting effective coöperation of agencies and comprehensive programs of service in the various fields of charitable and social work."

Education heads the list of private benefactions in Chicago, with health coming second, the Community trust found.

Southwestern Wisconsin Pioneers Meet Aug. 3

Last Man Sips Last Wine of Last Man Club

Charley Lockwood Drinks to 33 Absent Veterans.

Stillwater, Minn., July 21.—(AP)—A tired old man sipped a toast in Burgundy today, faithfully fulfilling his covenant with the dead and writing the final chapter in the saga of the last man's club.

About the long table which had Charley Lockwood at its head stood 33 vacant chairs, each with a bow of black, as the 87 year old veteran of the civil war drank wine in memory of his comrades, fulfilling a vow of 45 years' standing.

His thin face was touched with an expression of deep solemnity as Lockwood repeated a bit of verse and poured from the bottles set aside at the organization meeting of the club, a swallow of the wine. He quaffed it as the members had decreed when they first met July 21, 1885, to observe the anniversary of the battle of Bull Run, in which they fought together.

Each year there was a reunion and each year there were more vacant chairs, but today was the first when only one veteran appeared. With his promise kept, Lockwood closed the records of the club and prepared to return to his home at Chamberlain, S. D., for no longer will there be reunions—the destiny of the organization has been reached.

But Lockwood made one unexpected discovery as he drank from the prize set aside for the winner of the race with death. The Burgundy tasted as it should. It neither was sour nor vinegar-like, as it was supposed to be. Peter Hall, who was next to the last man, could not restrain his curiosity and sampled the wine three years ago and announced that it had turned to vinegar.

Lockwood had concluded that the Burgundy, like the honor which he and his comrades had looked forward to so long, had turned sour. But after the ceremony he said instead he found it excellent. He turned over the bottle with most of its contents intact to the Stillwater library for preservation.

Completing the pattern for the ceremony, so carefully laid out long ago, Lockwood addressed his simple toast to "My comrades," and then repeated a verse read at its first meeting, his voice ringing out clearly in the dining room which stands on the site of the banquet hall where the initial meeting was held.

"The campfire smoulders—ashes fall;
The clouds are black athwart the sky;
No tap of drums, no bugle call—
My comrades all, good-by."

Then he took up the bottle and drank as cheers from the roomful of old pioneers, friends, widows of former club members, and relatives were given him. Next to him sat Mrs. Samuel Bloomer, widow of the color-bearer of Company B, first Minnesota volunteer infantry, of which the club members were all former members.

It was with this unit they all volunteered in answer to Lincoln's first call in April, 1861, serving through four years of warfare, losing more than half of their numbers at Gettysburg.

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Isn't there something about a military show with its drills and bands that thrills you and sends funny little chills up and down your spine? It's an inspiring sight to see the blue jackets in formation, shoulder to shoulder, stepping briskly to the tune of some spirited march, or the army passing in review.

If you are the kind of person who enjoys such entertainment to its full extent, you'll want to be a spectator at Ravinia when Army and Navy day is held there on July 31, a week from next Thursday. Mr. Eckstein, president of the Ravinia Opera company, has asked me to bring one hundred of you to this show, and I want to bring the boys and girls who will feel like stamping their feet and clapping their hands when the glorious entertainment is over.

The principal performers in the show which, by the way, will take place on the expensive green lawn of Ravinia park, will be the demonstration platoon and band from Fort Sheridan; two companies of men from Great Lakes Naval Training station with the band, and a detachment of marines whose big feat of the afternoon will be their wall scaling. There will be interesting drills and an exciting attack scene by the platoon from Fort Sheridan. There will be many features of this Army and Navy day show which you are sure to enjoy and it's probably your one chance in a lifetime to see some of them.

You have today and tomorrow, girls and boys, to write letters that will win you an invitation to Ravinia and it should be quite an easy task, too, with so many interesting things to write about. Have your letter reach me by Thursday morning, and do not fail to have it include your name, address and age.

Keep Close Tabs on Your Weight to Keep It Down

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I've an idea that might work out with women outside the film realm as well as within it. Of course, the rewards will still be the movie queens', unless you can make yourself believe that a twenty pound weight loss is as good as a movie contract any day.

Signing weight contracts is the system. Billie Dove, Anita Page, Clara Bow, and a host of others have signed weight contracts. If they add a couple of bonbons to their day's calorie count a couple of golden bonbons may be lifted right out of their pay envelopes.

Of course, there is nothing like the well known pay check to keep a nose (or should I say a figure) to the grindstone. But, then, lines being what they are in any field of woman endeavor today, from boy friend to grand opery, a woman could put herself under contract to herself to keep within a certain weight limit. She could say if overweight, "By Sept. 1 I'll have that fifteen plus off." If of the wavering sort of figure that suffers Wall street ups and downs, she could say, "By the end of a month I'll have this figure under such contro! that there won't be any more ups. I'll study and see just what it is that makes me weigh five pounds more at a weighing a couple of weeks after the last.

The contract idea is good. Put down your desired weight—which is the weight at which you look best, feel best, and are best—and weigh yourself once a week, and if you haven't kept your contract you'll have your punishment in the total described on the scale chart. If you have, you'll get your reward in the knowledge that no sweet female can take the joy out of your day by that eyebrow lift which shouts: "Sister, you are getting plump!"

That is the field into which we are veering our reducing courses now—keeping close tabs on the pounds.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Not in Love.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy whom I see very often. My girl friend likes him, too. How can I find out whom he loves without asking him? His actions don't show anything. Should I give him up?

"REAL ANXIOUS LOVER."

He's not in love with either or his actions would so indicate, dear. You'll have to be contented with his friendship for the time.

Vacation Causes Controversy in Some Households

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Should husband and wife take vacations apart?

The timely question was put by the Inquiring Reporter to a half dozen persons. Three voted the separate vacation plan; two held out for vacations together, and one decided it to be a matter depending entirely on the temperaments of the husband and wife. Some husbands and wives might be so temperamentally disposed that separate vacations would mean nothing but misery and loneliness. Which probably is the wisest deduction of all.

We all know couples whose great pleasure during the year is planning together a next summer's vacation. Without the other along neither could possibly get any kick out of the adventure, no matter how cluttered with plans and excitement the two weeks were.

On the other hand, there are couples who should get away from each other. The best thing that could happen to them is to be away for a brief spell, with time to reflect on the missing one's virtues. Living in close contact, the small vices to which all humans are prone are apt to be magnified out of all proportion. A separation often provides just the needed perspective.

Countless times husbands and wives have returned from a separate vacation jaunt with a new light and appreciation in their eyes. The home they were getting fed up on, the mate looked mighty good again. The woman who swore she couldn't cook another meal comes back wondering why that duty seemed so onerous before the vacation. The man whose vision has been cleared by new scenes and other people wonders why his duties around the house were so irksome. And so it goes.

A Friend in Need

"Can you help me solve a problem that seems big at times? My husband has been sick in the hospital a long time and is home now only two weeks. He can't go to work for a while until he gets stronger. I have three children, all boys, and the oldest is 16 and is working three days a week. Between the two of us we just manage to feed the family but are in need of clothing. I am ashamed of the way I look at work but I can't afford to get new things. I would be so grateful if some kind person could help us through you. I wear size 40 or 42 and my boys are 16, 15, and 12.

"MRS. P. C."

This poor mother is ambitious and a willing worker, but her troubles have been so numerous she is not able to cope with the situation without some help. The clothing you are discarding and the things your young sons are outgrowing would remove a great deal of the burden from her shoulders.

New England Appeals to Chicagoans

BY THALIA

The dearth of social activity hereabouts makes it necessary to seek fashionable news elsewhere, from the various resorts where Chicago's townsfolk are assembled for the summer.

The Albert Blake Dicks of Lake Forest, Mrs. William France Anderson of Hinsdale and France Jr. have gone east to Pittsfield, Mass., to be guests of Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury at Court Hill. Mrs. Salisbury having returned from a visit in Rumford Falls, Me.

The Donald F. McPhersons and their children have gone on to Nantucket for the rest of the summer after being with Mrs. Pherson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. West, in Pittsfield for a short time. Dr. Frank E. West of Brooklyn, N. Y., is now the guest of the Wests. The George Higginsons have as their guests at Lenox, Mass., Mrs. Elgin R. L. Gould, whose son, John H. P. Gould, married Lee Higginson.

Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice gave a musical at Mount Hope farm at Williamstown yesterday afternoon, and Harry C. Holloway, who is at Tamarack farm at Tyringham in the Berkshire district, had charge of the sporting goods booth at the Ascension Farm School fair at Stockbridge, also yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Roger Sherman of Evanston is at the Maplewood hotel in Pittsfield, and Miss Kate S. Buckingham has as her guests at Bald Head, Lenox, her cousin, Miss Katherine Woolsey of Englewood, N. J., and Miss Marion McAfee of New York City.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Walker have returned to be with Dr. Walker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ransom Walker, at Fair Acres in Stockbridge after visiting Mrs. Walker's mother, Mrs. Winthrop Ames, at North Easton, Mass.

The Chicago club at Charlevoix, Mich., is well peopled with Chicagoans just now, and the season is at its height. Arrivals for last week-end included Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Waller, Miss Elizabeth Waller, Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Scott and their sons, Frederick Jr. and Edward W. Mrs. Robert H. McElwee is visiting her niece, Mrs. A. Harris Whiting, and Mrs. Sterling Morton is the guest of Mrs. Charles I. Pierce. Mrs. Earl L. Hambleton and her daughter, Miss Peggy Hambleton, are visiting Mrs. Francis S. Rickcords [Eleanor Hambleton], and Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacMurray and John D. Cady are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Hotz of Lake Forest, who are traveling in Europe this summer, were at Baden-Baden recently during the international auto races, beauty contest, and flower carnival.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Pearce of 209 Lake Shore drive have gone to their summer place at Red Cedar lake, Wisconsin, for the remainder of the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Pearce returned last week from a house party given by Mr. and Mrs. William S. Kies, former Chicagoans, at Yama Farms, N. Y. The party was given on the occasion of the Kies' 25th wedding anniversary. Other Chicagoans who attended included Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Cresap, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Kehoe, and Isak Dahle.

Mrs. Ernest R. Graham is working hard this week at headquarters for the Chicago Babies' Free Milk fund, of which she is president. "Penny week" drive is now in progress to raise funds. William R. Dawes is treasurer for the drive and Howard F. Gillette has organized his sea scouts into active service to collect the pennies deposited in milk bottles in banks and places of business all over town and to help distribute milk during the hot spell. Yesterday's collections were $1,059.14.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Primley of Hubbard Woods have returned from a motor trip east. They were the guests at Southampton, L. I., of Mrs. Primley's sister, Mrs. Cornelius Tiers.

Arthur Bissell of 118 East Oak street is to depart on Aug. 1 to join Mrs. Bissell in Europe. She sailed in the late spring with Mrs. James Weber Linn. They are to return in September.

Dr. and Mrs. John Davis Kales of 1356 North State street; their daughter, Miss Katharine Kales, and their son, Davis Kales, are ensconced at Harwichport on Cape Cod for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Martin of Highland Park have announced the engagement of their daughter, Gertrude Elizabeth, to Richard William Kress of Deerfield, Ill.

"Anima Allegra," in Debut at Ravinia, Wins Long Applause

BY EDWARD MOORE.

"Anima Allegra," an opera by Franco Vittadini, was introduced to this part of the country at Ravinia last night. A first night audience looked upon it and called it uncommonly good. In fact, the applause at the end of the second act took a size and length entitling it to be known as an ovation.

The work is a sprightly and diverting entertainment. The story, by the brothers Quintaro, authors of the play, "Papa Juan," acted by Otis Skinner, tells of an aristocratic and gloomy Spanish household, ruled by Donna Sacramento, in real life Ina Bourskaya, and a staid and comic superintendent, Vittorio Trevisan. The rigid decorum gets upon the nerves of the son of the household, Mario Chamlee, here named Pedro, who prefers to spend most of his time away from home.

To them enters a niece, Consuelo, otherwise Lucrezia Bori, and she, with blandishments, high spirits and frivolity sets the household by the ears. She and her friends go to a gypsy camp, a whirlwind of dance, song, and hilarity. Pedro comes after her to bring her home, and she induces him to stay for the fun. At the end the household is converted to the idea that a little joy in life is better than all the unbending good manners in the world, with which unexceptionable moral we may leave the young couple to their inevitable marriage.

It is a simple little tale, merrily spun, and surrounded by music that is easy and pleasant to the ear, generally melodious, always full of rhythm and color, and frequently charming. The best bit of the score is a serenade to spring sung off stage at the end of the first act and also of the third, but there are other items almost as good.

It would need a typewriter typed with fire to tell of the glories of Mme. Bori's costumes, also of her gay spirit and lovely singing throughout the piece. The same machine is necessary to describe Mr. Chamlee's fine art of song and certainly also for the furious dash and lithe grace of the gypsy dance done by Ruth Page. Costume and dance were completely authentic here, by the way. And there should be other words for Mme. Bourskaya's fine picture of an elderly Spanish lady, for the comic but legitimate superintendent by Mr. Trevisan, for another comic character by Marek Windheim, who upset the family prayers by his chase of a buzzing fly, for a number of other agreeable musical and dramatic incidents. But the piece will be given again on Saturday night of this week. It is worth a visit.

Ex-Governor of Tennessee Is Out of Senate Contest

Nashville, Tenn., July 21.—(AP)—Benton McMillin, 76 year old former governor of Tennessee, announced today that he would withdraw from the race for the Democratic nomination for the short term as junior United States senator because of the pressure of his private business. His action leaves the contest between Senator William E. Brock and Dr. John R. Neal of Knoxville.

Food Protection Safeguards the Children's Health

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

You can have a well baby this summer, if you know how to care for it. Mrs. Bevans will send you the necessary information on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Speaking of the need of our giving the babies and little children, especially, good care in summer, probably the first thing that comes to our mind in this connection is their food.

As for the little babies, most mothers know by this time that the ghost of summer complaint and the dread second summer took to his heels—if ghosts have heels—when the trouble was all traced to the uncleanliness and germiness of the baby's milk. Most mothers know that if they take their babies away the milk supply must be investigated, and if any doubt is felt about it, that it must be pasteurized and in some cases boiled.

They know that loose milk isn't safe. They know, too, that the utmost cleanliness must be observed in connection with the handling of and utensils for the milk, and that care must be exercised in keeping it cold and away from contact with germ carrying insects.

The water supply, also, has to be scrutinized and the water boiled and cooled if any suspicion at all attaches to it. These same general precautions hold for the children of runabout age, except that, being older, they are open to other food indiscretions.

Now I know how hard it is on a boiling hot day to say "no" to longing eyes that watch other children devour ice cream of some unknown make when off on a day's jaunt. Or to refuse a hungry child a juicy frankfurter at one of the many stands for motorists. Or not to allow them to drink from strange brooks that look so clean and sparkling when you're on a long, hot walk or when you stop to rest while you're touring in the car.

Some ice creams are full of lard and milk and egg substitutes; frankfurters can be made of uneatable ingredients, and typhoid may lurk in the freshest looking brook. So, though you may sound hard hearted and feel hard hearted, you're being "cruel to be kind" when you refuse your children these doubtful foods.

The easiest way to manage is not to let them get into the way of expecting to eat anything and everything. If they have only good fruit drinks and wholesome picnic food and have ice cream that is made at home or is equally pure, they won't ask for everything they see.

Seeing that they have clean, pure, well chosen food, milk, and water is one important way of safeguarding the babies' and small children's health in summer.

Fell for Him.

I was preparing for my first date with a young man whom I admired very much, and my anxiety to make a good impression had made me a little nervous. When I knew that he was in the living room I put on my coat and hat, arranged my hair exactly right, took one last general survey, and started down the stairs.

Our stairs are in one long flight and go down directly into the living room. Somehow my heel caught in the top step and I rolled down the entire flight and landed in an ignominious heap almost at the young man's feet. We have since become engaged and he remarks that when I fell for him like that he knew it was no use to resist. N. M. C.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, July 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Vanderbilt Church is at Port Washington visiting Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. T. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert W. Kahn have returned from a long stay abroad and will be at their country place on the Jericho turnpike, near Jericho, for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold I. Pratt, who are passing the early part of the summer at Welwyn, Glen Cove, will leave on Aug. 7 for Dark Harbor, Me., to remain until September.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gurnee Dyer are with Gen. George R. Dyer at Brookville for the early part of the summer and will later be in Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet have taken for their city residence the home of the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Anson, East Sixty-eighth street.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Rita Robinson, daughter of Anson Flower Robinson, to Jean Gaumeralis, son of Dr. and Mme. Maurice Gaumerals, of Paris. Miss Robinson is a granddaughter of the late Justice Padon C. Williams, who was for many years on the Appellate bench of New York state.

South Park Workers Will Attend Picnic Given by the Board

Tomorrow will be a holiday for the 2,000 employés of the south park system. They with their families and friends will attend the annual picnic and sports day sponsored by the board of commissioners. Prizes and food will be furnished at the expense of the board, and every employé will be given a day off with pay.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 21.—[Special.]—Vice President Curtis has had as his guest at the Mayflower his son-in-law, Maj. C. P. George Jr., from Fort Sill, Okla. The major left today for Siasconsett to join Mrs. George and their children in their summer home.

Postmaster General Brown gave a luncheon today at the Metropolitan club in honor of Señor J. A. Montalvo, director Cuban postal service.

Mrs. James R. Mann, widow of a former representative from Hyde Park, Chicago, has gone to Lenox, Mass., to spend two months.

British Universities May Install U. S. Business Training

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 21.—Proposals for revolutionary changes in educational principles in British universities were made known today by the London School of Business Administration, that is sending Jules Mencken, a former student at Columbia and Cambridge universities, to America. He is to study business schools there before the opening of this country's first university department of business training, administration, and research.

The idea that Latin, Greek, and "pure science" are the chief offerings of any education system has fallen, Mr. Mencken believes. He points out that American schools have "found other, perhaps more fruitful courses of study."

WOMEN CALL FOR MARTHA WASHINGTON'S LIKENESS ON STAMPS

Washington, D. C., July 21.—(AP)—Martha Washington, only woman who ever had her head on a regular U. S. postage stamp, again may regain the honor which has twice been taken from her.

Women, protesting to the postmaster general over the removal of her head from the 4 cent stamps, to make room for one of William Howard Taft, see in the prospective issue of Washington bicentennial stamps for 1932 a chance for the wife of the first President to regain her philatelic prestige.

Postoffice officials said the appeals of the women would be given due consideration. They do not, however, see any chance for her reinstatement on a regular stamp issue. Two other women who have been honored by special stamps are Pocahontas and Queen Isabella of Spain.

Postoffice officials point out, however, that Mrs. Washington's head still appears on the reply postcards and probably will continue to do so.

To complaints of the women that the American Indian might have been removed from the 14 cent stamps or the buffalo from those costing 30 cents, instead of taking Martha Washington from the four centers, the officials argue that the removal of these other subjects would cause dissatisfaction among persons who are continually urging more stamp recognition of America's scenic and historic subjects.

Food Talk.

An excessive indulgence in pickles used to be jestingly referred to as a sign of being in love. Now we know it means a poor diet and a subnormal physical condition. A craving for something sour indicates an insufficient quantity of gastric juice. Food cannot leave the stomach until it is fully acidified, therefore pickles temporarily increase acidity and aid digestion.

Reduction of gastric juice occurs in anemia—a nutritional disease. Which raises the question, will the eating of pickles help in curing the disease? It will, provided other necessary foods are put into the diet. Pickles whet the appetite and enable the individual to enjoy foods he ordinarily would not. When pickles assist one to eat plenty of fruits, vegetables, milk, and meat especially rich in iron they are a safe means of restoring normal well being.

Besides acid, pickles supply nutrients. Some, however, are more nutritious than others. Pickled vegetables and fruits contribute both calories and minerals.

TWO KINDS OF PICKLES

BEET PICKLES.

1 cup sugar
2 cups apple vinegar

Wash beets carefully so as not to break skins. Cut off tops, leaving about 1½ inches stem [leaves that are snipped entirely off allow beet to bleed or lose color in the cooking water]. Cover with cold water and cook until tender. Small beets [about 1¾ inches in diameter] will require about 30 minutes of actual boiling. Larger, older beets will require longer.

Do not prick beets with a fork to test. Remove one and press gently between the folds of a dry cloth. If the beet yields and seems soft, they are done. Drain off hot water. Cover with cold water and drain again. Slip off skins with the hand. While hot add vinegar and sugar and reheat until very hot but not boiling. Seal in hot sterile jars.

MUSTARD OIL PICKLES

1 gallon sliced cucumbers
1 quart vinegar
4 tablespoons salad oil or olive oil
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons mustard seed
2 tablespoons celery seed

Pare cucumbers [large ones are best] and slice very thin. Add the rest of the ingredients. These pickles do not need to be salted. Put the cucumbers in a stone jar and pour the mixture over them without heating.

Yield: 1 gallon.

Paris Elegantes Favor Smart Bolero Suits

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Cape and bolero started out even in the spring style preliminaries, but the bolero has gained steadily in favor with the smartest Parisiennes while the cape is slowly but surely disappearing from fashionable shoulders.

Chic women like the bolero suit for informal and semi-formal summer wear because it is simple and youthful, and by suiting the jacket length to your proportions, you can make your figure look pretty much as you would have it.

The bolero suit, sketched above, is from Heim, the smart furrier who has turned couturier, too, of late. It was chosen by two of his smartest clientes: the Vicomtesse de la Rochefoucauld and the Duchesse de Penaranda. The former chose it in tobacco brown wool diagonal, with blouse of pink satin; for the latter, it was made in black gabardine and the blouse was white satin.

The cut away line of the bolero is accentuated by three curved nervures. It has no collar, but a little round yoke echoes the girlish turndown collar of the blouse which is worn outside. The gored skirt is cut with a reduced flare and has a little peplum hip yoke edged with three nervures like the jacket, thus calling attention to the incurve of the waist. The latest silhouette, you know, gives full value to all curves. Three nervures likewise decorate the sleeves. A narrow belt of the suit material is fastened by a natural wood buckle. The Agnes hat, upturned in her latest manner, is of her new starched tricot.

FARM and GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

The proper kind of fertilizing for various "garden variety" vegetables has been the object of intensive study for the last six years at the University of Illinois.

Now comes Prof. J. W. Lloyd and his assistant with an interesting bulletin called "Fertilizing 25 Kinds of Vegetables" in which the results of these tests are set down in ordinary language that should make this free work a valuable addition to any gardener's collection of literature on the subject. I suggest you write the college of agriculture at Urbana for your copy.

Taking into account not only increases in yield but also the net value of each treatment, the investigators made these four recommendations for the fertilization of the 25 vegetables:

"Limestone in addition to manure is recommended for the production of the following vegetables on dark-colored silt loam showing acid reaction: cabbage, cauliflower, carrots, eggplant, garlic, lettuce [both leaf and head], onions, pepper and spinach.

"Phosphorus as a supplement to manure and limestone is recommended for the production of green string beans, carrots, early cabbage, celeriac, celery, eggplant, leeks, onions and parsnips.

"When manure cannot be obtained it is recommended that a complete commercial fertilizer be used in combination with limestone and cover crops for the production of beets, cabbage, early carrots, cauliflower, celeriac, celery, leaf lettuce, onions, parsley, spinach, sweet potatoes, swiss chard and turnips.

"These recommendations refer particularly to the production of vegetables on dark-colored silt loam with an acid reaction. For soils of the same type in which tests show no lime requirement, the limestone could be omitted from the treatment."

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

CHILD'S DRESS.

This little dress will be pretty for play, or for "dress up" occasions, depending on the material used. It closes on the shoulders beneath the small bows, and the cape collar answers for short sleeves, too. Buttercup yellow organdie with a shade of cocoa brown organdie for trimming would be adorable, while taffeta, chiffon, batiste, gingham, and other wash materials are suitable.

The pattern, 2549, comes in sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 32 or 35 inch material with 4¾ yards of binding and 1 yard of 1½ inch wide ribbon for the bows.

This is your chance to make a great saving. Every car is backed by a 5 days' free driving trial guarantee.

LINCOLN SEDAN, 7 pass., that's absolutely 100% throughout. Equipped with shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. It's a beauty and will not remain long at our reduced price of $750.

AUBURN 8 SEDAN—1929, with very low mileage. This is a low slung car with a world of power and pep. Has hundreds of dollars' worth of extra equipment. $850.

REO SEDAN—Was in storage for almost two years. The finish upholstery, and tires are all in every respect. Motor is very efficient. $145.

FORD 4 DR. SEDAN—1929, with very low mileage. Every feature is in the original new condition. Offered at a big saving.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN—1927 Commander, finished a smart color. This car was chauffeur driven and the result is it's in top notch condition now. 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $195.

CADILLAC VICTORIA—Was given unusual care by the original owner, so it will please any particular today. Has a wealth of extra equipment. Special for $95.

PLYMOUTH SEDAN — This 1929 is equipped with 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Has a sweet running motor. $385.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT—1927 Big Six 7 pass. Sedan that will please the most exacting buyer. Oiled and greased every 500 miles by the original owner, so it is in wonderful condition now. 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $485.

BUICK SEDAN—This late 7 pass. Master 6 was owned by a prominent manufacturer. The finish, upholstery, and tires are in the original new condition. The motor runs very smoothly. Equipped with 4 wheel brakes, shock absorbers bumpers, spare tire, etc. $495.

NASH SEDAN—Adv. Six 4 dr. that we sincerely believe is the best Nash buy in Chicago. Has A1 and 1930 appearance throughout and shines. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, heater, etc. $450.

OAKLAND COACH—1928; looks and runs better than many cars selling for twice this price. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, spare tire, snubbers, bumpers, etc. $395.

PACKARD SEDAN—Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, spotlight, shock absorbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. The upholstery, finish, and motor are in splendid condition. $350.

FLINT TOURING—Here is a sporty car with khaki top, compass, spotlight, and wind wings, practically new tires, trunk, 4 whl. brakes; snubbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Runs fine. $145.

PONTIAC COACH—Stand. 6 that will make an ideal vacation car. Has many valuable extras and dandy tires. $185.

MARMON COUPE—Has a spacious rumble seat. Equipped with wire wheels, 4 whl. brakes, and many valuable extras. This car will give practically new car satisfaction today. $195.

PIERCE-ARROW ROADSTER — A late model 80 that's the classiest car of its kind in Chicago. Has 4 whl. brakes and a wealth of extras. The upholstery is perfect and the finish is bright and gleaming. Has a smooth, powerful motor. Sold for a high price a short time ago; now $750.

HUPMOBILE SEDAN — 1929 that was carefully checked over by expert mechanics and now is absolutely in brand new condition. Very fully equipped. $895.

CHRYSLER COUPE—Late model. We defy anybody to tell this from a brand new car. It has an unusually smart paint job, new tires, and many extras. Rooter, rumble seat. It's a big buy at our price of $495.
